FEDERAL BOARD BEGINS FIGHT ON STOCK SWINDLES

Securities Commission Campaign Expected to Eliminate or Remodel Exchanges in Some Cases.

60 INVESTIGATORS TURNING IN REPORTS

Some Minor Markets Used by Promoters to Give Prestige to Worthless Issues.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A campaign to curb stock swindlers and their worthless stocks and bonds has been begun by the Securities and Exchange Commission. A successful issue to the campaign will mean the elimination of valueless and fraudulent stocks from exchanges. Further, it was revealed today, the drive in some instances will eliminate or drastically remodel the exchanges themselves.

Some of the commissioners, greatly aroused by the situations disclosed to them, have pledged a continuous, and, in so far as possible, an irresistible clean-up drive.

Already 60 investigators are in the field. This staff will be sufficiently agumented to make a thorough check of stock and bond sales, even down to the smallest.

17 of 20 Found Worthless.

Some of the evidence in the hands of the commission regarding stocks actually listed on minor exchanges indicates the use of such exchanges by promoters simply to give prestige to worthless stocks. In one case, only three of a group of some 20 issues were found to have any merit.

There is evidence also showing how old men and women, some with dependent children, have invested their life savings in nearly worthless stocks and bonds.

Cracking down on such violators means that such innocent victims immediately are deprived of their savings, since the resulting publicity eliminates whatever value the so-called securities may have had.

But commission officials believe they can end stock swindling of this character, and so, at least, protect projected future victims of slick salesmen.

First Method of Attack.

The first method of attack is against exchanges which have permitted listing of valueless stocks and bonds. This listing constitutes a sort of warranty to the public that the "security" in question has some standing. The exchange, in fact, makes no such representation, but the public impression remains.

Officials feel, therefore, that refusal of the commission to recognize these issues will reduce the possibility of their sale. At present a swindler calls his victim, and points to the rapid upward swing on such and such an exchange. The gullible investor believes the quotations have merit, and buys the stock. As a matter of fact, the price swing probably resulted from manipulation, and the stock had no actual value.

The commission has a further weapon in its power to refuse recognition to exchanges themselves. If the exchange is not recognized, it may not deal in stocks and bonds on an interstate basis, and it is difficult for most exchanges to continue on a strictly intrastate basis.

One Already Denied Recognition.

Commission investigators are at present examining these exchanges. One—the New York Mining Exchange—already has been refused recognition. Others may receive similar treatment if they do not change their methods drastically.

A third point of attack is through the Securities Act of 1933, which requires the filing of certain information with the commission before a new security may be sold. Some 1200 issues have been filed so far, and these are being closely examined to see whether their promoters are making proper representations.

The campaign will necessitate a much larger budget than the commission now has available, but one official said he was sure Congress would be willing to help "crack down on thieves."

LIGHTNING SHOOTS UP, NOT DOWN, EXPERIMENTS SHOW

Electricity Passes From Earth to Clouds, Not Vice Versa, Tests Disclose.

By the Associated Press.

PUEBLO, Colo., Oct. 20. — W. N. Clark, president of the Southern Colorado Power Co., said today tests at Cripple Creek had disclosed that lightning passes from the earth to clouds and does not originate in the air.

"It is commonly believed lightning comes as a thunderbolt from above," he said. "The truth is, that when a tree is struck by lightning, a current of great intensity is gathered up from the earth and passes up the tree through the air and charges the nearby clouds to the same potential as the earth.

W. W. Lewis of the General Electric Co., who helped in the test, said the region near Cripple Creek was "the best in the United States" to test lightning bolts, partly because of its high altitude. The General Electric Co. made tests there three years ago.

SETTLEMENT OFFERED IN VANDERBILT CASE

Attorneys for Both Sides Considering Proposal by Mrs. Whitney.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Conferences looking to a possible settlement of the Vanderbilt-Whitney court battle over the custody of 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt, heiress to $4,000,000, were understod tonight to be in progress during the week-end.

Attorneys for the Whitney side could not be reached, but it was learned overtures by the Whitney side to the Vanderbilt faction were under consideration. The lawyer for the Vanderbilt faction denied any overtures had been made, however, and said the case would go on Monday.

If accepted, this settlement would leave little Gloria in the care of her aunt, the wealthy sculptress and art patron, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, mother of the girl, would continue to draw the $48,000 which the court allows her yearly from her young daughter's estate.

Mrs. Whitney has offered in event of a settlement to close her case without delay and make no further opposition to Mrs. Vanderbilt's application for a writ of habeas corpus declaring her legal right to the custody of Gloria.

Argument on this application has been heard for the last three weeks by Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew.

Under the reported terms of the proferred settlement Mrs. Vanderbilt would withdraw an application she has made in Surrogate's Court to be appointed custodian of Gloria's estate. When Reginald Vanderbilt died in 1925, his wife was only 20, and George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist were appointed guardians of the child's fortune. Mrs. Vanderbilt now seeks to become guardian herself.

For the last two years, Gloria has been in the care of Mrs. Whitney, with her mother's consent. It is said that if Mrs. Vanderbilt will leave her there and drop the property action, Mrs. Whitney will not oppose the mother's being named technical guardian of Gloria and drawing the $48,000 allowance.

It was not learned whether, if the settlement is accepted, Mrs. Vanderbilt will still put on witnesses in an effort to clear her name. Prince Hohenlohe and the former Lady Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, both of whom came from England to aid her defense, are still guests of Mrs. Vanderbilt at her home.

WOOD RIVER FOOTBALL FANS TEAR TROUSERS OFF REFEREE

At the end of the high school football game between Alton and Wood River yesterday afternoon a group of incensed Wood River supporters rushed out on the field and stripped Referee John A. Karch of his trousers.

They tore the trousers into pieces, which were distributed as souveniers. Karch was rescued by the coaches of the two teams who forced their way through the crowd, but not without Coach Jackson of Alton getting a black eye and Coach Barton of Wood River a blow on the head.

The game, which Alton won, 13 to 7, was Wood River's homecoming. There had been several disputed decisions during the game on which the Wood River supporters apparently felt the home team got the worst of it.

TESTIFIES MARKET WAS RIGGED FOR INSULL STOCK SALE

HIGH QUOTATIONS CITED TO BUYERS

Mail Fraud Prosecution Charges Shares Were "Almost Worthless" at That Time.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The Government presented testimony in the Insull mail fraud trial today in an attempt to show that, during the period in which Corporation Securities Co. was selling its stocks to investors, the shares were, by "wash" sales, made to appear popular and in brisk demand at high prices. "Wash sales" are artificial transactions in stock, which are accomplished without any change in ownership.

A. R. Knittle, Department of Justice accountant, testified that the books of one of Samuel Insull's companies showed such sales were numerous

Of all the transactions in "Corp." stock, these wash sales accounted for 38,400 shares, according to Knittle's interpretation of brokerage house books.

How Prices Were Set.

Knittle, under questioning by Leslie E. Salter, Assistant United States Attorney-General, described four ways in which wash sales were accomplished, each time resulting in a market quotation at the price desired.

The transactions originated in the Utilties Securities Co., he said. This company was described in circulars of the Insull utility system as "our sales department." It was at the same time selling the stock in question to the public, and prosecutors charged that salesmen used the market quotations as a talking point in making sales.

Some of the artificial transactions were simple, as explained by Knittle. A second broker sold the stock, at the order of a first broker, and sold it to the first.

Another method described by the accountant as typical was more complicated. Taking Feb. 26, 1931, as an example, Knittle explained how a market quotation of $58.50 for the allotment units of the Corporation Securities Co. was produced.

"The Utility Securities Co. bought 100 units of stock at $58.50, and sold 100 units at $58.50, through J. D. Scheinman, a broker. Scheinman bought and sold 100 units at $58.50. He gave the purchase order to E. Lowitz, a broker, for execution, and the sale order to M. D. Cahn, another broker. Lowitz purchased 100 units from Cahn, for Scheinman. Cahn sold 100 units, for Scheinman, to E. Lowitz."

"Did these transactions require any change of ownership?" asked Salter.

"There was none," said the witness.

Charts and Diagrams.

Knittle put before the jury, along with diagrams, a chart of the market maneuvers. It showed wash sales in both the issues of stock put out by the Corporation Securities Co., which failed in the spring of 1932 with a hundred million dollar loss to investors.

It was the contention of prosecutors, in presenting the mail fraud case against Insull and 16 others, that the stock was "almost worthless" while this was in progress. Knittle said the 49 books he had examined, in a two-year investigation, showed the same practice in the stock of Insull Utility Investments, with 22,900 such sales between October, 1930, and September of 1931.

Another chart hung on a 14-foot easel before the jury box showed actual market operations which the Government charged Insull companies carried on in Insull stock, for the same purpose as the wash sales.

The chart bore a row of columns, representing total transactions in the stock on the stock market. Insull deals, in red, left only a little white to represent the buying in Insull stock done by others.

Prosecutors then turned to actual sales, and brought out that of all the trading done on the Chicago Stock Exchange in the common stock of the Corporation Securities Co., purchases by two Insull companies accounted for 62 per cent and sales for another nine per cent.

GERMAN SYNOD DEFIES HITLER'S CHURCH RULE

Assails Reichsbishop Mueller and Asserts He Destroyed Constitution and Usurped Authority.

FACTION VIRTUALLY IN SECESSION

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Germany's Protestant church dictatorship under Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller was split wide open today by the uncompromising secession of the oppositional synod which asserted it had the support of 80 per cent of Protestant churchgoers.

With one exception the synod, under the presidency of Karl Koch, adopted a resolution setting itself up as the only true evangelical church and declaring Mueller's autocratic Nazi system had set up an "impossible papacy." Koch read a resolution in the form of a message to all evangelical churches of the Reich from the altar of a church in Saint Anne's, a suburb of Dahlen.

"A state of emergency has arisen," declared the message, "the church constituion has been destroyed and its executive organs exist no longer. Those who forcibly seized church power have placed themselves outside the pale.

Demands New Church Head.

"The present senate (synod) calls upon its council to appoint a new executive to carry on the affairs of the evangelical church. We call upon all congregations and all pastors to disregard further orders from the Reich's church and to recognize only those from the senate and its appointed organs."

The message declared Mueller's authority in having resorted to police in subjugating oppositional churches in Bavaria, Wurttemburg and Hesse had violated the basic principles of the church.

It charged that the Reich church under the slogan of "One state, one people, one church" had been delivered into the hands of worldly powers and that Mueller's rule had "erected an impossible papacy within the church."

In inflicting disciplinary penalties upon pastors who had followed in the steps of the Holy Writ, the message continued, the Reich church had claimed to possess the support of Chancellod Hitler, leading to the state of emergency.

Demands Government Recognition.

"We submit this declaration to the Reichs Government," said the message, "and ask it to take cognizance of the same. We demand from the Reichs Government that it shall recognize that in matters of church doctrine and order the church has sole jurisdiction under the supervisory powers of the state."

After Koch had read the message a short address was given to the deeply-impressed audience by Prof. Ludwig Schmitz of Munster, whom Mueller suspended last month. Schmitz emphasized that the church taced an exceedingly grave situation and prayed for Divine guidance.

The reaction of Chancellor Hitler's Government to this severe indictment was anxiously awaited. There was an unofficial report that Hitler already had conferred with high officials of the Nazi Government.

Opposition leaders professed to believe the Chancellor would repudiate Reichsbishop Mueller, or his co-dictator, Dr. August Jaeger, Prussian commissioner of Protestant churches, or both, but the feeling was not general.

PROSECUTOR ANDERSON IS SOMEWHAT BETTER

County Official Murderously Attacked, Still Has Intermittent Fever, However.

Improvement in the condition of C. Arthur Anderson, Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, was reported yesterday by surgeons at the County Hospital, where the prosecutor has been since the murderous attack made on him on a county highway the night of Oct. 9.

Anderson has been seriously ill with an infection in his left knee, the result of the compound fracture of his leg. One of the physicians said that Anderson was "holding his own a little better," though still having intermittent fever, and was showing cheerfulness.

WEDDING PARTY IN AUTO UPSET; ONE KILLED, 3 HURT

J. E. Trautwein Jr. Loses Life When Car Skids on Curve and Overturns Near Waterloo, Ill.

James E. Trautwein Jr., 2854 Victor street, a member of a wedding party, was killed and three other persons were injured when an automobile in which they were returning to St. Louis from Waterloo, Ill., skidded on a curve and turned over on Route 3, three miles north of Waterloo yesterday.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sisson, 1799 South Eighteenth street, who had just been married, and Miss Margaret Zimmerman, 1830 South Fourteenth street. Sisson, suffering from injuries to the head and the left wrist, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis. His wife, who formerly was Miss Eva Buchheit and Miss Zimmerman suffered minor injuries.

The accident occurred as the small coupe, with the four members of the party in the front seat, began making the second turn of an S-curve. The road was slippery from rain and as the car began to skid. Trautwein, who was drving, applied the brakes. The car left the road, plunged across a ditch, struck an embankment and turned over. All the occupants of the car were thrown out.

Trautwein was 27 years old, a painter and the son of a city fireman. Sisson is 29 years old and is employed in a mattress factory.

CENTURY OLD MENU SERVED IN MEMORY OF A ROYAL CHEF

English Food Society Reproduces Atmosphere of Regency at Dinner.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 20. — A banquet was given tonight in memory of the centenary of the death of Marie-Antoine Careme, chef of the Prince Regent, later George IV. (George IV died in 1830). The meal was the same as one which Careme laid before the regent and his guests. It was served in the house in which the Prince Regent then lived and, as nearly as possible, in the same manner.

The atmosphere of a century ago was revived not only to the extent that the same decorations of the Prince Regent's time were used and the same customs observed, but the waiters and toastmaster wore the same grey plush liveries.

There was only one concession to contemporary life. Snuff was available, though not compulsory, and cigars and cigarettes, which were unknown in the Prince Regent's days, were, as an official put it, "tolerated, but not approved."

The banquet which was given by the English Wine and Food Society formed a year ago as a part of their first annual conference, cost the guests $10 each. It was estimated that in the Prince Regent's time the bill would have been $80 a head.

Suffers Gash on Forehead When Thrown Against Side of Car; Returning From Steeplechase.

Miss Grizelda Polk, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Julius Polk, 28 Westmoreland place, was cut on the forehead yesterday evening when an automobile in which she was returning from the steeplechase at Huntleigh Downs skidded on the west pavement of Clayton road west of Price road, throwing her against the side of the car.

She was taken to St. Louis County Hospital. The driver, Crawford Leahy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Leahy, was not injured, nor were two occupants of the back seat, Miss Vera Angert and Morgan Bakewell.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—Flying through "rotten weather" with rain squalls and poor visibility, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and his navigator aid reported by radio tonight that they expected to reach Suva, Fiji Islands, at midnight (St. Louis time) but that they might have difficulty in finding the goal of their 1700-mile flight from Brisbane, Australia.

The message was received at 8:48 p. m. (St. Louis time). The local time of the South Pacific over which the plane was racing was midday Sunday.

At 10 p. m. this message, addressed to Suva, was picked up: "I can't receive, but I hope you can get me. Hope to arrive in two hours. If delayed, please arrange flares at Albert Park. Thank you. Cheerio."

Forty-five minutes earlier, a message said: "Still rain squalls, but if anything a little clearer. If only the visibility would increase. It is like shooting in the dark to find a place when you can only see a limited distance."

"All well now," the flyer reported later. "Weather much clearer. Half hour ago motor missed on one cylinder for five minutes due to heavy rain. Bill and I nearly had heart failure. OK now. Cheerio."

At 10:48 p. m. a message from the plane said: "Running into some bad weather but I think only local. Bill has just taken a quick sight through a hole in the clouds and fixes us 125 miles from land."

The plane was on a course little traveled by ships and sparsely dotted with coral atolls and islets formed by volcanic peaks. The flyers carried a small boat in case they were forced down.

Suva is the first stop on a projected flight of 7400 miles to Oakland, Cal., by way of Hoiolulu.

Messages from the plane Lady Southern Cross were relayed by the radio operator of the Steamer Monterey, bound from Auckland, N. Z., to Suva. At 7:22 p. m., Sir Charles reported:

"Passed New Caledonia. We flew over Noumea, circled the town and set a new course. Dense clouds over land necessitated blind flying for 20 minutes and climbing to 10,000 feet to break through. Now on top and off for Suva. Weather looks bad ahead. Will come down through. Cheerio O K."

Twenty-six minutes later, another message was received:

"Down at 1000. Bad visibility, but looks better ahead. Hope clears before Suva."

In an earlier message from 450 miles out of Brisbane, the flyer said: "Tell my wife I am fine, and not to worry."

When the plane circled Noumea it had traveled about 950 miles, and had averaged only about 121 miles an hour since leaving Brisbane, instead of the planned 200-mile speed. Presumably progress had

MOLLISONS ARE LEADING IN AIR RACE TO AUSTRALIA

Make Flight to Baghdad in 12 Hours, 40 Minutes and Take Off for Allahabad — Second British Plane Close Behind.

TWO DUTCH TEAMS THIRD AND FOURTH

By the Associated Press.

KARACHI, India, Oct. 21.—(Sunday)—The flying Mollinson's leaders in the London to Melbourne air race, landed at the military airdrome here at 4:53 a. m., Greenwich time.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(Sunday) — The Mollinsons, James and Amy, were speeding toward India from Baghdad early today with three teams close behind in the $50,000 London to Melbourne air race.

Of the 19 entries, 10 were spending the night on the ground from Rome westward and four were roughly between Rome and Athens.

In the second place as the 2300-mile leg from Baghdad to Allahabad was started came C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black, fellow Britishers. They left Baghdad only 45 minutes behind the Mollison husband and wife combination.

K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll of Holland trailed the pacesetters by slightly more than three hours. Fourth in order and approximately five hours behind in time were the second Dutch pair, G. J. Geysendorfer and D. L. Asjes. They departed from Baghdad at 12:45 a. m.

Americans Fifth to Arrive.

The fifth plane to arrive at Baghdad was an American ship with Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, the flyers. It landed at 2 a. m. They had taken off at Athens at 7 o'clock last night. They had encountered strong winds and dense fog in the flight from London but went straight through to Athens. British News Agency dispatches reported they had flown over Mont Blanc. They paused at Baghdad only 40 minutes before heading east six hours behind the Mollisons.

A piece of luck saved Scott and Black from elimination. They lost their bearings near Kirkuk and Scott brought the plane down on a small unlighted flying field. It proved to be a Royal Air Force station. The army flyers gave the racers 20 gallons of gasoline, enabling them to reach Baghdad.

Dutch Flyers in American Ship.

Parmentier and Moll of Holland, in their American (Douglas) machine, stopped 40 minutes at Aleppo, Syria, then dashed off in pursuit of the Mollisons and Scott. They landed at Baghdad at 11:11 p. m. and took off at midnight.

They were slightly more than three hours behind the pace-setting Mollisons and two hours and a half behind Scott and Black.

The city of the fabled flying carpet is the first control point in the international air race from London to Melbourne, the world's greatest race, for Melbourne is 12,000 miles from here and the flyers are trying to break the record of six days, 17 hours and 56 minutes established exactly one year ago yesterday.

Baghdad is still the crossroads for slow-plodding caravans crossing Asia, and thousands streamed over the long trails leading to the city to get a glimpse of the airplanes.

Only one machine out of 19 remained unreported, that of Cathcart Jones and Ken W. Waller, Britons, flying a plane just like that of the two leading entries.

Mr. and Mrs. Mollison, James and Amy, led their competitors all the way across Europe at a speed of 200 miles an hour and set their big British (De Havilland) airplane down at Baghdad, a distance of 2533 miles from Mildenhall, in 12 hours and 40 minutes.

Members of the British community and a huge crowd of Arabs cheered the Mollisons on their arrival at Baghdad and remained to bid them farewell as they took off for India. It was calculated they were 450 to 500 miles ahead of the two Dutchmen, Parmentier and Moll.

Mollison said the flight from Mildenhall to Baghdad presented many difficulties.

"We were obliged to fly at a great

ROOSEVELT URGES BROAD EDUCATION FOR CIVIC SERVICE

WILLIAM AND MARY AWARDS HIM DEGREE

Colleges Are Partners of Government, President Asserts—Views Restored Williamsburg, Va.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Oct. 20.—Three-hundred-year-old Williamsburg welcomed President Roosevelt today, showed him six years of progress in its tranformation back to a colonial community and heard him urge on rising generations the attainment of a broad education to fit them for the "change and development" of America.

Coming by special train from Roanoke, where he dedicated a new veterans' hospital yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt was cheered as he motored by scores of restored seventeenth and eighteenth century buildings.

With Gov. George C. Perry of Virginia, he received an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the 241-year-old College of William and Mary. The degree was conferred by John Stewart Bryan, Richmond publisher, who was inaugurated today as the nineteenth president of the college where Thomas Jefferson studied law in 1760.

Remarks On Education.

Accepting it, Mr. Roosevelt, wearing college cap and gown, praised the founders of the second oldest institution of learning in America for starting courses in law and the science of government. He asserted that while the Government and private enterprise would continue to utilize the services of specialists, there was a "definite place in American life—an important place—for broad, liberal and non-specialized education."

"Every form of co-operative endeavor cries out for men and women who, in their thinking processes, will know something of the broader aspects of any given problem," he said.

"Government is greatly using men and women of this type—people who have the non-specialized point of view and who at the same time have a general and extraordinarily comprehensive knowledge, not of the details, but of the progress and the purposes which underlie the work of the specialists themselves."

Opens Restored Street.

He also spoke in praise of the restoration, through the efforts of John D. Rockefeller Jr., of Williamsburg's original colonial buildings and streets.

This morning the President visited the old capitol and led a procession formally opening the restored Duke of Gloucester Street.

At the ceremony inaugurating Bryan, Roosevelt congratulated the new college head on the "opportunity of service that lies before you."

Referring to Jefferson, Mr. Roosevelt said: "It is entirely fitting that a statesman should have been also an educator. As education grows it becomes the partner of Government."

The study of law, he said, "becomes one of the greatest means for the broad education of men who enter every walk of life. It can become the touchstone of universal culture.

"Law in itself is not enough," he continued. "Man must build himself more broadly. The purpose of education, shown by the various subjects of instruction indicated by the builders of William and Mary was not to train specialists, but to educate men broadly. They were attempting to train not merely doctors, lawyers and business men, but broad-gauged men of the world. They were, in short, training men for citizenship in a great republic.

Avoidance of "Grooves."

"This was in the spirit of the old America, and it is, I believe, in the spirit of the America of today. The necessities of our time demand that men avoid being set in grooves, that they avoid the occupational pre-destination of the older world, and that in the face of the change and development in America, they must have a sufficiently broad and comprehensive conception of the world in which they live to meet its changing problems with resourcefulness and practical vision.

"There is in the spirit of a liberal education something of the self-confidence and the adaptability that is characteristic of our country. The pioneer does not call his life a failure if he comes to the end of one path. He knows that there are others, and with a sense of direction and a will to persevere, his life can go on with confidence into the uncertainties of the future.

"Republican institutions are, in the last analysis, the application to human affairs of those broad humane ideals that a liberal education preserves, enriches and expands in our beloved land," the President concluded.

He departed for Washington at 2 o'clock motoring to Yorktown to board the yacht Sequoia. He was accompanied by Admiral and Mrs. Grayson, and expected to reach Washington tomorrow afternoon.

For Informed Citizenship.

Bryan in his inaugural address, said the college's highest ambition would be to inspire students so that they will restore informed good citizenship to its proper place as the chief avocation of gentlemen.

Standing with bared head on the west portico of the old Main Building of the college through whose halls trod Washington, Jefferson, Mason, Wythe, Marshall, Monroe and others, President Bryan said he recalled the names of these William and Mary alumni, officers and teachers "not for self-laudation, but because they present an early parallel of exactly the same difficulties and problems which confront our nation today."

The Scholar In Politics.

"Such a principle is still active and it is ready and waiting for our use and service. That principle is the scholar in politics.

"The need is self evident and imperative.

"As we face the world's future today made dark by the complex forces of narrow nationalism, crushing debt, vast unemployment, imperfect distribution, and above all the universal incertitude that flows from the submergence of old landmarks, we, too, must deal with problems that hold for us as much of menace in their economies as slavery held for our grandfathers in its dramatic emotionalism."

Bryan who served as a member of the board of visitors until the death of President J. A. C. Chandler, outlined the part the college played in the revolutionary era of the Eighteenth Century, and again "as we Southerners believe," he said, "in the revolution of 1861." Now, he said, "The College of William and Mary must make herself worthy . . . of like direction in the third American revolution."

Mrs. Roosevelt changed her mind about motoring and after four and one-half hours sleep in the White House on her return from Philadelphia's Symphony opening, took a 7 o'clock plane for today's ceremonies here.

President Dedicates a Hospital

Reversing Direction of Flight He Made in 1928.

BRISBANE, Australia, Oct. 21 (Sunday). — Air Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith started across the Pacific at 4 a. m. today (noon Saturday, St. Louis time).

With him he carried an assistant, a pair of toothbrushes and 22 pounds of food in addition to wireless equipment. His assistant is Capt. P. G. Taylor, a skilled navigator.

His route will cover in reverse direction that of the flight he made with three companions in 1928, flying from Oakland, Cal., to Brisbane.

Sir Charles, Australia's No. 1 airman, had intended participating in the London-to-Melbourne race, but an accident to his plane prevented his reaching London within the time limit for entries. Almost immediately he announced his intention to fly the Pacific again.

He planned to reach Suva late this afternoon, leaving early Monday on the 3000-mile flight to Honolulu, second stage of the journey. He expected to arrive at Honolulu before nightfall Monday.

If all goes well he will be away again before dawn Tuesday. He thought he could make the jump from Honolulu to San Francisco before darkness fell over the coast that night—a distance of 2400 miles from Hawaii.

A representative of Sir Charles was at Suva, awaiting his arrival. The flyer expected to make arrangements by wireless to land at Honolulu, where fresh fuel and food will be waiting for him. He expected to maintain an average of 200 miles an hour in his American-built Lockheed plane.

Answering charges that he was trying to create a "counter-attraction" to the England-Australia air derby, Sir Charles pointed out that the time of his departure was fixed by the full moon, an important factor in a flight across the Pacific.

"In this flight, more difficult than the England-to-Australia air race, I will show that I am no squib," he said.

24-Hour Delay in Start.

He had intended departing yesterday morning, but a delay in adjusting his radio transmitter forced postponement for 24 hours.

Extra gasoline tanks, signal flares and special instruments were installed in the plane. He was equipped for a long float on the ocean should he be forced down.

On his previous flight in 1928 Sir Charles and his co-pilot and navigators covered the distance in 84 hours and 29 minutes' actual flying time. There was a 24-hour delay at Suva, where they had difficulty in picking up fuel, but otherwise the flight went as scheduled. On that trip Sir Charles used a Wright-motored Fokker monoplane.

Although the flying time was comparatively short, the trip occupied a week's time, with stops en route.

MEXICAN DEPUTIES VOTE TO EXPEL CHURCH OFFICIALS

Archbishop Diaz Calls Situation "Very Serious"—Government Party Would Stamp Out Opposition.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 20.—Pascual Diaz, Archbishop of the City of Mexico, who was reported to have gone into hiding because of the Government party's movement to expel high officials of the Catholic Church, was found tonight at a new residence. He pronounced the situation of the church in Mexico "very serious," but said no immediate action was contemplated by religious leaders. He said he had been informed by the Ministry of the Interior today that there was no order for his expulsion.

Archbishop Diaz denied he had issued a pastoral letter on the subject of Socialistic education, as has been alleged.

A plan of action designed to stamp out all opposition to the revolutionary government, suppress newspapers, and to form armed assault groups to contest "Catholic aggression" was formulated by the national (administration) party for the approval of President Rodriguez, who has not yet given any indication of his attitude.

Anti-Catholic Move.

The Chamber of Deputies of the Mexican Congress approved the plan last night by a unanimous vote. Deputies charged church officials were responsible for "rebellious and seditious agitation."

The plan includes a proposal to reform Article 3 of the Constitution and make Socialist education a state function. It is to be sent to the State Legislatures following its approval of the Mexican Senate.

Six daily newspapers published the capital would be affected by the proposed suppression, including La Prensa, El Hombre Libre, La Pallabra and El Omega, with suppression of Excelsior and El Universal probable in the near future.

For Armed "Assault Groups."

Armed assault groups of peasants and workers would be formed "to contest the aggression of student and Catholic elements."

All employes who do not sympathize with the revolution would be ousted from Government offices and a "Public Health Committee" would be appointed to determine the revolutionary antecedents of such employes. Members of the Knights of Columbus, Sisters of Mary, and other organizations would be barred from Government positions.

According to the plan to "purge" public offices, Federal and State employes would be forced to answer a questionnaire about their religious and political affiliations, and Catholics and others considered to be non-revolutionary would be dismissed.

States Expected to Adopt Plan.

Despite the opposition of students and religious elements throughout Mexico, two-thirds of the country's 29 State Legislatures are expected to approve the plan, after which it would immediately become a law.

The National Revolutionary Party will hold a conference Monday on the proposals of the Deputies, then submit the plan to President Rodriguez for his approval. The President is at Tehuacan today with Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, outstanding political figure behind the Government.

With the exception of the university, all schools in the country were functioning normally and the agitation apparently had ended—at least for the present—against the Government's religious attitude.

MOLLISONS LEAD, PASS BAGHDAD IN RACE TO MELBOURNE

height to avoid bad weather, but the machine behaved perfectly," Mollison said. "Once we were alarmed about our fuel supply, but investigation showed we had plenty to reach Baghdad."

Mrs. Mollison insisted on having a hot bath before meeting members of the Iraq Cabinet.

The number unreported was reduced to a single entry when word was received that Flight Lieutenant G. Shaw, British, had been forced to earth in his moth plane at San Feliu de Guixols, Spain.

Piloting a short range ship by himself Shaw apparently had lost his way heading for Marseilles. He planned to continue to the French seaport as soon as he could clear his plane through Spanish customs.

In the meantime Flying Officer C. G. Davies and Lieutenant Commander C. M. Hill, British, were flying from Rome toward Athens. A few minutes behind was Lieut. M. Hansen of Denmark, who also pointed his plane for Athens.

Some Planes Far Behind.

The planes which appeared to have been eliminated (barring accidents to the leaders) were:

1. Wesley Smith-Jacqueline Cochran, American flyers, forced down at Bucharest and out of the race.

2. U. L. Brook, England, down in France. He resumed flight but was forced to land second time at Istres, near Marseilles.

3. Capt. T. Neulle Stack and S. L. Turner, England, grounded at Abbeville, France, later reached Le Bourget Field, Paris.

4. Flying Officer U. D. Gilman, England, landed at Marseilles and was forced to dismantle engine for repairs.

5. Flight Lieut. G. Shaw, England, unreported until he sent a dispatch telling of a forced landing at San Felice de Guixols, Spain. When he gets permission to leave the country he will proceed to Marseilles.

7. R. Parer and G. E. Uensworth, New Guinea, who landed at Abbeville for repairs. They expect to resume their flight at dawn.

8. J. Woods-D. C. Bennett, Australia, who damaged their plane in landing at Athens and were forced to stay over night.

9. D. E. and K. G. Stodert, England, who spent the night in Rome.

10. J. D. Heurtt and C. E. Kay, New Zealand, who also spent the night in Rome.

Col. Fitsmaurice, disappointed in participation in the race because of a technical ruling limiting fuel load of his plane, took off for Croydon tonight with the intention of registering as a qualified observer in the race. In case his request is granted, he would leave Croydon Monday for Melbourne.

American Pair Forced to Land in Rumania; Nearly Crash.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 20.—Miss Jacqueline Cochran and Wesley Smith, American team in the London-to-Melbourne air race, made a forced landing here today and nearly crashed because of difficulty in reducing their plane's landing speed. A special wing flap refused to function.

Twice they attempted to land and abandoned the attempt. When the plane finally came down it rolled three-quarters of a mile, stopping only a few feet from a ditch. Miss Cochran's first act after leaving the field was to buy a dress and other accessories to replace her flying suit. She planned to return to London Tuesday in the same plane.

Fashionable Crowd At Bridlespur Races

Rain Disorganizes Box Parties — Smaller Entertainments Precede Annual Hunt Ball.

Thousands of fashionably attired St. Louisans and more than the usual number of out-of-town guests crowded the blue and white clubhouse and grandstands of Huntleigh Downs for the Bridlespur Hunt Club steeplechase races yesterday afternoon. Seven tallyhos and station wagons were drawn up smartly on the opposite side of the track, and hundreds of other guests, unable to obtain boxes or grandstand accommodations, crowded the rails at each side. The end of the program found bedraggled groups partly covered with useless raincoats, braving a rainstorm, their attire ruined, and others jammed under the stands or a thatched roof pavilion.

Box parties, well planned before the event, became disorganized, and hosts and hostesses tried vainly to find their guests under the many umbrellas and make-shift shelters. Tallyhos were left standing vacant as their occupants fled to cover, and many of those in the open stands departed for their cars on the run.

Bridlespur Hunt Club members and some of the visitors attended the breakfast at the club before the races, and went back last night for the hunt ball, an elaborate affair which annually opens the club's social activities. There were festivities all day. Luncheons, teas and cocktail parties were given in the homes of St. Louisans interested in steeplechase racing, most of them for those who had come to St. Louis especially for the day.

Tallyho Parties.

In the first tallyho, next to the entrance, were Sidney Maestre, president of the Bridlespur Hunt Club; Mrs. Maestre, Adolphus Busch III, who drove; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reisinger of New York who came for the occasion; Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bascom. In the second were Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Percy J. Orthwein and Tim Durant, who is their guest; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Flanigan and Mr. and Mrs. Caulkins, all of New York. On another coach was a party composed of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Krey, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. B. Preece, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weaver Candy, and Harry H. Langenberg Jr., who drove.

Mr. and Mrs. Trustin B. Boyd II, Miss Judith Gamble, Miss Martha Nicolaus, Allen T. West Jr., and William Tupper formed another coaching party, and Mr. and Mrs. Noar H. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Trinckwirth, and Mrs. Brinckwirth's debutante sister, Miss Mary Josephine Wagner, still another. Dr. and Mrs. Howard A. Rusk and Mr. and Mrs. Hart Vance Jr., were together in a station wagon.

Mr. Langenberg and Mr. Boyd take their coaching seriously and are members of a club called the Claytonshire Coaching Club, which last New Year's day took its inaugural trip on New Year's calls. Mr. Langenberg is the president, Mr. Boyd and Joseph Drew, vice-presidents, and Miss Gamble and Miss Nicolaus are members.

Veiled Prophet Queen Presents Cup

There were debutante guests at the races by the dozen. Miss Jane Wells, the reigning Veiled Prophet Queen, who presented the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup to the winner of the feature event, occupied a box with three of her special maids of honor—Miss Ruth Duhme, Miss Frances Bates and Miss Nancy Mitchell. Miss Blaire Boyle, Miss Gladys McRee and Miss Lois Burkham were in a box party near that of Miss Burkham's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Elzey G. Burkham. Miss Alice Sullivan was there with a party as were Miss Dorothy Dobson, Miss Mildred Webster, Miss Ellen Stokes and Miss Elizabeth Jones. Miss Betty Noland, Miss Virginia Burns and Miss Jane Fisher were with Jack Losse, and Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe was with his sister. Miss Jane, a second year girl, and a party of friends. Miss Katherine and Miss Adelaide Mahaffey were in another party.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hudson Barstow were in a box with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Behr of Chicago and their daughter, Miss Edith Margaret Behr, whose horse won the gold cup.

Another box party included Mr. and Mrs. Sharp Ezzell, Harry Ezzell, Miss Rose Muckerman and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Welch of Kansas City. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson entertained a party, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stephens.

Informal groups in the clubhouse and in the boxes included Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman, Mr. and Mrs. John Gates Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Williams Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Langenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Leicester Faust, Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Stifel, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Church Bixby.

Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser entertained Mrs. J. Mack Tanner of Springfield, Ill., and J. Mack Tracy in their box. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Maloy were in another party. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Moser had with them Mrs. Moser's brother-in-law and sister, Maj. and Mrs. James Murray, who were married recently in the east. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Scott Sharpe were host and hostess in a box party which included Paul Brown of New York, famous steeplechase artist.

Some of the Visitors.

Other out-of-town visitors were Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Nafziger and Charles Lugar, all of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis King, all of Memphis and Miss Sara and Miss Blanche Crump, attractive red haired twins from Memphis who are visiting Miss Louise Montague Stinde. Mr. and Mrs. Stinde had a box for them and occupied another with a party of their own friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Endres Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Myles D. Thurston and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forsythe Young were together; Mr. and Mrs. Wills Engle were with friends and Mr. and Mrs. David B. White had their daughter, Miss Suzanne, in their box.

Others who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sanford Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Kaltenbach, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Roberts Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William O. Schock, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mayne, Dr. and Mrs. Irving Boemer, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey P. Heath and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Gaupel. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Thurston had Mrs. Crawford Duncan and Harry Hawkins in their box party.

10,000 FILL CATHEDRAL FOR POINCARE FUNERAL

Other Thousands Gather Outside Notre Dame During Services for Wartime President.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Raymond Poincare, the last of France's great wartime statesmen, was paid the nation's highest honors today at a national funeral of sombre splendor. At the Pantheon and Church of Notre Dame members of the Government and the entire diplomatic corps gathered.

Tomorrow in a country churchyard he will be buried in the family cemetery at Nubecourt, where generations of Poincares lie, not far from the Franco-German border.

At the Pantheon, Poincare's own regiment, the Twenty-sixth Chausseurs, paraded past the body of the wartime President. At Notre Dame, the army's drums and bugles sounded a call "to the dead," the notes of which echoed and re-echoed through the historic church filled with 10,000 mourners.

Solid Rank of Soldiers.

In the great square before Notre Dame Cathedral, the misty air filled with incense, thousands of persons massed behind solid ranks of troops guarding the notables taking part in the ceremonies. With memories of the Marseilles assassinations still fresh, the police faced the crowd while soldiers stood at attention shoulder to shoulder.

A solemn requiem mass was celebrated inside the church, while greenish yellow flames burned in four urns mounted on high bronze pillars, the flickering light glinting from the helmets of the guard of honor.

The simple coffin was placed in the center, covered with the tricolor flag and surrounded by candles. Nearby were President Lebrun, Mme. Poincare, Prince Arsene of Yugoslavia and Prince Nicholas of Rumania.

As the huge congregation stood in silence, absolution was pronounced by Cardinal Binet, in the absence of Cardinal Verdier who attended the Eucharistic Congress at Buenos Aires.

Village Memorial Service.

At the burial tomorrow former Premier Herriot will represent the Government, and Monday the priest of Sampigny, where Poincare had his home, will officiate at memorial services in the village church.

Poincare's home at Sampigny, "Le Clos," was willed to his wife during her lifetime. After her death it is to become the property of the town and converted into a tubercular sanatorium.

SECRETARY TELLS OF MANY 'NIECES' OF NATHAN FRANK

Miss Sensenbrenner Gives Deposition in Nephew's Suit to Break Will Distributing $4,000,000.

WOMEN CHARGED CLOTHES TO HIM

Witness Says He Became Childish After Auto Accident in 1929—Lists Eccentricities.

Nathan Frank's acquaintance with a dozen young women was discussed by his private secretary yesterday in a deposition taken in the suit of Mark K. Frank, New York, to set aside his uncle's will disposing of a $4,000,000 estate, in which he was not mentioned.

The witness, Miss Estelle Sensenbrenner, was on the stand for the second consecutive day and will be heard again early tomorrow morning before the calling of the suit for trial in Circuit Court.

Frequently introducing these friends as his nieces, she testified, the 79-year-old lawyer and former Congressman would authorize them to charge merchandise to his accounts, but would revoke the authority from time to time, thus causing considerable confusion.

"Of all this money he gave away, did you ever hear of him helping a poor, old unattractive woman?" asked Daniel Bartlett, counsel for the contestant. "I never did," Miss Sensenbrenner replied. "Those he helped were rather well and gaily dressed, mostly nice and well groomed on the whole."

Four Women Have Filed Claims.

Four of the women mentioned in the examination of Miss Sensenbrenner have filed claims against the Frank estate for varying sums up to $500,000. The witness, herself who served as Frank's private secretary for four years until his death in 1931, has sued the Frank heirs for $85,000 she contends is due her because her employer failed to name her co-executor of his estate as he had promised.

Miss Sensenbrenner recalled that Frank knew Miss Claire DuBray, about 48 years old, a motion picture actress. "She and a companion accompanied Mr. Frank on a trip East," the witness said. "Mr. Frank gave her $250 to be used for expenses back to California in case anything happened to him. She wouldn't give the money back and he sued her."

Numerous "Nieces."

Frank had spoken to her about Mrs. Bernadine Marquis, Miss Sensenbrenner said in reply to a question. "She lived in New York," the witness said. "Mr. Frank had helped her get alimony from her husband. Yes, she lived at Mr. Frank's home for about a year and a half or more. Mr. Frank said she was his housekeeper. He sent her two children to Hosmer Hall to school. They took several trips together. She was about 33 or 34 years old.

"Yes, I knew Esther Ann Hank. She was about 35. She was just another friend.

"Sallie Ann Marshall, I believe her real name was Marian Styles, was about 24. She lived at Mr. Frank's house in 1929, I think it was. She stayed quite a while, attending Washington University for a time. There were several of these women he called his nieces and so introduced them, but told me privately they weren't his nieces.

"Miss Marshall or Miss Styles left rather suddenly. She was to go to New York with him and she told him she had an examination and couldn't. He was put out, but he left her money to buy a ticket and went on without her. She didn't have any exam, but had a party that night at Mr. Frank's home.

"Mr. Frank told me they had a 'rough-house,' a gin party, and fired one of the maids, broke up the dishes, drank his pre-war liquor and smashed his machine. He wrote her mother about it. She left right after she bought about $600 worth of clothes she charged to him."

The witness testified she had handled correspondence for Frank with a Miss Naomi Farris. She said she did not know Mrs. Ann Hamilton.

Mrs. Gladys Wood or Catania, she said, she had not met, but was told by Frank that she lived at his home. "He told me she was a little girl he was very much interested in. He said he was educating her and her child. He was disappointed in her marriage to a night club fellow. He frequently went to New York to see her and corresponded with her."

Edna Seegar, Miss Sensenbrenner recalled, "was a friend of his in Chicago. He sent her money, according to my recollection."

At luncheon, she said, Frank tucked a napkin under his chin like a bib. When he finished his grapefruit, she added, he squeezed the juice in a spoon.

Says He Became Childish.

She said Frank, after an automobile accident in 1929, became more childish and subject to "eccentric whims." He became unusually reminiscent, she said, often repeating stories of the important part he had played in the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. He became more and more susceptible to flattery, she said.

He entertained suspicions of his associates and believed that a curse had been visited upon two of them, who, he felt, had dealt unkindly with him.

Proposals that stimulated his vanity were always eagerly received and originated by him, Miss Sensenbrenner said.

"After he had sponsored the Nathan Frank bandstand in Forest Park opposite the Municipal Theater), he complained because is was seldom used," she testified. "He said people of St. Louis were unappreciative of what he had done. He decided to hold a Nathan Frank band competition, but dropped it when he learned of the expense involved.

Planned Aerial Good Will Tour.

"A music writer sold him a number called the Nathan Frank March. He had several copies printed. He planned to send an airplane around the world to stop at principal cities on a Nathan Frank Good Will Tour."

Deal for Synagogue.

"The very lucrative deal" made by Nathan Frank in selling property for the erection of a temple to Congregation Shaare Emeth, where he was a prominent member, was discussed.

Miss Sensenbrenner testified that Frank told her that Edwin B. Meissner, president of the congregation, negotiated the deal. "He said that Mr. Meissner swung a very lucrative deal for him," she testified. "He said that Mr. Meissner was trying to make him feel obligated for it." The property in University City was purchased from Frank by Temple Shaare Emeth in 1929 for about $165,000.

Later in her testimony, Miss Sensenbrenner said that Meissner, after Frank's death in 1931, advised her to stay on her job. "He said that in connection with the Congregation Shaare Emeth thing, it would be to my interest to stay there and not quit. That there would probably be some comment."

Describes Eccentricities.

Resuming a line of questioning directed at disclosing the alleged eccentricities of the ageing millionaire, Bartlett elicited from the witness that Frank always wore a red carnation in his buttonhole; that he never abandoned hope that he would be named to President Hoover's cabinet; that he had ordered a tomb, a year or two before his death; that he clipped newspaper articles discussing diabetes from which he suffered; corresponded with a physician who was experimenting with insulin in tablet form; behaved childishly at luncheon, and had a woman chauffeur, who was also his maid.

Conversation on Will.

Miss Ina C. Durand, Meissner's secretary at the St. Louis Car Co., of which he is president, testified that she had listened in during a telephone conversation between her employer and Miss Sensenbrenner. She said that Miss Sensenbrenner told Meissner that the Frank will had been drawn and asked if Meissner cared to see it before she returned to Frank's bedside at Jewish Hospital. Meissner declined, Miss Durand testified.

Miss Sensenbrenner, in her deposition, had said that Meissner had telephoned her the day a codicil to the will was drawn, and had asked to see the document.

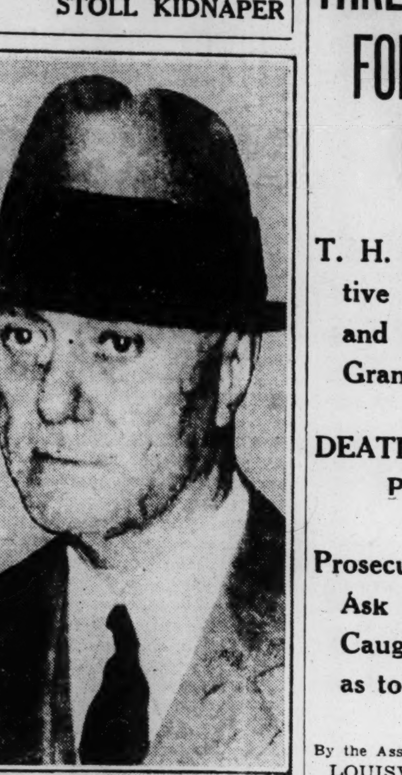
HELD AS AID OF STOLL KIDNAPER



THOMAS H. ROBINSON SR., charged with aiding in the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, is shown here after he pleaded not guilty and posted $25,000 bond in Nashville, Tenn. The elder Robinson was named intermediary by the kidnaper, believed to be his son, Thomas, now the object of a widespread hunt.

THREE INDICTED FOR KIDNAPING OF MRS. STOLL

DEATH PENALTY POSSIBLE FOR ALL

Prosecutor Says He Will Ask It for Abductor, if Caught, but Is Undecided as to Others.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20.—Indictments making legally possible the death penalty for Thomas H. Robinson Jr. and for his wife and father, were returned in Federal District Court here today, after Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll told the grand jury of the six days and nights she spent in a kidnaper's hiding place in Indianapolis.

The younger Robinson, a fugitive, sought throughout the country, was accused with his wife, Frances, and his father, Thomas H. Sr., of Nashville, of kidnaping Mrs. Stoll for $50,000 ransom.

United States District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks said the indictment made the extreme penalty possible for all three if the trial jury so recommended and the Court concurred.

"I will hold him without bond, if it can be done," said Federal District Judge Charles I. Dawson, referring to young Robinson, a former insane asylum inmate. Sparks told the Court the younger Robinson could legally be held without bond, if he were caught.

To Ask for Death Penalty.

Asked if he intended to press for the death penalty for young Robinson, Sparks replied, "I say unhesitatingly that I will do so."

Toward the other defendants, the wife, who is in jail here in default of $50,000 bond, and the father, free in Nashville, under $25,000 bail, he was more lenient.

"I don't know whether I'll ask for capital punishment for them or not yet," he said. "It depends on the proof. I do not intend at present to disturb their bail requirements."

Asked what kind of proof he could consider as supporting a demand for the death penalty for the others, Sparks replied: "Proof that she was not released unharmed." It has been repeatedly declared that Mrs. Stoll was slugged when she was kidnaped.

Mrs. Stoll Testifies.

Mrs. Stoll smiled as she walked down the corridor after leaving the grand jury room. She was not among the small crowd that heard the indictment read in court. Her husband, Berry V. Stoll, and her mother, Mrs. William Shallcross Speed, were with her.

Mrs. Speed conferred in chambers with Judge Dawson asking that no photographs be taken. Before Mrs. Stoll's appearance the Judge cleared the building of camera men.

Two Counts in Indictment.

The indictment contains two counts, one for the actual abduction and the other for conspiracy to kidnap.

Tonight a certified copy of the indictment was sent to Nashville to provide for the appearance of the elder Robinson here for pleading Another copy is here for service on the younger Robinson if he is caught.

"There has occurred in this community a very horrible crime," said the Judge in instructing the jury. "I refer of course to the kidnaping of Mrs. Stoll. There is no more heinous crime than kidnaping. Taking a person from his home and holding him in durance vile is horrible enough. But from the very nature of the circumstances members of the family in such cases often become accessories. They are compelled to repulse the efforts of officers to bring back their loved one. You gentlemen have been called to start the machinery of law into action at the earliest possible moment so that the guilty persons may be punished. I understand that it will be possible for you to complete your task in one day."

W. H. Tarvin was named foreman of the jury.

Testimony Unexpected.

The appearance of Mrs. Stoll came as a surprise. Sparks told reporters early in the day that she would not be called, explaining that the family servants, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler Woolet, and Federal agents, including Melvin H. Purvis, would supply the evidence.

A report was current that Judge Dawson directed that Mrs. Stoll be summoned in order that full information as to the interstate character of the offense be made available.

Although Mrs. Woolet witnessed the slugging and abduction there was no one available to tell of the confinement in Indiana other than Mrs. Stoll herself.

"I can't say anything about that," the Judge said when asked if he ordered Mrs. Stoll's appearance.

Prisoner Sees Parents.

In her dormitory in the Jefferson County Jail, Mrs. Robinson conferred with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Althauser, of Nashville.

Through counsel they announced their intention of calling on Frederic M. Sackett, former United States Senator, diplomat and uncle by marriage of Mrs. Stoll, for aid in freeing their imprisoned daughter.

Referring to Mrs. Robinson, Charles Embry, Nashville lawyer, who came north with the Althausers, said "she acted under his personal supervision and direction and we expected this man of honor to do his duty."

Sackett has conferred in Washington with Attorney-General Homer Cummings on the case.

Evidence Involving Kidnaper's Father and Wife.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — The Department of Justice said today that both the father and wife of T. H. Robinson Jr., kidnaper of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, knew where he was hiding before the ransom money left Nashville. The money was said to have been taken to Indianapolis by Mrs. Robinson prior to Mrs. Stoll's release.

The department reported a chart had been found following Mrs. Stoll's return, prepared by T. H. Robinson Sr., which showed by secret symbols the situation of the Indianapolis apartment where Mrs. Stoll was held prisoner. The chart was found by special agents of the Division of Investigation at Nashville.

Officials said that had the wife and father of the kidnaper given to the authorities the information in their possession, Mrs. Stoll would have been rescued earlier, the kidnaper captured and the $50,000 of ransom money would not have been paid.

ZIEGFELD "FOLLIES" BEAUTY WEDS PRODUCER ON STAGE

Nuptial Setting in Play Used as Background for Ceremony in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—With curtain, light and Lohengrin, Loretta Dennison, a Ziegfeld "Follies" beauty was married here today to Maurice Golden, New York theatrical producer.

For her wedding, Miss Dennison chose the stage set for the nuptial scene in the show. Fannie Brice attended the bride while Willie Howard, male star of the show, supported the groomsman. The bridesmaids were six Follies girls. Tonight Miss Dennison, who is 20 years old, performed once more as leader of the chorus, and then quit the show. The bridegroom brought five wedding rings—so the bride could take her choice.

FUND FOR ARREST OF PROSECUTOR'S ATTACKERS GROWS

Two Contributors Suggest Citizens Generally Should Be Asked to Donate to Reward.

While contributions to the reward fund of the St. Louis Bar Association for information on the murderous assault on Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County continued to come in yesterday, the association called on Federal, State, county and city officials for "aggressive action" to bring Anderson's three assailants to justice.

Two of the contributors to the fund suggested that citizens generally should be asked to donate to it, one of them expressing belief that 10,000 persons might give $1 each, establishing a reward which would be "irresistible" to any one having knowledge of the attack. Belief grew among Bar Association officers that the mounting reward —now $1254.50—would bring out tangible information, leading to conviction of the men.

Anderson, who is in serious condition at County Hospital, has said he could not identify the men nor the automobile with which they ran his machine off the road Oct. 9. A special committee of the Bar Association reported last week that the assault was "deliberate and premeditated."

Bar Sends Out Six Appeals.

Appeals for action were sent to Attorney-General Cummings of the United States, Gov. Park, Attorney-General McKittrick of Missouri, Sheriff Deuser of St. Louis County, Circuit Attorney Miller of the city and the city Police Board. They were signed by Kenneth Teasdale, president of the Bar Association, and James J. Seeley, secretary. The Governor and McKittrick already have expressed, through the press, willingness to aid in any way they could. Miller has contributed $50 from his official accounts to the Bar Association reward. The Governor previously had posted a separate $200 reward.

Copies of the detailed report of the special committee's investigation were sent to the various officials. The association's Executive Committee approved the report Tuesday and decided to call on the various governmental agencies for aid in convicting the assailants.

George L. Stemmler, Boatmen's Bank Building, treasurer of the association, is receiving contributions for the reward. Those received yesterday were: Paul Bakewell, patent lawyer, $100; Missouri Crime Prevention Bureau, $100; Samuel W. Fordyce, $25; Edwin W. Lee, $15; J. Lionberger Davis, Charles A. McCune Jr., Isaac H. Orr and the law firm of Boyle & Priest, $10 each; John Harlan, George C. Hitchcock, Gerald B. O'Reilly, Milton R. Stahl, Francis M. Curlee and George M. Hagee, $5 each; Vernon R. Wells, $2.50; George D. Markham and William Warren, $2 each; Hugo Spitzer and Russell V. Larkin, $1 each; anonymous donations, respectively, of $10 and $5.

Larkin sent his dollar in care of the Post-Dispatch, with a letter urging general public contributions. He said the fund was being raised too slowly and asserted that the attack on Anderson, coupled with the murder of John C. Johnson, important Negro witness in the Kelley kidnaping, constituted "the most serious matter with which the decent folks in this community have ever been confronted."

Suggests 10,000 Give $1 Each.

"If these hoodlums can get away with these tactics, we might as well go back to the 50s and each get an 'equalizer' and try to look out for ourselves.

"While Mr. Anderson is an attorney and efforts in his behalf are being handled by the Bar Association, I believe every citizen who values security should be allowed to participate, so I am sending $1, and fully believe that there should be at least 10,000 more who can well afford to contribute this much when they stop to think seriously about it. This matter should be attended to at once and the reward made large enough to be irresistible. It should be paid secretly to the informer, but given at least as much publicity as was awarded the late King Alexander, as it is far more important to us."

Attorney Bakewell's Letter.

Attorney Bakewell, in a letter to Stemmler, said:

"Last week I wrote to my friend, Walter H. Saunders, after reading his admirable letter in the Post-Dispatch about the dastardly attempt to kill our brother lawyer, that brave and capable man, C. Arthur Anderson. That those scoundrels did not kill Mr. Anderson was not their fault; they evidently intended to do so. Every one of that bunch of outlaws is of course equally guilty.

"It will be an everlasting disgrace to the State if all, or at least some of those dastards are not apprehended and brought to justice. There is little enough respect for law as matters now stand, but the administration of justice might as well close up shop, if a Prosecuting Attorney, for doing his duty in prosecuting criminals, is to be the victim of the criminal element.

"It seems to me that this is a matter which concerns all good citizens and that, therefore, the raising of a large fund for the conviction of the parties guilty should not be confined to the members of our profession, most of whom, like myself, are not wealthy men, but that all our good and loyal citizens, even from no higher motive than that of self-interest, should be appealed to, to contribute to this good cause, so as to make the amount raised a very substantial one.

"In any event, the arm of the law must be strengthened and, in view of Mr. Anderson's present condition, his able assistant should have all the help—and the best talent available—to help him immediately in his difficult and trying work."

AUTOMOBILE VICTIM

JAMES E. TRAUTWEIN, Jr.

Andrew Lupish, 44 years old, was shot above the left eye and in the jaw at 6:30 o'clock last night by his 16-year-old stepson, Mathway Bender, during an altercation which followed the stepson's refusal to carry a stove from the yard into their home at the foot of Madison street.

Taken to the North Market Street Police Station, Bender said Lupish was drunk and that he had shot him with a revolver he had knocked from the stepfather's hand. At City Hospital, Lupish said, however, that he had never seen the revolver and that Bender fired at him when he remonstrated with the stepson for refusing to help him carry the stove.

"When Mathway wouldn't bring the stove in I said, 'I've raised you for 16 years and that's the way you do me,' and then all of a sudden he pulled a gun out of his pocket and shot me," Lupish said. "He'd threatened me before, saying he'd get me if I didn't watch out."

Bender is a son of Lupish's wife, Mrs. Dora Lupish, by a former marriage.

Police quoted Bender as saying that Lupish came home drunk and asked him to unload the stove from a truck. Bender refused, he told police, saying "you're not my boss." Lupish then enlisted the aid of August Stuttgen, Bender's brother-in-law, and departed after getting the stove into the house, Bender related.

The dispute over the stove was renewed when Lupish returned a short time later and blew his breath in the stepson's face, according to Bender's statement to police. Bender told police he said "Don't do that—you're drunk," whereupon Lupish drew a revolver. Bender said he knocked the weapon from his stepfather's hand, shot at him, ran to the porch of the house and shot again.

Police quoted Bender as saying that the row was the culmination of a long series of disputes.

Bender told police he threw the revolver in the Mississippi River after the shooting.

Stuttgen said he heard the shots but did not witness the shooting and did not know who had the revolver.

COTTON CROP TO BE LIMITED NEXT YEAR

Producers Who Did Not Sign for 1934-35 to Be Given an Opportunity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The South's cotton growers were told today by Secretary Wallace that there would be a crop limitation program for the staple in 1935. Percentage of required acreage reduction and payment for curtailment were not revealed.

Although no decision has been made, indications are that planting of 31,000,000 acres will be the AAA goal for 1935 and that terms of payment will be similar to those this year.

The fact that an adjustment program for cotton would be continued in 1935 apparently has been taken for granted in the South. About the only disclosure in the announcement today was that producers who did not sign the 1934-35 contract would be given an opportunity to join next year's program.

The statement emphasized the announcement was not the formal proclamation required by the Cotton Act. This must be issued not later than Dec. 1. It will tell the farmer how many acres he is to retire and the pay.

One reason for the statement asserting there would be a voluntary adjustment program for 1935 was to prevent any misunderstanding between this plan and the Bankhead Cotton Control Act.

The latter measure, intended to limit cotton production through attacks on all sales above a specific quantity, will be effective next year only if two-thirds of the South's cotton growers vote in favor of its application in 1935.

The referendum on the Bankhead bill will be held soon and at the AAA it was feared that some producers might gain the impression they were voting on the voluntary program. There will be no referendum on the voluntary plan, since those who reduced this year are under contract to reduce in 1935.

OLD SUNDAY BLUE LAW TO BE ENFORCED IN SEATTLE

Court Order Brought About by Beer Parlor Operators Who Were Forced to Close.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Oct. 20.—City and county officials were ordered in a writ today to close theaters, football and baseball games, billiard and pool halls and food stores on Sundays.

The writ grew out of the resentment of beer parlor operators against enforcement of a 1909 "blue law," which has been acted on against them alone.

Prize-Winner at Flower Show

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

THE dahlia, "Dwight W. Morrow," received first award in its class at Shaw's Garden yesterday, in the display sponsored by the St. Louis Horticultural Society. KATHERINE GABRIEL of 3474 Giles avenue is holding the flower. The exhibition continues today.

Plentiful rainfall, days of sunshine and cool nights since the middle of August brewed "dahlia weather," made the number of exhibits at the fall flower show of the St. Louis Horticultural Society at Shaw's Garden, which opened yesterday, twice as many as ever before, and resulted in hundreds of flowers of fine form and condition.

All the available exhibitor's space was taken in nearly all of the 300 classes. The visitor, as he enters the Floral Display House, looks down on a huge center mass of red, bronze, white, yellow, cardinal, orange and pink patterns, made up of dahlias bordered by all shades of roses, annuals and perennials.

Results of the late favorable season are not alone shown in the dahlias, but also in other types of flowers. As expressed by George W. Pring, superintendent of the Garden, the display is "the best average of flowers shown here in recent years."

Dahlia 13½ Inches Across.

The award for the largest dahlia was given to Richard Kramske of Jefferson Barracks for his fine specimen of "Kathleen Norris," 13½ inches across and six inches deep, an informal decorative bloom with gracefully curving petals of deep pink. He also was given a first prize for an unnamed apricot-colored seedling of good form, about seven inches wide.

The bronze medal of the American Dahlia Society was awarded to Raymond Grass, 8110 Monroe avenue, Vinita Terrace, an amateur grower of less than 50 plants, whose blood-red bloom, named "Dwight W. Morrow," was chosen as the outstanding flower of the show on all points. It also is an informal decorative type, 12 inches wide and 7 inches deep.

Last year Grass won first prize of the show with a bloom from the same tuber, replanted this spring. He said he keeps his tubers in a box in the basement over winter, where the temperature is less than 50 degrees. He lines the box with paper and covers it to retain moisture in the tubers. The tubers are placed in the box upside down so that moisture in the stub of stem may drain out to prevent a rot from forming in the center of the tuber. He plants six inches deep, and deeps the earth well watered.

Takes Five First Prizes.

The winner of the most prizes in the amateur dahlia section was C. R. Leick, 448 North Clay avenue, Kirkwood. He won five firsts, two seconds and two thirds, with an outstanding collection of various types. The Ward Horticultural Co. won the sweepstakes ribbon for the best commercial display.

The best collection of 10 dahlias in the show also was exhibited by Grass. His basket included a cerise red, the "Dwight W. Morrow," a lavender pink, a cardinal, a fuchia red, a bluff-colored bloom, a scarlet and orange, and two coral-colored blooms, all of good size and form with sturdy stems.

An unusual type of "orchid seedling" dahlia, with incurved petals pointed like stars was awarded a first prize in the seedling class. They were exhibited by Mrs. William Brush. The colors were shades of red and cream.

Some of the other prize-winning dahlias were one-inch pompons exhibited by C. Y. Lucas of Webster Groves and E. H. Johanning of Webster Groves; 10 decoratives shown by F. H. Lammers of Ferguson; "satan," a fiery red, by Johanning; three semi-cactus, yellow, by Amelia Nicklaus; three incurved cactus, apricot color, by Lammers; a lavender duplex by Mrs. J. B. Gilbert; four 12-inch yellows by E. F. Nolte of Webster Groves; a white and red collarette group by L. A. Meyer, 5450 Arlington avenue; and a pink-tinged yellow straight cactus by Joseph J. Massek.

Other Flowers on Display.

Other fall flower sections included spring flowers that returned to bloom again under influence of favorable weather. Among them were canterbury bells and bird's foot violet. Cosmos, marigolds, the Inca flower, hardy chrysanthemums, nasturtiums and a wide variety of roses are on display. In this section Mrs. James F. Williams of Osage Hills won 10 firsts, four seconds and four thirds.

The show will be open today from 9 a. m. to sunset.

Utility Takes U. S. Bankruptcy Plea

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 20.—Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today declared the Consolidated Gas Utilities Co., a $26,000,000 corporation which has been in Federal receivership for nearly two years, a "debtor" under the new Federal bankruptcy law. He appointed Logan W. Cary, receiver o fthe company, as trustee and set his bond at $50,000. A bondholders' committee has prepared a reorganization plan.

HIRED GUNMEN KILLED CHICAGOAN, POLICE SAY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20. — A theory that Eli T. Daiches, advertising man, was killed for the $300,000 insurance policy on his life caused the State of Illinois to charge three men with his murder today.

The authorities who have been trying to solve the murder since it occurred last March, say they have proof that Irving Weitzman, bakery chain operator, hired gunmen to shoot Daiches, who had named as his insurance beneficiary the advertising firm headed by Weitzman's brother Louis of New York.

Weitzman was held today on a murder charge, and Assistant State's Attorney Crowley announced he would seek murder indictments Monday against him, James Murphy and Jack London. London is being sought. Murphy was jailed after he had told officers he and Jerry Pilot, alcohol dealer since killed, had trailed Daiches' limousine up the Lake Shore Drive last March 3 and that Pilot had fired a shotgun at Daiches.

"Motive, Was Money."

"The motive was money," Crowley stated, "a $300,000 insurance policy — with double indemnity. From the start we knew it was a bought and paid for job."

Weitzman denied complicity when he was confronted with a confession Crowley said Arthur Emblem, seized in Gary, Ind., had made from his cell.

Crowley quoted Emblem as saying the baker had offered him $1000 to kill Daiches in the fall of 1932.

"I'll pay you $15 a week to shadow this fellow," the confession quoted Weitzman, "and I'll give you $1000 if you'll get him out of the way. My brother has been having trouble with him. If he's knocked off, my brother expects to get his business."

First Attack Failed.

It shet forth that Emblem shadowed Daiches until Jan. 24, 1932, when he attacked him in his office, pounded him with a pistol until the handle broke and left him for dead. But Daiches survived.

Crowley said according to the statement Irving Weitzman gave Emblem $50 and the latter fled but returned in five months and Weitzman requested him to get Murphy and London to aid him.

The first important development came when Irving Weitzman was questioned Tuesday. Murphy was arrested and at length gave his version of the killing. Then Emblem was seized at Gary, Ind.

Attaches of the State's Attorney's office disclosed that the British Government had advised the State Department in Washington it was interested in the Case. Daiches' brother is a member of Parliament in England and his father is a prominent Rabbi there.

SKELETON OF CHILD, 20,000 YEARS OLD, FOUND IN FRANCE

Scientists Say It Is Apparently Magnificent Specimen of Neanderthal Type.

LIMOGES, France, Oct. 20.—The skeleton of a prehistoric child, estimated to be 20,000 years old, was discovered today in the Vezere valley.

Scientists said it was apparently a magnificent speciment of the Neanderthal type.

The mass of earth in which it had been encased was carefully extracted by diggers and carried to Lemoustier, where it awaits archeological experts, who will perform the delicate operation of cleaning and scraping the bones and preparing them for study.

The skull, which now is the only part visible, seemed to present all the characteristics of the Neanderthal man, scientists said.

RALPH KETTERING, PLAYRIGHT, SERIOUSLY INJURED IN CRASH

Writers' Taxicab Hits Auto Belonging to Newspaperman, in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Ralph Kettering, playright, writer, and clubman, was seriously injured in an automobile accident on the city's north side tonight.

Kettering suffered a skull fracture when the taxicab in which he was a passenger crashed into the rear of an automobile belonging to George Kiem, correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune. Kiem escaped injury.

Kettering is widely known in theatrical circles. Before taking up writing, he was usher, cashier and treasurer of the old Power's, Colonial and La Salle Theaters.

PACKED HOUSE HEARS OPERA 'LOHENGRIN'

Elizabeth Rethberg and Mario Chamlee Effective in Leading Roles.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

Any sophisticated young woman will bear witness to the fact that the pure hero is always a little stupid. Nevertheless Wagner's "Lohengrin" is still an irresistibly glamorous opera and the production at the Municipal Auditorium last night whipped up the pulse and touched the heart just as it has always done. The knight in shining armor, the innocent maiden in distress, the wicked conspirators and the stern but justice-loving king, are all the stylized figures of a supposedly obsolete romanticism. But they continue to have significance even in this age of confusion.

True, the fable of Lohengrin is expressed through the persuasive music of Richard Wagner. But the essence of the story is also in the music. One does not have to be reminded of Elsa's transcendental innocence after the orchestra has affirmed it so eloquently and Lohengrin's nobility of ancestry and strength of purpose are written into every bar he sings. For Wagner's descriptive powers are just as facile in "Lohengrin" as in his subsequent works even though his lyricism runs more freely in this one.

Rethberg and Chamlee.

The chief characters of the opera were portrayed last night by Elizabeth Rethberg, who was the saintly Elsa and Mario Chamlee who sang the role of Lohengrin. Miss Rethberg satisfied every requirement of the role. In voice and gesture she reflected the distress, the hope and ecstacy of the maiden pure in heart—but not so pure that could keep from breaking a promise. Once again she demonstrated the high artistic gift of being able to preserve all the sustained lyrical beauty of the music she sang while coloring it with the necessary dramatic significance.

Mr. Chamlee's "Lohengrin" was an equally effective synthesis of sense and sound. The role, after all, is much richer musically when sung by a tenor who can produce a good cantilena rather than by one who feels that Wagner is made to be declaimed rather than sung. One ssupects that the same would be true of all the Wagnerian tenor roles including both Siegfried and Tristan. Mr. Chamlee was in excellent voice and the dramatic impact of his role was cumulative right up to the climactic aria in which he revealed his identity.

Secondary Roles Well Sung.

The difficult role of Telramund was taken by Alfredo Galdolfi who was more than ordinarily successful with it. In a make-up that made him look like a slightly sinister version of Giotto's Dante and with a thorough mental grasp of his relationship to the plot and to the other characters he was also vocally flexible and resonant. His voice had a consistent dramatic vitality. Kathryn Meisle encompassed all the musical problems allotted to Ortrud and revealed, in the process a voice of power and resiliency. On the dramatic side she was something less than a convincing sorceress. Wilfred Engelman was an entirely satisfactory Herald but Louis d'Angelo was not quite up to the role of King Henry.

Ably Conducted.

In the face of rather disconcerting difficulties and with an orchestra that was too small in its string choir to do justice at all times to the richness of the score, Ernst Knoch, the conductor of the evening, nevertheless gave an authoritative reading of the whole opera. The chief difficulty he had to contend with was an inadequately trained chorus. Under a hand less firm the performance might have got into an embarrassing pass at several stages. But his directing power was so propulsive that the performance always kept its pace and the weak spots were glossed over with a minimum loss of in- [illegible] audience—the first standing only house of the fall season warmly responsive.

Head Announces Plan for Opera Season in April.

A plan for a third series of grand opera performances, next spring, in the Municipal Auditorium Opera House, was announced last night by Walter W. Head, chairman of the Grand Opera Founders, after the first act of last night's performance of "Lohengrin."

Last night's audience was the best in the six performances given thus far. He said:

"Because of the generous manner in which the two 1934 opera seasons have been supported, and with one of the world's finest opera houses, we believe grand opera in St. Louis has become a permanent institution.

"It is intended that a series of operas will be presented in April, 1935, after the close of the Metropolitan Opera season in New York. This will enable St. Louis again to avail itself of the greatest of the Metropolitan singers as guest artists and will guarantee the same high quality of opera which we have experienced."

WOMAN ACROBAT INJURED IN 20-FOOT FALL TO STAGE

By the Associated Press.

MERIDEN, Conn., Oct. 20.—Alice Barber, 26 years old, a member of a vaudeville acrobatic act known as the Renard Girls, was seriously injured late today when she fell 20 feet to the stage, at Poli's Theatre.

At a hospital it was said she had suffered a fractured spine.

The act's climax consists of the three girls gripping a revolving wheel-like apparatus with their teeth as their sole support. Miss Barber is believed to have bumped into a guide wire, causing her to lose her grip.

$9050 VERDICT FOR INJURY

Awarded to Woman Service Car Passenger.

A verdict of $9050 was returned by a jury in Circuit Judge Calhoun's court yesterday in favor of Miss Mildred Walsh, 5532 Natural Bridge avenue, a stenographer, against the United Service Car Co. and Frank Ceresia, 4031 De Tonty street.

Miss Walsh, who was a passenger in a service car driven by Ceresia, was injured when the car skidded against a post Feb. 9, 1933. She sued for $35,000. Leo F. Laughren, her attorney, contended both defendants were liable. They denied any negligence on their part. The accident occurred at Taylor and St. Louis avenues.

Overcome by Regrigerator Fumes.

Noel Lowther, 7607 Warwick drive, St. Louis County, a refigerator repair man, was overcome with sulphur gas fumes yesterday while repairing a refrigerator at 3901 Labadie avenue. Firemen of Engine Company 54 used an inhalator on Lowther for an hour and took him to City Hospital after he was revived.

FRAUD CHARGES TO CITY ELECTION BOARD TOMORROW

Non-Partisan Committee to Report Finding 6000 Names Improperly Registered in Nine Wards.

When election commissioners meet at 10 a. m. tomorrow to receive complaints of alleged registration frauds from any source, the Non-Partisan Honest Election Committee will report that its recent canvass of 60 precincts in nine wards showed about 6000 names improperly registered.

The canvass was made in the 15 precincts of the Fourth Ward, the 13 precincts of the Fifth Ward, the 15 precincts of the Sixth Ward and in 17 precincts of the Seventh, Eighth, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Twentieth Wards, according to the committee.

Miss Emma J. Bobb, secretary of the committee and former chairman of the Election Board, said last night that a majority of the 6000 names were of persons not found at addresses listed. Others were of dead persons and of persons registered from vacant houses and vacant lots, she said. The canvassers were 75 selected men furnished by employment bureaus of charitable agencies.

Charles L. Moore, secretary of the Election Board, said yesterday that all complaints would be investigated promptly.

As has been told, the Non-Partisan Honest Election Committee has discovered a number of alleged irregularities in the registration lists. Among the mis the report that 13 voters are listed from six vacant lots in the Fourth Ward, the political stronghold of Justice of the Peace Jimmie Miller, Democratic City Committeeman of the ward.

'58 Pct. of Officials Changed.'

The Non-Partisan Honest Election Committee issued a statement yesterday that about 58 per cent of the election judges and clerks in the Fifth Justice of the Peace District were changed when the present Election Board took office last year. A total of 102 of the 144 judges and clerks in this district have been suspended by the Election Board as the result of irregularities discovered in a recount of the votes in connection with contests filed in the Republican races for the nominations for Justice of the Peace and Constable in the primary election Aug. 7.

A grand jury investigation of the vote cast in the Fifteenth Precinct of the Fourth Ward has been delayed by a temporary writ of prohibition filed with the State Supreme Court to prevent the grand jury from examining these ballots. Yesterday, Circuit Attorney Miller asked the Supreme Curt to dismiss the application for a permanent writ which was filed in behalf of William Dengel, 2802½ Cass avenue, a voter in the precinct, to preserve the secrecy of his ballot. The temporary writ was issued by Chief Justice Frank, Oct. 11, directed against Circuit Judge Hartmann, who issued the order for the production of the ballots and other election data before the grand jury.

Statement by Committee.

In connection with the judges and clerks in the Fifth District, the Non-Partisan Honest Election Committee also pointed out in its statement yesterday that in many instances judges and clerks served so short a time in various precincts of the district that they had no chance to become familiar with conditions in those precincts, thereby hampering their efficiency in conducting registrations and elections.

"When judges and clerks become familiar with their precincts and know the residents," the statement said, "their service is of far greater value and irregularities cannot be so readily perpetrated, but at the August primary it is singular to note that 43 of the election officials in this district were serving in precincts where they were not familiar with conditions.

"To become familiar with conditions, it is most desirable that an official serve at least during the registration or canvass, and then at the following election. This was not done by the Election Board, for there are eight regular officials who served in August only, seven officials commissioned by the present board who served only in August, 16 temporary officials who served only in August and eight of those transferred from other precincts who served only in August.

"Then there were four officials who had commissions to serve in certain precincts of the Fifth District who were transferred to precincts not in the district, and it would be most interesting to interview these people and find out what they have to say about their being transferred.

Transfers Are Questioned.

"In one precinct two men who were transferred live in parts of the city far removed from the ward in which they served and could not be swayed by local opinions and conditions—why were they taken out and transferred to other precincts of the same ward? In another precinct of another ward a man was taken from a precinct not in the district and transferred to a precinct in the district and in which he served for June only and then was transferred again to another district.

"In another precinct a woman held a commission in a precinct in the Fifth District and was moved for the August primary to a precinct out of the district. We should like to know why."

As to the changes in the personnel of judges and clerks in the district since the present Election Board took office, the statement said:

"There are a total of 144 judges and clerks in this district, comprising parts of the Fourth, Fifth, Nineteenth and Twentieth Wards, and of that total 27 Democrats and 34 Republicans were commissioned by the former Election Board (serving in 1932), or a total of but 61 judges and clerks of the total, a change of approximately 53 per cent.

"The 58 per cent change is accounted for in this manner: 27 new Democrats were appointed and eight new Republicans. Fifteen Democrats and 18 Republicans were given temporary appointments and three Democrats and 12 Republicans were transferred.

"Temporary commissions have not been issued in such large numbers in the past. They were issued then in the most part only for reasons of illness, death in the family or vacations or emergency trips and rarely totaled as many as 50 in the 670 voting precincts in the city for one day of service, whereas in this instance 33 temporary appointments were made for 24 precincts."

Circuit Attorney's Plea.

In connection with his request that the application for a permanent writ restraining the grand jury from examining ballot boxes in the district be dismissed, the Circuit Attorney said:

"This case is of special importance in that the orderly processes of our Circuit Court in the investigation by the present grand jury of crimes alleged to have been committed against the ballot in the recent primary election have been obstructed and delayed without any substantial reason for such action. Hence, these counter suggestions are served upon relator's (Dengel's) counsel and are now filed with a prayer that upon consideration by this court, the application be denied and the proceedings dismissed at relator's cost."

Miller cited Section Three, Article Eight of the Missouri Constitution which, he said, clearly justified the use of the ballots and election records in that it authorized examination of such records in election contests, grand jury investigations and in civil and criminal law suits. He was not required to file his request until next Saturday, five days after the date on which Dengel's counsel must file suggestions to the court. He said he filed his request to expedite the proceeding.

Defense Will Ask for Month's Delay—Close Guard Over Prisoner.

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Oct. 20.—Bruno Hauptmann is closely guarded in jail here, where he is awaiting trial on a charge of the murder of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. His wife and his lawyer, James M. Fawcett of New York, visited him this afternoon.

The calm the prisoner showed in New York disappeared after his transfer to the Hunterdon County jail last night from the Bronx. He slept fitfully and ate little.

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz has called a conference of his assistants at Trenton for Monday to complete preparations for Hauptmann's arraignment, which will take place probably the middle of next week.

Defense to Seek Delay.

Fawcett asked the Attorney-General to notify him of the date of arraignment. Fawcett said he would ask for a delay of a month or five weeks after arraignment to prepare his defense.

When Hauptmann's appeal against extradition was denied last night by the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court, permission was denied Fawcett to introduce new witnesses at that hearing. He told the court these witnesses would show Hauptmann was working on a hotel the day of the Lindbergh kidnaping, March 1, 1932.

Under Rigid Guard.

Hauptmann's request for newspapers was refused by the Hunterdon County Sheriff, who continued precautions begun in the Bronx jail after Hauptmann fashioned a makeshift knife from a spoon.

Hauptmann wears no belt, necktie or shoe laces and he is fed from paper plates and cups with paper spoons.

Two State troopers and a Deputy Sheriff remain in the cell block with him. He is the only prisoner in the tier, the others having been assigned to other parts of the jail.

The "bull pen" in which he is allowed to walk is 30 feet long and four feet wide. A guard stands at each end when the prisoner paces the enclosure. When he is in his cell, they stand in front of the open door. Officers plan to fasten a tight mesh screen over the "bull pen" to prevent anyone from passing a weapon to Hauptmann.

The guards work in six-hour details, arranged so that fresh men would be on duty all the time, Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of the State police, said.

FORMER MICHIGAN GOVERNOR CRITICISES CHAIN NEWSPAPERS

By the Associated Press.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Oct. 20.—Chase S. Osborne, former Governor of Michigan, told a group of journalists here tonight that the "press is the greatest weapon in the world," and said he believed "too much newspaper power in a few hands is a menace to the country."

Addressing the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the founding of Sigma Delta Chi, the former Michigan Governor suggested a law forbidding ownership of more than one newspaper by any one person or company. Sigma Delta Chi is a national journalistic fraternity composed of college students and active newspaper men.

"When we return to the individual ownership of newspapers," he said, "the weekly and daily journal will again be a real guardian of the people's rights. The protection of the public and the dignity of the press will be increased."

Chain ownership, he said, encourages two forms of selfish purposes—one where editorial policy might bow to the business office, and the other a "tendency to enslave large blocks of the press to an individual's purely personal biases and to motives that may be questionable and dangerous."

YUGOSLAVIAN CABINET QUITS; COURT'S MARSHAL DISMISSED

Regency to Choose New Ministers; Official Criticised After King's Death.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 20.—The resignation of the cabinet today was followed by the dismissal of the Marshal of the Court, Gen. Alexander Dimitrieric. He went to Marseilles several days before the arrival of King Alexander to supervise safety measures, and had been blamed for their breakdown. He returned with the body of the assassinated King, but failed to make a public appearance afterward and did not attend the funeral. His resignation was said to have been demanded by Queen Marie.

The resignation of the cabinet of Premier Nikola Uzunovich, announced late in the day, was to allow the regency to choose a new cabinet. It was disclosed today that King Alexander left a fortune valued at nearly $10,000,000.

KILLED IN ROW

MRS. OUIDA HARNED MORAN.

WOMAN KILLED IN FALL DURING ROW AT INN

Mrs. Ouida Harned Moran, 39-year-old divorcee, was killed in a fall downstairs at the Blue Lantern Inn, 24 North Commercial street, at 4 a. m. yesterday. Her head struck the concrete basement floor.

Edward J. Lyons, proprietor, who was booked for the Coroner, told police that Mrs. Moran and her former husband, Charles, a movie operator, of 4330 McPherson avenue, had an argument because Moran left her at a table and went to the bar in the basement. Lyons asked them to leave, and called in Alvin Meloy, a taxi driver, to take them home.

Mrs. Moran, after walking part way up the stairs leading to the first floor, refused to go farther and sat down. Witnesses said Moran pulled her to her feet, but she broke away and lunged at Meloy, who was assisting her. She lost her balance and toppled down 11 steps to the floor. She died of a fractured skull on the way to City Hospital. Moran was examined at the hospital and pronounced intoxicated, police state.

Mrs. Moran resided at 3734 Washington boulevard with her daughter, Miss Charlotta Moran.

SAYS WIFE WOULDN'T MOVE TO ST. LOUIS, SEEKS DIVORCE

Suit for divorce was filed yesterday by William J. Conradi, 3256 Nebraska avenue, a building contractor, against Mrs. Hazel Manley Conradi of Union City, Tenn.

They were married in 1923 at Springfield, Ill., and for a time lived in Union City. Conradi contends she declined to come with him to this city in January, 1931, since when they have lived apart.

His attorney, King G. McElroy, said Mrs. Conradi was a writer of biographical studies of famous Tennesseans. She probably will enter an appearance and file a general denial, the attorney said.

USE POWDER

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER
- 100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste
- Contains No Grit or Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
- Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

POWDER CLEANS AND WHITENS TEETH—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

MRS. C. F. DREW FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Bessie Barnett Drew, who died Friday following an operation for a kidney ailment, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Louis Cathedral Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue.

Mrs. Drew, the widow of Charles F. Drew, an official of the Rock Island lines, was 75 years old and resided at 4337 Maryland avenue. She was a sister of the late Tom and George Barnett, prominent St. Louis architects. Surviving are a son, Frederick Drew of Ludington, Mich., a nephew, George D. Barnett, of Ladue Village, and a niece, Mrs. B. G. Rudd, of Webster Groves.

SECOND TYPHOON NEAR MANILA

Luzon and Mindoro Islands Reported Hard Hit.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Oct. 21 (Sunday).—A typhoon roared south of Manila early today and was believed to have struck the Southern part of Luzon Island, on which Manila is situated, and in the large island of Mindoro. There was only a drizzle, with gusty winds in Manila.

The typhoon followed one Tuesday which took 87 lives, made 21,000 homeless and did heavy property damage. Provinces south of Manila which were hit by today's gale were among the seven which suffered in the tempest a few days ago. With communications still disabled by the previous storm, the first report of today's typhoon came from Naga, capital of Camarine Sur, which was hard hit and flooded.

HEAD OF LEGION TELLS OF FIGHT AGAINST RADICALS

Commander Hayes in Annual Report Preceding Convention Assails Communists and Pacifists.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 20.—Radical, Pacifist and Communist groups who are engaged in disseminating "poisonous propaganda" have been dealt "direct blows" by the American Legion's Americanism program, Commander Edward A. Hayes said in his annual report, made public tonight in advance of the opening or the organization's four-day convention here.

"Throughout the year every effort has been extended by the Americanism Commission to combat the ever-increasing inroads of the radical and subversive groups," declared the retiring commander. The report touched upon various phases of the legion's activities and reviewed its progress.

Thousands of Legionnaires from all sections of the country and some from abroad settled down to a week-end of fun in this flag-draped city before the opening of the convention Monday.

St. Louis has made the strongest bid so far for next year's convention and stands an excellent chance of being selected, many delegates think. Other cities which have extended bids are Atlantic City, Cleveland and Los Angeles.

Assails Radicalism in Schools.

Declaring that high schools, colleges and universities, and in some instances religious groups, have been "caught in a web of un-American propaganda which is being woven by radical agitators," Hayes' report said the Americanism Commission has centered its counter attack upon the schools.

"Consequently, this year the legion has placed a greater number of speakers in educational institutions than ever before," the report stated. "These speakers have emphasized the need of a reawakening of the old-fashioned patriotism and Americanism. One of the greatesa patriotic endeavors ever carried forward to a successful conclusion was the observance of Constitution day and week."

Commander Hayes called attention to the work of the legion, in co-operating with other organizations in keeping schools open last fall when he said the nation was faced with a real crisis. At that time he estimated that 3,000,000 school children were "threatened with loss of educational advantages" due to "drastically reduced school budgets."

Aid for Veterans' Families.

He said the alleviation of distress of families and children of veterans was continued through the year as a major problem. During that time $722,798 was distributed in direct financial emergency aid. The relief went to 212,085 children, representing 65,074 families.

Discussing legion legislation, Commander Hayes said he was "pleased to report that instead of increased handicaps being placed upon our service-connected disabled comrades, the recent session of Congress restored the major part of the benefits taken from them by the Economy Act of March, 1933."

"Consideration of our universal service legislation was successfully advanced," he declared, "so that it will unquestionably become one of the paramount issues of the next session of Congress."

In regard to rehabilitation, the national commander said that "the greater part of the four-point program committed to your officers last year by mandate of the Chicago convention has been enacted into law. Concretely, the result of the legislation sponsored by the legion, insofar as it related to the rehabilitation program, returned thousands of actually disabled men to the compensation status they enjoyed under laws in effect prior to the passage of the Economy Act, at an increase in the appropriation of $30,903,000.

Fought Insurance Ruling.

"The status of these disabled was definitely settled for all time, as was the status of the so-called presumptives, so that there will be no dispute relative to the actually service-connected in the future. Other problems are found in the provisions of the economy act which attempted to cancel the right of a policy holder to sue on all war risk or yearly renewable term policies. This abortive effort has been declared unconstitutional.

Reporting on legion finances, Commander Hayes said an audit discloses that the year ended July 31, 1934, closed with balance over expenses of $48,099 compared with what he described as a deficit of $79.994 on the same date a year ago.

Hayes said the total membership was 827,851 on Oct. 10.

Hayes, in a statement today, assailed the American Veterans' Association as a "fly-by-night' and warned Legionnaires to "beware of false prophets." He criticised formation of the Veterans' Association as an "old trick" designed to split the strength of the legion and declared "it admittedly has but one aim—to prevent benefits to the disabled."

Scottsboro-Mooney Demonstration.

A group of 18 or 20 Negroes and whites marched up and down Olive street in front of the Federal Building yesterday bearing banners demanding the release of "the Scottsboro boys," and directing President Roosevelt to "release Mooney."

DALLAS WIFE GETS 5 YEARS FOR KILLING OTHER WOMAN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 20.—Mrs. Mary Boone, 35 years old, who killed Mrs. Pearl Hall, her rival for the affections of L. W. Boone, her husband, today faced a five-year term in State prison. She was found guilty by a jury in District Court last night of murder without malice.

Mrs. Boone admitted shooting Mrs. Hall, but testified she feared Mrs. Hall was about to attack her.

The shooting occurred several months ago in the Boone apartment. Mrs. Boone, with a woman friend, had gone to Mrs. Hall's apartment and under the pretext they were friends of Boone, and Boone wanted to see Mrs. Hall, got her to go with them. When they arrived at the Boone home Mrs. Boone took Mrs. Hall into her husband's bed room, wakened him, and after a few words had been exchanged shot Mrs. Hall. Boone admitted on the witness stand having conducted an illicit relationship with Mrs. Hall.

Just before the verdict was returned Judge Noland G. Williams was advised that threats had been made against Mrs. Boone by friends of Mrs. Hall in case a guilty verdict was not returned. The Court ordered special precautions taken to protect the defendant. She wept when the verdict was read.

YOUTH IN THIRD TRIAL RECEIVES LIFE SENTENCE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 20.—Walter Reppin, Newark, N. J., slayer of a Colorado Springs taxicab driver, must spend the rest of his life in prison, a jury decided here tonight.

Reppin was once sentenced to die in the lethal gas chamber for the murder of Vincent Regan, Colorado College student and taxicab driver, but won a new trial. On his second tried the jury disagreed.

His third trial began early this week and the jury received the case late Friday.

Reppin is now nearly 20 years old. He was 18 when he killed Regan in a robbery.

DR. ARTHUR STOCKHOFF DIES

Funeral Services for Dentist to Be Held Tuesday.

MISS GLADYS MILLER CHOSEN QUEEN OF EAST SIDE PAGEANT

Coronation Tomorrow Night Will Follow Parade; Maids of Honor Announced.

Miss Gladys June Miller, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Miller, 1909 North Seventeenth street, East St. Louis, was chosen queen last night for the East St. Louis Pageant of Progress which will be held this week at Ainad Temple, Sixth street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis.

Miss Miller will be crowned tomorrow night at the temple following a parade through downtown streets. Her maids of honor will be Helen Mae Keller, Helen Virginia Collins, Marguerite Finke, Margaret C. Avault, Rose Ritter and Jeanne Marie Mathes.

The pageant will continue through Saturday. Each night there will be a pageant depicting American music in which a chorus of 150 singers and 75 dancers will take part. There will also be vaudeville and style shows and Saturday night there will be a wedding at which the bride and groom will receive gifts from retail merchants.

St. Louisan Named in Code Post.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—William K. Norris, president of the McQuay-Norris Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, was named a director of the Code Authority of the automotive parts and equipment manufacturing industry, it was announced today at the NRA. Seven other directors also were appointed.

EPISCOPAL BISHOPS FAVOR BIRTH CONTROL

Resolution Carries 44 to 38—Setback Given Move to Create Archbishop.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 20.—The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church today indorsed freedom for hospitals, physicians and clinics to disseminate birth control information.

Meanwhile a move which would result in creation in fact, but not in name, of an Archbishop of the church, met a setback in the House of Deputies, composed of laymen and clergy. A resolution to extend to life the term of office of the presiding Bishop, who now serves six years, was defeated after a long discussion. Observers considered this an indication of the failure of the program, proposed by the joint commission on status and work of the presiding bishop, which would relieve the presiding Bishop of administration of his original diocese and create a primatial see for his residence. The House of Bishops indorsed the committee's program.

Cincinnati was chosen as the place for the 1937 convention by vote of both houses. A resolution setting adjournment of the current convention sine die at noon on Tuesday was also accepted.

A report declaring that the church is at a low ebb spiritually, was submitted by the Committee on the State of the Church. The social order, the report said, has "retrogressed to paganism" and the church has tended too largely to develop "ecclesiastical machinery."

The House of Bishops declined to confirm as one of their number the Right Rev. John Torok of Eau Claire, Wis. Bishop Torok is an ordained clergyman of the church, but was consecrated a Bishop of the Eastern Orthodox Church at Vienna, in 1924. He was elected recently as Suffragan Bishop by the Diocese of Eau Claire.

Birth Control Debate.

The vote on the birth control measure was close, 44 to 38, with Bishop Paul Matthews of New Jersey, leading the opposition. At one point, when a motion to limit debate was proposed, Bishop Matthews threatened "to leave this House forever."

The motion was withdrawn and Bishop Matthews stated his opposition to the resolution which, in effect, he said, "would indorse birth control." "When the people of the church believe their moral leadership has gone so far astray as to indorse a plan to corrupt youth and promote promiscuity, I fear they may look for moral leadership elsewhere," he said.

The resolution, offered by Bishop S. Arthur Huston of Olympia, Wash., declares:

"We indorse the efforts now being made to secure for licensed physicians, hospitals and medical clinics, freedom to convey such information as is in accord with the highest principles of engenics and a more wholesome family life, wherein parenthood may be undertaken with due respect for the health of mothers and the welfare of their children."

Women Nominated.

Four women were nominated by the Episcopal Women's Auxiliary to the Episcopal National Council. This is the first time women have had representation on the council. The nominees, who will be elected by the triennial general convention now in session, are: Mrs. James R. Cain, Columbia, S. C.; Eva D. Corey, Brookline, Mass.; Rebekah L. Hibbard, Pasadena, Cal., and Elizabeth Matthews, Glendale, O.

Ordered to Rehire 19 Employes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — The National Labor Relations Board ruled today that the Chicago Defender, a Negro weekly newspaper, had violated the collective bargaining clause of the Recovery Act in summarily dismissing its 19 union workers, three of whom were Negroes. Holding that the company's "controlling motive in the extraordinary action" was to save money, the board ordered the firm to rehire the workers and reimburse them for lost time.

DEMOCRATS TAKE OVER U. S. COURT IN CHINA

Feltham Watson, W. T. Collins, St. Louisans, Prosecutor and Clerk.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 20.—It took more than a year for the Democratic administration at Washington to get around to changing the political complexion of the United States court for China, the only tribunal of its kind.

Since the time of President Harding Republicans have held the posts, but today Uncle Sam's judicial outpost is Democratic, from the presiding judge to the humble coolie who dusts the benches.

Milton J. Helmick of Albuquerque, N. M., is the new judge. He will hold office for 10 years at a salary of $8000. He succeeds Judge Milton J. Purdy of Minneapolis and is the fifth incumbent since the court was established in 1906.

The court, by virtue of an agreement with the Chinese Government, has jurisdiction over all cases, civil or criminal, in which Americans are defendants. Plaintiffs or complainants may be of any nationality American law rules. The court's headquarters are in Shanghai but it holds regular terms at Tientsin, Canton and Hankow.

One of Judge Helmick's first decision thrust him sharply into prominence. He refused to permit an American to collect 12 per cent interest on a mortgage, holding that 8 per cent was the maximum legal rate. As interests rates in China are uniformly higher than 8 per cent, many American business houses assert that most of their contracts have been invalidated by the decision.

Judge Helmick's first step as head of the court was toward economy. He combined the posts of court reporter and secretary to the judge. Miss Helen Wiley, Albuquerque, was named to the position.

Feltham Watson of St. Louis is the new district attorney of Shanghai. He is only 32 years old and succeeds Dr. George Sellett of Kangley, Ill.

W. T. Collins, also of St. Louis, takes the place of James M. Howes of Portland, Ore., as clerk of court with L. T. Kenake as assistant. The new United States Marshal is Edward L. Faupel, a Los Angeles business man, who succeeds Thurston R. Porter, a Harding appointee.

Mrs. John D. Sherman Hurt by Bus

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The condition of Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman of Denver and Washington was reported serious at the hospital where she was taken today after being struck by a bus at a street intersection here. Mrs. Sherman, who is 70, is a past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Sherman is suffering from concussion and a possible skull fracture.

SCIENTIST PROVES DODGE EASIER RIDING, LESS TIRING!

Dr. Andrew H. Ryan, of Chicago, discovers scientific way to measure "auto-fatigue." Tests prove the new Dodge easier riding, 54% to 65% less fatiguing to drive.

TWENTY million motor cars jam the highways of America. Endless traffic sets up hazards. High speeds and long distances are the order of the day. No wonder so many motorists find driving to be fatiguing, to be exhausting to the nerves, and tiring to the muscles!

With a squad of picked college men, Dr. Andrew H. Ryan, famous authority of Chicago, set out to measure driving fatigue—to determine which cars, if any, could be driven far and fast with least fatigue.

Each driver received the same tests under practically the same conditions. Day after day, for long, weary weeks, the experiments went on. Sensitive instruments were used to take records in the laboratory, on the highway—at frequent intervals as each driver sent his car 200 to 400 miles a day!

Amazing Results!

But one car, in these exciting experiments, proved to be 54% to 65% easier riding, less fatiguing, than the other cars tested! That car was the new, bigger Dodge. Even after 400-mile trips, drivers were fresher, their nerves steadier.

"I was interested to note," says Dr. Ryan, "that drivers in the Dodge car showed 54% to 65% less fatigue, as reflected by nervous and muscular impairment, than drivers of the other cars tested."

Dodge Engineering The Reason

The astonishing results of Dr. Ryan's experiments—the vast variation in riding ease between Dodge and other cars tested—are due to radical advantages in Dodge engineering, with dozens of special features designed to give maximum riding comfort.

For instance, engine vibrations are completely eliminated by Floating Power engine mountings. The manner in which a Dodge is cushioned against road shock by rubber at so many vital points is another factor.

Saves Money For You, Too

Anyone can understand that vibration will slowly but surely shake an ordinary car to pieces—with vibration smothered, Dodge, of course, lasts years longer. You don't have to pay out money for repair bills that constant vibration causes, either. Remember, the name Dodge on your car means that it is backed by over 20 years experience in building nearly three million fine cars. Engineering genius is matched by manufacturing genius. The result is important operating economies. Dodge owners report "17 to 22 miles on a gallon of gas." Both tires and brake linings are saved by hydraulic brakes. Valve seat inserts save gas and postpone valve grinding thousands of extra miles. Dodge is so well and carefully built that it is bound to save you money—be a better investment for you.

Prove It For Yourself!

Any Dodge dealer will be glad to let you test these facts about Dodge for yourself. Drive a long distance, through traffic, anywhere the going is toughest. See how smoothly you ride. See how easy and effortless it is to drive a Dodge. Get the free booklet which explains Dr. Ryan's tests in detail. Prove to your own satisfaction Dodge offers you the most advanced engineering features for your comfort, safety, and pleasure.

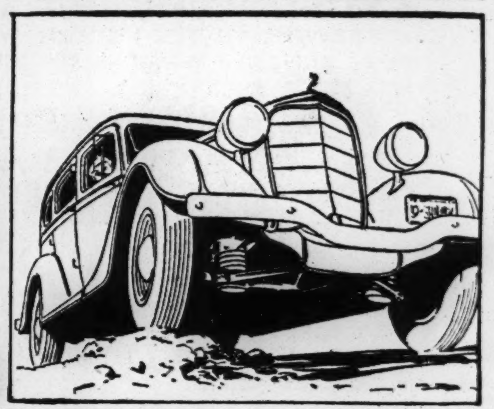
HAND-EYE COORDINATION METER—accurately measures hand steadiness to the nth degree, before and after a long drive.

THE POSTURAL STEADINESS TEST—This sensitive instrument measures the amount of body sway (a sign of fatigue).

HERE ARE SOME OF THE REASONS WHY

CROSS-STEERING—An entirely new engineering principle. Road shocks don't reach the steering wheel; no "shimmy" or wheel-fight. Finger-tip steering control.



"FLOATING-CUSHION" WHEELS—An improved type of independent front-wheel suspension. Wheels step over bumps and ruts. Complete comfort and riding ease in the rear seat.

RUBBER AT 56 POINTS—Dodge utilizes rubber at 56 vital points. You are protected—absolutely—from rough riding, from noise, from road shocks and bumps, from other causes of "auto-fatigue" and this protection gives Dodge longer life.

"I bought my Big Dodge for only $1.30 a week more than one of the lowest-priced cars"

says E. P. MILLS, M. D., 12962 Woodward Ave., Highland Park, Mich.

Dr. Mills's case is typical of thousands. The only way you can tell how much extra value you get in this big 117-inch wheelbase Dodge is to compare it against other cars. Compare it feature for feature. Compare the quality. Compare delivered prices. Use the "Show-Down" Plan, the new, easy, simple way to check values. Your Dodge dealer will be glad to tell you about it. And remember — your money is buying a Dodge, a name that has stood for value and excellence for more than twenty years!

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Stability was the keynote in financial markets this week. Speculative markets grew sluggish but investment markets improved. Corporate bonds crept slowly but almost steadily higher. The week in stocks was remarkable for the narrow range of fluctuations, even by comparison with the small variations of recent months. The share market, on the previous week's rally, had advanced again to the top layer of the trading range marked out after the July break in prices. But there the resistence became formidable. From Monday the market fluttered around the top of the trading area, moving in a range of less than a point on the average.

The Standard Statistics Co. price average of 90 representative common stocks held almost stationary during the week, finishing at 71.8, off 0.4 from last Saturday. The average of 60 corporate bonds, which normally moves much more narrowly than the stock average, made a fair gain, ending the week at 84.4, up 0.4. U. S. Government issues advanced early in the week, reacted a little, then stiffened on Saturday.

Grains and Exchange.

Commodities backed up a little in the main. Bar silver strengthened further after news Monday of imposition of a Chinese export tax, getting up to 55⅝ cents an ounce. Then it slid back to 53 1-3, about where it was a week ago. Tobacco prices advanced further. But wheat slipped back under $1 a bushel, showing losses for the week of about 3 cents. Cotton was fairly steady, showing declines of only 15 to 35 cents a bale from a week ago.

The pound sterling recovered sharply this week, getting up to $4.98, or about 6 cents above a week ago.

Gains of the week were mainly on the side of retail business. But at least more stability in heavy industry is visible. Railroad carloadings recorded a seasonal gain. Steel operations have not changed much. Electric power production made the best comparison with 1933 in several weeks. Automobile output increased. The administration's housing drive was a source of a good deal of encouragement. Trade observers, however, are not looking for anything more than slow improvement.

Another Session of Narrow Fluctuations Yesterday.

The stock market drifted through another session of extremely narrow fluctuations today. Volume shrank to 228,740 shares compared with 412,200 last Saturday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected stocks was only one-tenth of a point higher than the previous close at 71.8. A week ago it stood at 72.2.

Liquidation in the grain market served to increase caution among traders. Wheat fell 1¼ to 1½ cents a bushel. The May position in Chicago was down to around 97½ cents. Rye lost as much as 2¼ cents. Cotton was unchanged to 20 cents a bale lower.

Strength in the British pound coincided with the termination of the gold bloc conference at Brussels, but Wall Street observers were uncertain whether there was any connection. The gold currencies stiffened against the dollar after drifting lower earlier in the week.

Stocks went through routine motions which left most of the important issues virtually unchanged at the finish. U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward and other important shares fluctuated within a range of half a point or less.

Low-priced merchandise shares attracted further buying. McCrory preferred sold at a new 1934 peak. National Department Stores preferred jumped about 3 points in a burst of activity. Oil shares were steadier. Tobacco and rail shares were a trifle better.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: McCrory Stores 6½, up ¼; National Department Stores 3, up ⅝; United Stores A 5⅜, up ⅛; Montgomery Ward 28¼, down ⅛; Hahn Department Stores 6, up ¼; National Distillers 20¾, up ¼; Wilson A 26⅜, unchanged; Int. Favorable Dividend Changes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—There were 23 favorable dividend changes during the week, against 12 in the previous week, Standard Statistics Co. reported today. Unfavorable changes totaled five, compared with three the week before.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

SPECIAL ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to 228,740 shares, compared with 527,512 yesterday; 412,200 a week ago and 1,260,160 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 277,045,224 shares, compared with 573,554,804 a year ago and 374,008,055 two years ago. Total sales for the week amounted to 3,231,278 shares, compared with 4,018,170 last week (five days).

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The United States dollar drooped 11-16 of a cent to the pound today, closing at 4.96⅞ to the pound, as compared to yesterday's close of 4.95 3-16. The opening was at 4.95⅝. The sentiment of the foreign exchange market continued to swing in favor of the British pound, which was firmer on all centers where continental speculators, who previously sold sterling, repurchased with their sales of continental currencies.

Offerings of francs also were made as a result of nervousness regarding the present gold bloc conference in Brussels, and the franc closed at 74.90 to the pound, as compared with yesterday's close of 74.63.

The price of bar gold declined 5½ pence to 141 shillings, 2½ pence ($34.99) a fine ounce, and an amount valued at £170,000 ($802,562.50) was purchased.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.475 marks (40.40 cents to the mark), as compared with yesterday's quotations of 2.47 marks (40.48 cents).

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The American dollar held steadily today, opening and closing at 15.08 francs (6.631 cents to the franc) on the unofficial half-day banking market. The dollar closed yesetrday at 15.0725 francs (6.634 cents).

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Foreign Exchange firm; Great Britain in dollars, others in cents: Great Britain demand, 4.98; cables, 4.98; 60 day bills, 4.97; France demand, 6.63⅜; cables, 6.63⅜; Italy demand, 8.62¼; cables, 8.62½.

New Security Flotations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Several large issues of securities will be announced soon by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The new flotations will be largely for new capital for industrial uses.

Filings with the commission have fallen below ast year, and the large share of proposals have constituted purely financial and reorganization issues. Filings in May were 68; 66 in June; 56 in July; 48 in August; 49 in September, and 13 for the first half of October.

COTTON CLOSES STEADY, UNCHANGED TO 4 LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Cotton was quiet today and prices fluctuated within range of 4 or 5 points. After easing slightly early, under a little Southern selling and liquidation, the market steadied on trade buying and covering, but, after selling up from 12.26 to 12.30 for December, prices slipped again, with that delivery closing at 12.28. The final tone of the market was steady, net unchanged to 4 points lower.

Cotton futures closed steady, unchanged to 4 lower. October, 12.21n; December, 12.28@12.30; January, 12.32n; March, 12.36@12.38; May, 12.42; July, 12.45. Spot, quiet; middling, 12.50.

Trading continued quiet right after the call. There was some trade buying and week-end covering, but the demand was limited and prices sagged slightly during the early trading under the light Southern hedging and scattering liquidation. December sold off to 12.26 and May to 12.42, with the market ruling about 1 to 3 points net lower at the end of the first half hour.

The forecast for frost in Northwest Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle evidently was without appreciable effect on the market.

According to a report received today by the New York Cotton Exchange Service, the Indian cotton acreage planted to October was estimated by the Indian Government at 20,365,000 acres, compared with 19,641,000 planted to that date last year.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 12.30c, unchanged from yesterday. Sales amounted to 7744 bales.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Bar gold declined 5½ pence to 141s 2½d. (U. S. equivalent $34.99 on basis of sterling opening at $4.95⅝).

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—There were no reported sales in raw sugar today. The last paid price was 2.89c for spots, however. It was reported in trade circles that holders were willing to accept bids of 17 points over December, which would be equivalent to about 2.81c for duty paid Cubas from store.

Futures opened 1 to 2 points lower and showed additional losses later under a renewal of tired long liquidation and selling by producing interests.

December contracts sold from 1.76c to 1.73c and May from 1.80c to 1.78c, or 3 to 4 points below the previous close and at new low levels for the movement.

The decline uncovered stop-loss orders, and, after their execution, there was a partial rally on covering. Final prices were a little above the lowest, but 2 to 3 points below the previous close. Sales were 17,650 tons.

In refined a fair business was reported and prices were unchanged at 4.65c for fine granulated.

U. S. FARM EXPORTS GAIN IN VALUE, LOSE IN VOLUME

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Reflecting a rise in commodity prices, United States exports of agricultural products were valued at $787,259,000 during the year ended June 30, 1934, compared with $589,653,000 during 1933. That represents a gain of 34 per cent and also an increase over 1931-32.

But the volume index of exports stood at 83, the lowest since 1909-10. There was a decrease in the export volume of a number of leading farm products, such as cotton, lard, wheat, wheat flour, fresh apples and most of the vegetable oils. Meats and leaf tobacco made the best showing, recording considerable advances both in volume and value.

Unmanufactured cotton represented 56 per cent of the agricultural export value, unmanufactured tobacco 13 per cent, fruits 10 per cent, meats and animal fats 8 per cent, and grain and grain products 5 per cent.

Foreign countries purchased less American cotton in 1933-34 than during the two preceding years, but, aided by better prices, the total value was higher than in any year since 1929-30. Total exports of lint cotton amounted to 8,366,000 bales valued at $438,018,000, compared with 8,647,000 bales valued at $321,960,000 during the preceding year, a decrease of 4 per cent in volume, but an increase of 36 per cent in value.

The export value rose from an average of 7.2 cents a pound durng 1932-33 to an average of 10.1 cents during 1933-34, as shown by compilations by the United States Division of Foreign Crops and Markets.

Reserve Bank Business Aid.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Actual advances by the Federal Reserve Banks to aid small, established businesses which were unable to get accommodations elsewhere rose $868,000 during the week ended Oct. 17, to $4,576,000. In addition, commitments of $2,152,000 have been made by the various banks, resulting in total credit extensions of $6,758,000 since the policy of direct loans was inaugurated some two months ago. The Federal Reserve Bank at Boston leads all others with direct loans of $902,000, followed in order by Minneapolis with $613,000 and by Richmond with $481,000. The bank at San Francisco is trailing, having advanced only $15,000 at the close of business Oct. 17.

Corporation News.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—L. B. Manning has been elected chairman of the board of the New York Shipbuilding Co., filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of E. L. Cord. J. C. Metten was elected president, succeeding C. L. Bardo, resigned. C. M. Kaltwasser was named executive vice-president.

WHEAT DROPS 1 1-2C AT WEEK'S CLOSING SESSION

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 20.—Wheat continued to slip at the week's closing session. December started the day at ⅝ cent off and closed at 1½ cents down. May, opening at ⅝ cent off, closed at 1⅝ cents loss for the day.

The break in foreign wheat markets and reports of rains in some parts of the United States and Canadian wheat areas were topics.

Liverpool opened at ½ to ⅝d off and closed at 1¼ to 1⅝d off.

Winnipeg opened at ⅜ to ½ off, and closed 1@1¼c net lower.

Local wheat receipts which were 43,500 bu., compared with 48,000 a week ago (2 days) and 27,000 a year ago, included 23 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts which were 61,500 bu., compared with 27,000 a week ago (2 days) and 27,000 a year ago, included 40 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts which were 12,000 bu., compared with 14,000 a week ago (2 days) and 10,000 a year ago, included 6 cars local. Hay receipts were 1 car local.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Wheat was 1c lower; corn ½c lower and oats 2c lower.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange Saturday were as follows:

WHEAT VALUES CONTINUE TO FALL IN CHICAGO TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Grain values fell today as a result of persistent liquidating sales. Weakness of foreign markets, a development associated with reports of highly favorable wheat crop conditions in Argentina, proved to be more than a counterbalance for reduced unofficial estimates of Canada's 1934 wheat yield. The pampas in Argentina, a district where huge amounts of wheat are grown if the moisture is satisfactory, has received good rains, it was stated.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsteady at the bottom figures both of the day and the week, 1¼@1⅜ under yesterday's finish, May 97½@87⅝c, corn ¾@1½c down, May ..⅜@78½c; oats ¾@1⅜ off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

The Liverpool market was decidedly lower for the fourth day in succession. Cables said the wheat trade there was very bearish owing to excellent new crop prospects in Argentina, together with stop-loss selling and absence of demand.

Further beneficial rains in domestic wheat territory Southwest, Northwest and over the central states, contributed to weakness of wheat values.

Despite adverse weather which would tend to check corn movement, that grain and oats finally declined owing to sympathy with wheat. Talk of further arrivals of imported rye served as an unsettling factor in all grains.

Provisions eased a little as a result of weakness of cereals.

Some Wheat Crop Forecasts.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — Australia's 1934-35 wheat crop now is forecast at 137,016,000 bushels, compared with 174,363,000 bushels harvested in 1933-34. Rains are needed to improve growing conditions. Upward revisions of the 1934 wheat crop have been reported for the United States, England and Wales, Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden, Norway and Latvia—although the Northern hemisphere yield still is estimated to be 8 per cent less than last year. Wheat available for export in the Danube basin is placed at 29,395,000 bushels, but to ship that much from a total estimated crop of but 266,366,000 bushels (31 per cent less than 1933) suggests large scale domestic substitution of rye and corn. Interest in foreign purchases has been shown by Shanghai flour mills which continue to run at almost full capacity.

REPORT ON BUSINESS TREND BY COMMERCE DEPARTMENT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — The Commerce Department reports that, while gains in production and primary distribution are reported as slight, a survey on retail sales, particularly in rural areas, indicates more pronounced increases in the volume of goods moving to consumers.

Steel mill activity remained unchanged during the week ended Oct. 13, as the trend was measured by the Department. Electric power production was slightly lower than in the preceding week but was 2.3 per cent higher than a year ago, the largest relative gain since last June. Power output in all sections, excepting New England and the central industrial area, was above a year ago and in the latter region the recession below the 1933 figure was less than 1 per cent. Automobile production increased due to schedule adjustments by one leading producer; assemblies for the month, however, will be below both September, 1934, and October, 1933.

The change in the general level of wholesale prices in the week ended Oct. 13 was slight. The Bureau of Labor Statistics index was 76.4 per cent of the 1926 average, compared with 76.6 in the preceding week. Of the 10 subgroups, six showed declines, two increases, while two were unchanged.

The banking statistics revealed no significant changes for the week. Commercial loans continue to expand slowly. "All other" loans of the reporting member banks increased $12,000,000 last week. The Federal Reserve banks have made direct industrial advances amounting to $3,708,000 and have made commitments to loan an additional $1,809,000.

Hog Products, Prices and Exports.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Prices of hogs and hog products in most foreign countries declined during September but were higher than a year earlier. For the first time since the World War monthly exports of American lard to Germany were negligible. Shipments to the United Kingdom were well maintained.

Decrease in Sugar Melt Tonnage.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The sugar melt of 13 United States refiners from Jan. 1 to Oct. 13 totaled 2,910,000 long tons against 3,120,000 in the like period of 1933. Deliveries totaled 2,775,000 against 2,930,000 tons in the 1933 period.

STOCKS MOVE HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

Prices on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week moved upward, with Wagner Electric common, Southwestern Bell preferred, Brown Shoe common and Dr. Pepper showing gains of more than one point. Of these stocks, the electric company issue was the most active, selling to the amount of 425 shares and advancing 1½ points. Most of this advance was made in the last session.

Southwestern Bell gained 1¼ points, Brown Shoe 1⅜ and Dr. Pepper 1¾ on a small turnover.

Others fractionally higher were International Shoe and Rice-Stix common.

Hamilton-Brown Shoe and Curtis Manufacturing lost a little.

Dividend rates as given in the table are the annual cash payments based on the latest quarterly or half-year declarations, or in case of newly listed securities, the dividend intention announced at the time of original sale and listing. Unless otherwise noted, extra or special dividends are not included.

U. S. MATCH PLANTS SUPPLY 97 PCT. OF DOMESTIC DEMAND

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Despite a heavy influx of foreign matches, the Commerce Department reports that domestic manufacturers now are supplying 97 per cent of American demands. Five years ago home manufacturers were supplying only 83 per cent.

Production of all classes of matches reached the value of $22,669,000 in 1933, the last census year, with 16 plants operating. Imports during that year totaled $704,000, or about 3 per cent of the estimated domestic demand. In 1929, with 21 plants operating, production totaled $20,-531,000, and imports were valued at $3,-425,000, the latter making up almost 15 per cent of the domestic demand.

Imports, however, have risen somewhat since the beginning of 1934, reaching a value of $417,350 during the first eight months, as compared with $379,600 during the comparable period of last year. Imports come mainly from Japan, Germany and Sweden. Exports are negligible, amounting in 1933 to less than $25,000.

Match plants are widely distributed in the United States, the 1929 census showing four each in New York and Ohio, two in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and one each in California, Washington, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, West Virginia, Pennsylvania.

MEN'S APPAREL BUSINESS AND REPORTED PRICE TRENDS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—September trade of men's apparel stores, heralding the fall business, was considerably ahead of the same month last year, the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers' Business Committee reported today.

Seventy-five per cent of the reports noted an increased volume, 11 per cent showed maintained sales and only 14 per cent indicated a decrease. Among this 14 per cent, two-thirds of the reports were from the East. Less than 22 per cent indicated disappointment and the majority of these were from the East.

Weather conditions for the most part were held responsible for this showing along the Atlantic Seaboard, although strikes in industrial sections also were believed to have been a factor.

In reporting on suits 44 per cent of the membership indicated prices were higher, 43 per cent said they were unchanged and 13 per cent gave prices lower. In reporting furnishings, 40 per cent of the statements gave higher prices, 54 per cent showed no change and 6 per cent were lower.

In some instances a public demand for prices that are lower than last spring was indicated, but compared to a year ago the public shows a tendency to trade up rather than down, the committee said.

The same trend was noted in shirts, ties, shoes and hats.

TRADE TRENDS

Electrical Appliances—The wholesale movement of home appliances in some parts of the country is reported 40 to 50 per cent larger than during the same period a year ago.

Dried Fruits—Packaged fruits also are commanding more attention in jobber quarters.

New York retailers report that trade, during most of the week, held up well. The Federal Reserve figures disclosed an increase for the half month of 5.1 per cent, inclusive of liquor, over the previous year.

Hardware jobbers, favored by weather conditions, are said to be recording substantial sales gains. Both unit and dollar volume are understood to be running well ahead of the same 1933 period.

BONDS FAIRLY STEADY IN FRACTIONAL RANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The bond market was fairly steady in today's brief session with gains and losses generally being confined to a small fractional range. Transfers totaled $6,196,000, par value, about the same as in last Saturday's proceedings. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 84.4. On the week this average was up four-tenths of a point.

Dealers were encouraged by the somewhat better tone displayed by U. S. Government securities. While the turnover in this department amounted to only $2,370,-000, advances of 1-32d to 6-32ds of a point predominated. Home Owners' Loan 3s and Treasury 3¼s of 1944.46 were slightly lower and several issues were unchanged from their Friday's closing levels.

There were a few outstanding bonds in the corporate divisions. Among these were Consolidated Coal 5s, which got up 2 points at 23, and McCrory Stores 5½s, which, at 70, added 3¼ more points to their recent gains.

Other utilities and industrials moderately firmer included some loans of American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Chile Copper, Laclede Gas, National Steel, Wilson & Co. and Shell Union Oil.

The rails were dull and mixed. Improvement was shown by bonds of Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Alleghany Corp. and Santa Fe. At the same time some issues of Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chicago Northwestern and New Haven were a bit easier.

Obligations of Australia were active at advances of a point or more. Dominican Republic second 5½s of 1940, however, dropped 3⅞ points to 56⅛. Other foreign loans were slightly irregular.

PRICE CHANGES EXTREMELY NARROW ON CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The curb exchange continued to be a dull spot today. Price changes were extremely narrow except in a few specialties. The list backed and filled within a narrow trading groove and a number of prominent issues were virtually even at the finish.

Great Atlantic & Pacific got up more than three points on a small turnover. Parker Rust Proof rose 1½. Aluminum Co. of America dipped 1¾ points, then recovered in part.

Among utilities, both Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric were about unchanged. Lake Shore, Wright Hargreaves, Humble Oil, American Cyanamid B and Lerner Stores also were negligibly changed. New Jersey Zinc improved slightly.

Chicago Stock Market

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Total stock sales today on the Chicago Stock Exchange amounted to 8000 shares, compared with 25,000 corresponding day last year. Total stock sales for the week amounted to 98,-000 shares, compared with 294,000 corresponding week last year. Bond sales were $26,000, compared with $5000 same period a year ago.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Metal markets displayed a steady to firm undertone during the past week, the feature being a $2 per ton advance in lead quotations. More active consumer buying for October and November needs caused the advance and demand continued at the higher quotations. Receipts of increased orders for finished products accounted for the better inquiry for metal.

Domestic demand for copper was fully sustained at the improved rate of the previous week, owing to more confidence in values and what were said to be improved prospects for consumption. The price, however, remained at the basis of 9 cents for blue eagle, which was at a premium of about 1¾ cents over European quotations. Foreign demand also picked up toward the close of the week.

Antimony quotations were advanced owing to the relatively small and tightly held stocks in this country and higher replacement costs for Chinese metal. Buying, however, was of small proportions.

Zinc developed a steadier undertone in reflection of mine curtailment in the tri-state district and prospects for a relatively higher ore market. Sufficient investment buying appeared to absorb metal which had recently been pressed for sale, and some smelters were asking premiums over the market price toward the close of the week. Purchases from consuming sources, however, were limited.

Despite unsatisfactory demand, tin quotations ruled steady in sympathy with London and higher sterling exchange. Stability abroad was attributed to the influence of curtailment of mines in effect through the international tin committee. Imports were hopeful that tin plate mills would soon re-enter the market.

Although sentiment in the steel trade was said to have improved, the rate of ingot production experienced a slight recession to around 24 per cent of capacity due to the limited volume of miscellaneous orders and poor demand from automobile manufacturers pending production on new models. Hoped for improvement from the latter source, as well as farm equipment manufacturers and the outlook for unchanged prices under the steel code was said to be aiding confidence.

SEA SCOUTS TO EXHIBIT BOATS AT MERIT SHOW

Use of Sextant and Compass to Be Demonstrated by "Ship" Members.

The use of sextant and compass, a historical exhibit of ship models, and pictures and demonstrations of Sea Scout activities, will be displayed by Sea Scouts as part of their contribution to the Merit Badge Show at the Arena Nov. 8, 9 and 10.

All of the eight Sea Scout "ships," or troops, will participate in the show, as will 150 of the 292 Boy Scout troops of the St. Louis Council and about 40 Cub Packs.

Closer co-operation between the American Legion and the Boy Scouts is anticipated following the recent request by Dr. L. H. Renfrow, department chairman of the Boy Scout Committee, American Legion, that legionnaires make suggestions as to how each post can help in the scouting program.

In a letter Dr. Renfrow points out that 6,000,000 boys have profited by scout training in the less than 25 years the movement has been in existence, and that there are today more than a million Boy Scouts in America under the leadership of 240,000 volunteer workers.

Scout drills will be demonstrated in the second meeting of the course in Community Boy Leadership being conducted by the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, Wednesday evening.

H. P. Stellwagen, principal of Soldan High School, will speak on "Basic Methods of the Program of Scouting," and Col. H. D. McBride, scout Commissioner and director of the course, will give a talk on "Troop Drill and Its Value."

Demonstrations of handicraft, troop drill, troop meetings, and an inter-troop contest are also scheduled for the meeting.

The course will continue on Wednesday evenings ending Nov. 14, with a special session Nov. 9 to attend the Merit Badge Show.

A feature of this afternoon's Sea Scout Regatta at Creve Coeur Lake will be a race between Walter B. Griswold's new X-type boat and an identical craft sailed by H. A. Brereton and Sea Scouts of the Ship "Polaris." The boats, 15 feet long, are Marconi rigged, with jib and mainsail. Griswold's boat will make its first appearance at the regattas this afternoon.

The membership roundup is proving more popular with scouts than had been expected, probably because of the western ranch features applied this year. Instead of such titles as district commissioner, field executive or scoutmaster, scouts and scouters during the roundup are going under such names as "sheriff," "cow hand," "bronco buster," "wrangler," and "chief roundup boss." New scouts are known as "mavericks" and former scouts who rejoin troops as "strays."

Troop Notes.

Troop 126, Holy Ghost Evangelical Church, will receive the Standard Troop Award for the second time in connection with a Court of Honor to be held Friday night. G. J. Beasley is scoutmaster.

Troop 249, Mason School, was presented with the south district flag for taking first place in the recent rally at a meeting held at the school Friday night. The presentation was made by Mayor Dickmann and an entertainment program followed. Troops 95 and 173 were guests at the meeting. Walter W. Repp is scoutmaster of 249.

Troop 198, St. John's Episcopal Church, was presented with the Standard Troop Award for the sixth consecutive time Thursday. Of the 292 troops in the St. Louis Council, only 20 have received the award and only two, 198 and 98, have been honored with it six times. At the same meeting, which celebrated the troop's tenth birthday, the first 10-year program award for 1934 was also given to the troop. Scoutmaster L. John Lewis was also presented with the troop's 1934-35 charter at the meeting.

Maplewood Troop 3 will hold a Court of Honor Thursday for presentation of 50 merit badges and one Eagle award. The troop, of which Harold E. Gatchell is scoutmaster, is building cabins on its camp site near Pacific, where it holds monthly overnight hikes.

Richmond Heights Troop 1 at its regular meeting Wednesday heard a talk on fire prevention by Fire Chief Frosard of Richmond Heights with a demonstration of carries and rescue methods. Four new scouts were admitted to the troop.

Troop 6, Second Presbyterian Church, will hold a reunion of all present and former members Friday to celebrate the fourteenth anniversary of its organization. A troop Court of Honor will be a feature.

For the second time in a year Troop 31, Grace M. E. Church, has advanced scouts in every rank at a troop Court of Honor. One Eagle and 92 merit badges were awarded.

PUPILS TO CONTRIBUTE TO RELIEF THIS WEEK

Children's Pennies and Dimes to Be Collected in Advance of Campaign.

Although the annual United Relief Campaign does not open until Nov. 14, school children will be asked to make their donations, ranging from a penny to a dime, this week, which has been designated "Penny Week."

There are approximately 135,000 school children in the city and St. Louis County and each will be asked to make a small donation toward maintaining the 18 orphanages included among the beneficiaries of the campaign. Teachers and other employes of the several school systems will be asked to contribute 1 per cent of their income toward relief. In the last annual campaign the schools division donated a total of $77,344. Henry J. Gerling, superintendent of public schools, is chairman of the division. The Rev. Robert S. Johnston, president of St. Louis University, and Chancellor George R. Throop, of Washington University, are among the group leaders.

Plans for organization of mercantile and manufacturing units of the employes' division in the campaign were discussed Thursday night at a meeting called by John J. Nangle, chairman of the division, which will start its part of the drive Oct. 29. More than 100 campaign workers will spend this week interviewing the heads of 1500 firms, whose employes will be asked to contribute 1 per cent of earnings.

Ninety volunteer speakers received final instructions on their part in the solicitation of funds at a meeting Friday at Hotel Statler. R. W. Chubb, attorney, who is chairman of the speakers' bureau, emphasized that it will be necessary for speakers to stress the difference between Government and private relief.

"It must be emphasized that the maintenance of our hospitals, of agencies and institutions for dependent children and old persons and of a variety of specialized services essential to the community rests on the successful outcome of the drive," Chubb stated.

9 DROWNED AFTER EXPLOSION ON LAKE WINNIPEGOSIS

WINNIPEGOSIS, Man., Oct. 20.—A splash of gasoline on the hot exhaust pipe of a 40-foot launch brought tragedy to a fishing party on Lake Winnipegosis, and Royal Canadian Mounted Police today were searching for bodies of nine persons in the icy waters.

Only one of a party of 10, William Johnson, escaped drowning when a small rowboat into which they had clambered, when their launch broke into flames, capsized.

The tragedy occurred Thursday, but news of it reached here only today. The dead:

Wilbert Goodman, 45 years old, his wife, 40; their three children, Oliver, 8, Rolla, 5, and Vera whose age is not known; Oliver Johnson, 75; Mary Harrison, 17; Gisli Arnson, 30; May Bicknell, 20. All were residents of Winnipegosis.

The party was going to a fishing camp owned by Goodman and William Johnson. Nearing Papoose Island, 65 miles north of here, an attempt was made to refuel the engine from a spare drum. A drop or two of gasoline fell on the exhaust pipe, and resulting flames jumped to the drum, and the boat was rocked by the explosion.

All aboard managed to get into the small rowboat carried on deck. Waves tossed the overloaded craft and the boat capsized.

Three swimmers struck out for shore, several hundred yards away. Johnson made land but the other two succumbed.

A POT SHOT FROM THE PEN

Reformatory Guard Wings Pheasant, Starts Riot Scare.

IONIA, Mich., Oct. 20.—Shots rang out in the Michigan reformatory this afternoon. A siren wailed. Extra guards with rifles ran to their posts. Trusties working in the yard dropped to the ground to avoid the expected hail of bullets.

Then Guard Frank Marion held up the cock pheasant he had killed with his sawed-off shotgun as it flew over the prison from the nearby woods.

Former Football Star Kidnaped.

By the Associated Press.

CORINTH, Miss., Oct. 20.—Olen Burcham, 26 years old, former Russellville, Ala., football star, found here today by Corinth police officers, told them he had been held captive two nights and days by kidnapers. He said he was thrown from a moving automobile in the business district here. Police found him seated on the curb in a dazed condition. His wrists were tightly bound with a small rope. He was taken to a Corinth hospital. He is said to have been suffering from the effects of a drug, which he said was administered by his captors.

Elder Brother of Andrew W. Mellon; Banker and Industrialist.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 20.—James Ross Mellon, eldest member of the noted Mellon family of bankers and industrialists, and a brother of Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, died today at the age of 89. He had been in ill health for several months.

Mellon retired from active business about 15 years ago and devoted his last years to philanthropic and charitable interests.

He established the picturesque "Church of the Wilderness," for worship by all faiths, at his mountain estate near New Florence, Pa. He gave the city of Palatka, Fla., where he had a winter home, a library in his wife's memory.

The elder Mellon was an important figure in the early day industrial life of Pennsylvania. He was a prominent banker, serving as president of the City Deposit Bank and Trust Co. of Pittsburgh for many years.

At his bedside when he died, were his three children, Mrs. George S. Hasbrouck Jr., Thomas Mellon, and W. L. Mellon, head of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

Mellon was born in Pittsburgh, Jan. 14, 1846, the son of Judge Thomas and Sarah Jane Negley Mellon. His father founded T. Mellon & Sons, now the Mellon National Bank. Mellon's early education was in Pittsburgh schools. Later he attended Jefferson College at Canonsburg, Pa., now part of Washington & Jefferson College of Washington, Pa. He was a member of Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

Mellon's first employment was in a law office. In 1867 he went into business with his brother, the late Thomas Alexander Mellon, selling building supplies and real estate in East Liberty, a suburb. In 1877, the brothers completed building the Ligonier Valley Railroad and in 1898 James Mellon became president of the City Deposit Bank.

J. R. and Thomas Mellon made their first money by growing flowers in a home made nursery at the Mellon mansion. Later they borrowed money at 10 per cent interest from their father and went into the coal, lumber and real estate trade—at his suggestion. By the time they were 21 their fortune exceeded $100,000.

FIRST AMERICAN OPERA SUNG IN GERMANY UNDER NAZI RULE

Vittorio Giannini Receives 22 Curtain Calls at Munich Premier of His "Lucedia."

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Germany, Oct. 20. — For the first time since Adolf Hitler came into power, an opera by an American composer, Vittorio Giannini of Philadelphia and New York, was heard in Germany tonight.

"Lucedia," a "legend from heathen times," was received enthusiastically. A capacity audience in the Munich State Opera insisted that the 31-year-old American respond to 22 curtain calls. It was the world premier of the piece.

Among notables present were Prince Joachim Albrecht Hohenzollern. General Hans Knappertsbusch, musical director, said Giannini's future glowed with promise.

"He is just starting," he said. "The world will hear from him. He is simply chockful of melody."

CHARGED WITH POISONING WIFE

Husband Barred From Her Home But May Go Riding With Her.

By the Associated Press.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 20.—An indictment including 12 counts charging him with poisoning or attempting to poison his wife was returned by a special grand jury here today against Edward C. Bell, 60 years old, prominent business man and church leader.

Arraigned before Judge Frederick W. Coleman, he pleaded not guilty and was released under $10,000 bond. Trial was set for Dec. 11. In releasing Bell the court ordered him not to visit the home where his wife, Mrs. Madge W. Bell, has been an invalid for nearly a year. He will, however, be permitted to go on automobile rides with her if they are accompanied by Mrs. Bell's nurse.

R. J. Davis, Editorial Writer, Dies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Royal Jenkins Davis, 55 years old, editorial writer for the New York Evening Post for 33 years and its literary editor for six years, died today of pneumonia. A graduate of Harvard University in 1900, he entered newspaper work as managing editor of the American Friend in Philadelphia. Later he was on the staff of the Chicago Tribune and taught at Guilford College, North Carolina, and St. John's College, Annapolis, Md. His widow, two sons and two daughters survive.

Benjamin Behr's Outlaw Wins Gold Cup Steeplechase

By Dent McSkimming.

Steeplechase racing, with jumps over timber and brush fences and water gaps, its falls of horse and rider, its tallyhos, bugles, band, color and thrills, returned to the Bridlespur Hunt Club's Huntleigh Downs course yesterday to the delight of about 5000 persons who remained through one heavy rain and a succession of light showers to witness the running of eight races.

Benjamin L. Behr of Lake Forest, Ill., who won the event in 1932 with the horse Hawkins, gained a second leg on the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup when his seven-year-old brown gelding, Outlaw, the favorite, came from 10 lengths back to pass Trail's End Stable's Setter and win the feature event of the day.

St. Louis owners were again unsuccessful in an effort to score in the Gold Cup race, for visiting horsemen took first, second and third places. Behind Outlaw came Dan Rock, owned by T. W. Durant of Roslyn, Long Island, and As Fair, also from Benjamin Behr's stable.

St. Louis Horses Unplaced.

The St. Louis-owned Arcade, winner of the race last year, under Durant's colors, appeared ready to take the lead after racing about two miles, and Jockey Albert Muckerman let him have his head as he approached the north timber fence. As he leaped the fence, abreast of Setter, the early pace maker, Arcade fell, throwing the rider heavily. Muckerman scrambled on hands and knees out of the path of the onrushing Outlaw, and escaped serious injury. The field went on and Outlaw apparently getting the benefit of Jockey J. V. W. Davis' excellent judgment of pace, passed the tiring Setter and won easily. Dan Rock came with a surprising burst of late speed to finish second, passing Dan Rock in the last 100 yards and giving the grandstand crowd an added thrill.

A Fall at "The Cropper."

Another serious accident was narrowly avoided when Highland Prince, of R. L. Nafziger's stable, fell at "the Cropper," a stone fence and threw Jockey Joe Mackey. The rider rolled over unhurt and had the temerity to remount and continue although too far behind to give the leaders any trouble. However, he finished ahead of Senorita Mexico, the filly shipped here from Mexico City by Senor Carlos A. Martinez-Zorilla.

As was expected, the experienced steeplechaser Watsonia, representing T. W. Durant, was a comparatively easy victor in the open-to-all, sixth race of the program. Two St. Louis owned horses started but one of them, Ondott, met with early elimination when he fell at the first jump. Jockey Roberts was not badly hurt but he was unable to remount. Watsonia had only Making Bubbles to beat, for the other starter, Colonel Toka, was never a serious factor. Not only did Making Bubbles, a son of the famous Bubbling Over, set the pace for a mile, but he came with fine speed at the close. Evidently, only a lack of experience in jumping races kept him from making a neck and neck thing of the finish. Making Bubbles is a recent convert from the flat racing and is owned by Trail's End Stable.

A field of nine genuine farm horses, the animals which have a speaking acquaintance with the plow and harrow, were contenders in the opening race. They were the property of farmers whose farms adjoins the Hunt Club grounds. Ben Wirth's Sadie Jay, ridden by Ben Wirth Jr., was the winner.

Thoroughbreds, two of which were more or less familiar to those who have attended the races at Fairmount Park (Roselake and Bob's Luck), made up the field in the second. The race was called the Gap Hunters, and was run over a five furlong course, on the flat. Roselake, owned by the Trail's End stable and ridden by C. Watson, took a three lengths lead before the field of four had gone 70 yards and went on to win handily. Bob's Luck, with H. R. Riley, one-time leading jockey at Fairmount, up closed fast in the last 200 yards and finished second. Mast Lady, one of Adalbert von Gontard's racers, ridden by Albert Muckerman, was third and Play Shot fourth.

H. F. Langenberg, who rode his Mister Jorricks in the fourth event, the Pink Coat, a race of three miles over timber jumps, suffered a bad turn when his mount refused to break and was left at the post. He lost half a mile thereby and was never a factor. Grasslands No. 1, ridden by K. V. Wrape, broke second in the field of four, took the lead after half a mile and drew out to a 10 lengths' lead and won as his rider pleased. Pierrot, ridden by Julius Van Raalte, was second and

Navy Scores 18-7 Upset Over Columbia Lions

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mainly because Fred (Buzz) Borries, lanky Louisville boy, could do more things successfully with the new stream-lined pigskin than Rose Bowl Al Barabas, the Naval Academy's rejuvenated football forces walloped Columbia today, 18 to 7, and achieved one of the outstanding upsets of the Eastern football season in the presence of a capacity jam of 32,000 spectators at Baker Field.

Barabas put Columbia in the lead with a touchdown early in the game and was the outstanding ground-gainer, with nearly 175 yards from scrimmage, but Borries combined his footwork and passing ability with such effectiveness that Navy came back to score three touchdowns. He personally scored Navy's first two touchdowns, the second with a dazzling 34-yard cutback, and dashed 22 yards in the final period to pave the way for Bill Clark to tally the third.

For a young man whose health was such that physicians doubted he would play at all, Borries did very well indeed. He not only played all but a few minutes of the game but was the spearhead of the Navy attack, besides harassing the

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. — "Harry the Horse," whose other name is Mattos, snorts, and paws, and kicks, and cavorts in the old arena 'neath Coogan's Bluff this afternoon, to the great glory of St. Mary's of California.

"Harry the Horse," with some minor assistance from his teammates, beat Fordham by a score of 14 to 9 in their fourth annual football game, with 40,000 greatly excited spectators peering at the proceedings.

This "Harry the Horse" is an extraordinary young individual, who can do more tricks with a lemon shaped leather bulb than Fred Keating, the magician, with a rabbit.

We are informed that "Harry the Horse" is so entitled after one of this very writer's own fictional characters, but Harry is even more incredible than a figment of the imagination when he gets a football in his fists.

A Versatile Boy, Harry.

He can wheel that oval amazing distances through the air in forward passes. He has a curve like "Dizzy" Dean, and a fast one like "Dizzy's" brother, Paul. His passing this afternoon, after Fordham gets a touchdown in front early in the game, is responsible for both St. Mary's touchdowns, one of which "Harry the Horse" personally conducts over the Fordham goal.

A little pass of 50 yards is nothing at all for "Harry the Horse." His chief trouble is finding an adequate receiver. Very often today, he flips the ball so far ahead of his catchers that they never get close enough to sniff the leather.

Football historians will recall that it was this "Harry the Horse" who last year pegged a pass to his pal, Erdelatz, the St. Mary's end, in the Fordham game that was reckoned at 55 yards. He does as much this afternoon in the matter

Six Undefeated Teams Fall From Their Position

PITTSBURGH, Colgate, Fordham, Harvard, Tennessee and Wisconsin were the major football teams in the country to tumble from the undefeated untied list yesterday.

Minnesota trimmed Pittsburgh in the last quarter, 13 to 7; Colgate bowed to Ohio State, 10 to 7; St. Mary's invaded Fordham's stronghold to wrest a 14 to 9 decision; Harvard was buried by Holy Cross, 26 to 6; Tennessee fell before Alabama, 13 to 6, and Wisconsin lost to Purdue, 14 to 0, in a Big Ten Conference game.

Yale Smothers Brown, 37 to 0

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 20. — With a display of co-ordination, power and deception, the Yale football team swamped Brown, 37 to 0, today, administering one of the most terrific defeats to its old New England foe in the 54 years of gridiron relationship between the institutions.

Two sets of Eli teams battered the game but helpless Bears and completely dominated the play with the exception of a 10-minute stretch in the third period when Capt. Bill Karaban led his team in a 41-yard march to Yale's 14-yard line and then lost the ball on downs.

The statistics would have been decidedly lop-sided in Yale's favor had it not been for Brown's temporary recovery in the third period. In the final analysis, however, Yale scored 10 first downs to Brown's 8 and gained 184 yards to 131.

Two Final Period Scores by Minnesota Defeat Pitt, 13 to 7

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 20.—A slumbering golden giant—Minnesota's mighty offense—awoke with a start late today and in fifteen brief, thrill-soaked minutes, crushed Pittsburgh, 13 to 7, knocked the Panthers out of the national title hunt for the second straighet year, and trundled off toward new triumphs with 64,850 staring and gasping in the wake.

Like the 10,000 Swedes who jumped off the weeds at the Battle of Copenhagen, the burly Norsemen rose as if from ambush in that final quarter, and in two tremendous blasts, scored two touchdowns, turned a rout into victory, and paraded off unbeaten in the title race, as dangerous an eleven as roams the countryside.

Pittsburgh was the nation's football capital today and for three full quarters the mammoth crowd in the great sun-drenched horseshoe atop the city's highest hill reveled in the power of the Panthers.

Panthers Score in Second Period.

Through the first two periods, Minnesota never had possession of the ball past its own 32-yard line, in fact had hold of it only eight times all told in the first half. Only a magnificent defense in the crucial moments had kept the Panthers even seven points at bay—the result of a 64-yard lateral from Izzy Weinstock to Mike Nicksick, and Weinstock's perfect kick for the extra point in the final seconds of the half.

Minnesota hadn't come even close to making a first down, with the big blonde all-America captain, Francis "Pug" Lund, harassed and bottled at every step by Pitt's vicious forwards. Twice in the first half, before the score, the Panthers were inside the Minnesota 15-yard line, once with a first down on the six-yard line as Harvey Rooker snagged Lund's fumble of a bad pass there from center.

Gophers Hold on 2-Yard Line.

Minnesota's bulgy line rallied and four times stopped Weinstock, a tremendous human battering ram, short of the goal, holding him for downs finally on the two-yard line. The rarest kind of a lucky break saved the Gophers the second time as Nicksick, from the 11-yard line, passed into the hands of Julius Alphonse, Minnesota halfback, just over the goal line for a touchback. It was close to being a safety.

It wasn't a bit better in the third quarter until Bob Larue, a heroic figure in Pitt's attack all day, muffed a pass from center for a 25-yard loss, and Miller Munjas, a phenomenal kicker, bobbled another for 10 yards in kick formation, and the Panthers were back on their own three-yard line.

The slumbering Golden Giant stirred, took heart, and as Stanislaus Kostka, Bernie Bierman's new fullback thunderbolt, came roaring into the game, shook off shackles for the first time. As the third quarter ended, Kostka smashed the Pitt line twice for gains of eight and nine yards and the first first down Minnesota had been able to score.

Alphonse Scores Standing Up.

Once the Norse comeback roared into full being, it was a sight indeed to behold. On the first play of the fourth quarter Alphonse, on a neat reverse, broke through the line and raced 22 yards over the Pitt goal, scoring standing up and tying the

The Anti-Barnstorming Move.

PUTTING the official foot down on the extra-curricular activities of baseball players is not going to be the simple thing that President Will Harridge of the American League may have visualized, when he spoke out, recently.

Jimmy Foxx was hit on the head and Paul Dean contracted a sore arm, in post-season exhibitions, which led President Harridge to suggest that limitations be placed on barnstorming.

HARRIDGE

The limitations refer to post-season contests — an idea which isn't so hopeless. Magnates probably would be better satisfied if their players were kept safe from accidents in such a way.

But if action of that sort were taken the players might reasonably suggest: "Why then do you ask us to risk our bones in exhibition games during the season? If exhibitions are dangerous out of season, they are dangerous in season."

Also, the players might insinuate that there was something queer about the exhibition situation since it was all right for the players to play when the club owners made money out of such games, but all wrong when the profits went to the players—as in in the post-season contests.

What Will the Harvest Be?

AND, incidentally, figure for yourself whether President Sam Breadon would be angry if the leagues jointly decided to cut out all exhibition games, during and after the season?

It is fair to conclude that in 1935 the colorful Deans will be in great demand and that exihibtion games, always numerous on the Cardinal program, will be more frequent and more lucrative than ever before. It is reasonable to

COCHRAN RECOVERS TIGER FUMBLE, LATER RUNS 17 YARDS FOR TOUCHDOWN

By James M. Gould

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 20.—Greatly outweighed and completely outplayed on the offensive, Missouri University's fighting Tigers gave a great and game exhibition of defensive play this afternoon and held the St. Louis University Billikens to a 7—0 score before 7000 spectators at Memorial Stadium, as Gov. Park and other state officials watched the teams in action.

During the course of the game, the Tigers succeeded in making only one first down. That came on a completed pass in the second period. Against this were the 13 first downs to the credit of the Billikens.

That showed the difference on attack.

Cochran Scores Touchdown.

One thrust following a good break in the third period, gave St. Louis the victory. The teams had started this period with an exchange of kicks on which the Billikens were the gainers. In one of these exchanges, Kane punted to Missouri's 20-yard line. Sid Johnson, the Missouri safety-man, fumbled and the alert Bill Cochran recovered for the Billikens. A line-play made three yards for St. Louis and then Cochran cut through for 17 yards and the first and only touchdown of the game.

Kane converted with a placekick.

Missouri soon made up its mind that there was no use trying for yardage through the St. Louis line and its attack consisted in the main of pass after pass. Several of these were intercepted as were some of the St. Louis heaves. In fact, it appeared for awhile as though the teams were trading passes as boxers trade punches in a furious melee.

This fighting became more than ordinarily fierce when, after the second period end, Finkel of Missouri and Kersen of St. Louis became embroiled without much damage.

Krause Disqualified.

In all, St. Louis gained 176 yards from scrimmage, while Missouri gained only 38. Each team completed three passes, Missouri trying 18 and St. Louis 13. Eight of the Tigers' passes were intercepted as were four of St. Louis' tosses.

Missouri lost nothing in penalties, St. Louis 63 yards.

It wasn't a case of St. Louis being weak, rather it was that the Tigers played an inspired defensive game. Three games the Tigers have played to date and they haven't scored a point. Three games the Billikens have played and they haven't been scored upon.

The Tigers have tied one and lost two; the Billikens have won two and tied one.

Billikens Stopped on 3-Yard Line.

After St. Louis kicked off, Missouri started to pass and this gave the Billikens an excellent early chance to score, which, as it proved, they muffed. This pass by Angello was intercepted by Drone for St. Louis and, after three plays had failed to gain perceptibly, Hurley threw a nice pass to Rollen, who ran to Missouri's three-yard line—a gain of 33 yards.

A St. Louis score appeared certain, but this Missouri team was a fine fighting team and, calling on all their strength, repulsed three line plays of the Billikens and then took the ball when a pass was incomplete.

Missouri could make no impression on the heavy Billiken line and, in the first period, failed to make a first down. Missouri held posses-

CLEVELAND UPSETS ROOSEVELT; BEAUMONT BEATS CENTRAL

By Harold Tuthill

Like a magician that picks everything out of a silk hat except the kitchen sink, Cleveland pulled out trick plays, one after another, to defeat Roosevelt, 18 to 0, in one of the most surprising upsets in City High School League football history.

The game was played as the first half of a double-header at the Public Schools Stadium, yesterday afternoon, with Beaumont riding over Central, 32 to 0, in the second contest. The attendance was estimated at 3000.

Tricky Play Scores.

In spite of the fact that Cleveland's offense was advertised and printed two days in advance of the game, Roosevelt seemed unable to cope with the tricks that the Cleveland backs performed.

The Carondelet boys tossed the ball around with considerable abandon, as many as five handling the ball before it ultimately came to rest on the ground. It was one of those now-you-see-it, now-you-don't-exhibitions that led to Cleveland's first touchdown in the opening period.

On a multiple pass play, where it seemed all eleven players touched the ball, Ken Harris finally came up with it and ran around left end for 47-yards and a touchdown. It may be stated here that Harris is a 100-yard dash champion and a run of less than half that distance is apple pie for him. To prove it, he later ran like a startled deer for a short seven yards to give Cleveland its last touchdown in the fourth period.

Roosevelt managed to dispel the mystery surrounding Cleveland's so-called wide open formation and held the 1933 champions scoreless in the second period.

Then in the third quarter, another one of those mystifying plays popped up. Frank Tombridge is captain and a tackle on the team and normally one wouldn't expect him to do any forward passing. But the team lined up for action, Tombridge pulled out of the line, received a lateral from Charley Buffa, and heaved the pigskin 35 yards into the outstretched arms of Woodrow Sweetin, who then scampered for the goal line 20 yards away, making a net gain of 55 yards and a touchdown. Ed Pfeiffer's plnge for the extra point was short.

Cleveland moved into position for its fourth-quarter score when it benefited by a weak Roosevelt punt, which went out of bounds on the Rough Riders' 30-yard line.

Multiple Pass Works.

The Orange and Blue made it first down on the 20-yard mark. Russ Tongay slipped a pass to Sweetin for first down on the seven-yard line and then Harris snared another multiple pass to run the remaining yards for a touchdown. Tongay's drop-kick was blocked.

The Rough Riders, figured as certain contenders for the championship now held by Cleveland, were knocked out of first place as a result of the defeat and McKinley moved in with one victory and no defeats.

It was the tenth time that Cleveland and Roosevelt have met and put the Carondelet school one up with five decisions, four losses and one tie.

In the second game, Beaumont gave early indications that it would use its 16-pounds-per-man weight advantage against Central with success. Central's chances for victory were not helped by the intermittent rains which kept falling to make the field a treacherous one.

The Blue Jackets came in possession of the ball on Central's 42-yard line in the middle of the first quarter. Plunges moved the ball up 15 yards and then Wilson Schwenk cut over left tackle to the side lines, gaining 27 yards and touchdown. Herman Wagner plunged for the extra point.

Beaumont repeated this performance twice in the second period, Wilson Schwenck scoring one touchdown and Wagner the other to assume a 20 to 0 lead at the half. That heartened Beaumont's adherents greatly, for they remembered that Beaumont held a 12 to 0 lead at half time in the 1933 game, only to see Central come back and win, 27 to 12.

Fitzgerald Goes Over.

Central tried desperately to stop the Beaumont rock crusher, but to no avail. Beaumont started from its own 20-yard line, where Jim Fitzgerald received the kick-off and steadily ploughed its way through the mud to the three-yard mark, from where Arnold Matthews scored. Fitzgerald's kick for the extra point was low.

Just to be consistent by counting at least one touchdown and to show no favoritism by keeping any of the regular backs from scoring, Beaumont added the final touchdown in the fourth period. Fitzgerald scored from the five-yard line in the middle of the session. His kick for the extra point was blocked.

NAVY SCORES 18-7 UPSET OVER COLUMBIA

Lions with his swift returns of kicks. Borries gained nearly 100 yards from scrimmage besides completing a half dozen passes for additional gains of 127 yards.

The game marked Columbia's first setback this season and the first since the Lions lost to Princeton a year ago. It was Navy's fourth straight victory this year.

Interference by Barabas, on a long Navy pass, Borries to Dornin, gave Navy first down on Columbia's five-yard line and enabled the Middies to put over their first touchdown as the climax of a 68-yard advance.

Navy rushed into the lead early in the second period. After taking one of Bill Nevell's high but ineffective punts on their own 40-yard line, the Middies negotiated 60 yards in four plays for their second tally.

After threatening twice in the third period, Navy put Columbia in the hole with one of Clark's "coffin corner" punts and scored at the outset of the final quarter. Clark bucked over from the three-yard line after Borries dashed 22 yards.

The Lions failed to captalize the recovery of two Navy fumbles, in the third quarter, and fell a yard short of scoring in the last period as Barabas went on a rampage.

Classic by Shakespeare, A 56-Yard Scoring Run, Helps Notre Dame to Win

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 20.—Notre Dame rushed merrily along its football comeback trail by crushing its most notorious jinx, Carnegie Tech, 13 to 0, with almost listless ease.

Although the men of Layden failed to flash the spectacular offense they did last week in opening their football comeback with an 18 to 7 triumph over Purdue, they were so superior that they piled up 146 yards by rushing to only 18 for the once mighty Skibos on a field made treacherous by a drizzle of rain during the first two quarters. Only 15,000 fans, close to an all-time low in attendance at the stadium Knute Rockne built, watched the game.

The Notre Dame scores came by sudden thrusts on the ground and through the air in the first and third periods, ending any doubt as to the game's outcome. William Valentine Shakespeare, the "Bard of Staten Island," the same junior who flunked an English course last year, opened the scoring by skirting his own right end midway in the initial period with a dash of 56 yards. Superb blocking opened the route for Shakespeare, who put a little reverse English on his dash and then out-footed the field to score.

Bud Bonar's kick for the extra point was blocked by Nestor Henrion, Skibo left guard. The invaders nursed a hope in that blocked kick, but the third period, after an exchange of kicks had given Notre Dame the ball on Tech's 32, Andy Pilney dropped back to the .4 and tossed a high pass to Capt. Dominic Vairo for the second and final touchdown. Vairo caught the ball on the goal line and fell over the line in the grip of three Skibo tacklers. Bill Bruno drop-kicked the extra point.

ALABAMA HANDS TENNESSEE FIRST DEFEAT, 13 TO 6

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 20. — Alabama's Crimson Tide, displaying powerful offensive tactics and defended by an almost impenetrable line, drove to a convincing 13 to 6 victory over Tennessee today on Legion Field.

Through the triumph, the red-shirted warriors from Tuscaloosa advanced to the front ranks in the contention for championship honors in the Southeastern Conference and shattered hopeful ambitions of the Volunteers of Knoxville.

It was the sixth defeat Tennessee has suffered since Maj. Bob Neyland took over the coaching reins in 1926 and was the third time the Tide had whipped the Vols in the last seven years, having emerged victorious in 1930 and 1933.

PURDUE SCORES 14-0 VICTORY OVER WISCONSIN

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 20.—The flying heels of Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, Purdue University's "touchdown twins" pounded out a 14 to 0 victory over Wisconsin today and sent the Boilermakers into the thick of the Western Conference title race.

Carter's 64-yard dash after a slashing drive off left tackle in the second period, and Purvis' plunge through guard and 80-yard race to the goal in the last quarter, gave Purdue homecoming celebrants at the game a cheering triumph. Eighteen thousand fans witnessed the return to form of the Boilermaker eleven after defeats at the hands of Rice and Notre Dame.

The contest opened the Big Ten season for both teams. Wisconsin had won its first two non-conference games.

The Badgers twice turned back the vicious drive of the Purdue backs in the second period with heroic stands within the 10-yard line Then in the fourth, after Purvis' long dash gave the Boilermakers a safe margin, Lynn Jordan of Des Plaines, Ill., a substitute quarterback, directed an accurate forward passing attack that carried almost to the Purdue goal. The Boilermakers proved equal to the assault, however, turning back the threats, once on the two-yard line and again on the eight.

Carter's score was his second trip across the goal line. Early in the first quarter the Indianapolis speedster dashed off tackle and ran to the goal from the Wisconsin 32, but was called back when a teammate was caught holding. Then, in the next period after a punt by Tom Fontaine of Akron, O., the Badger quarterback was down on the Purdue 36, Carter spun past the secondary to race 64 yards almost unmolested.

Purvis, the Mattoon (Ill.) thunderbolt, found greater difficulty in the way of his touchdown run. After a powerful plunge through guard, he found a clear path to the Wisconsin 40 where two Badger players blocked his progress. Carter then ran in with a smashing block that carried both of them out of the play, and Purvis ran alone the rest of the way.

More Color Than Red Grange!

Dick Hanley Northwestern coach says Oze Simmons, Iowa's Negro sophomore halfback, is the greatest ball carrier, blocker, tackler and line plunger he ever saw. All he did against the Wildcats, says Dick, was gain more than 175 yards of Iowa's 233 from scrimmage, averaging nearly seven yards for each time he carried the ball; run 48 yards from scrimmage for a touchdown, get loose for trips of 33 and 38 yards along with returning three punts 30 yards or more. He fielded the ball like an outfielder and his blocking and tackling alone would give him the edge over other great ball carriers even if he didn't run as well as he does.

We may be wrong but by reading between the lines we gather the impression that this bird is by way of being cuite a feetball player.

assume that by using the Deans in exhibitions, the club might take care of the better part of the salary it expects to pay these two attractions next season.

However, there will be no anti-exhibition action taken, unless the club owners have lost their minds. The chances are that more harm is done to a baseball club through idleness than through exhibition game injuries.

What Have We Done?

THEY'RE still "bearing down" on St. Louis, these columnists. Although the baseball season has been tucked away in the mothballs, we read now and then still other complaints that "St. Louis doesn't deserve a pennant winner." The most recent commentator added: "It doesn't deserve the Deans who should be with some representative team."

What more representative team could they be with than the world champions? And why do the writers think that the city hasn't supported the Redbirds properly when it has helped Sam Breadon run a club debt of $175,000 in 1920 into a property worth more than $2,500,000? It all came out of St. Louis.

Another difficult matter to digest is the assumption, even the prophecy, that the Deans are not going to be treated right by the Cardinal. This assumption is usually accompanied by the inuendo that the Cardinals are being slowly starved to death under a mythical sweat shop payroll attributed to the organization.

We wonder what the writers of these remarks did to check up their statements about this club, the officers of which insist that its payroll in 1934 was the fourth highest of the 16 major league clubs.

The barrage of criticism from certain sources strikes one as the more peculiar when it is recalled that some of the authors, on a recent occasion, were punishing "Sweet Adeline" with "Singing Sam" himself, and enjoying long and loud wassail—at said Sam's expense.

Can't Think of Everything.

COL. E. R. BRADLEY, still the nation's most active as well as its most successful turfman, has pulled a boner or two in his day—everybody's box score has an error column.

But probably in his own mind he thinks the worst "boot" he ever committed was in the case of his filly Black Helen. Here is one of the standouts among the year's juveniles and yet she has not been eligible for any of the major two-year-old stakes.

The chances are she would have cracked a couple of the rich pots wide open, had she been in the Hopeful, the Saratoga Special or the Futurity. But she was munching oats when all these races were being run. In her five starts this great filly has run away from all opposition, winning in Man o' War time and by wide open spaces.

Another $25,000 juvenile stake was run yesterday in Maryland. And Black Helen again was on the sidelines, wondering what all the noise was about.

Why? Ask the Colonel. The answer is of course that he has a great number of two-year-olds to look after annually and that he can't figure out all of them in advance, all the time. Usually very little is going on in the Colonel's menage that he doesn't know in advance.

But this time the fine daughter of Black Toney, winner of her five starts this year, was overlooked. Thus far she has swept the slate in all her starts. Turfmen say she is the best filly shown in years and that goes for Top Flight, Mata Hari, Bazaar and others that have had sensational two-year-old campaigns. Recently she galloped to win a six-furlong race in 1:11 2-5 and seems capable of cracking 1:11. On a Maryland track that is traveling some.

And there isn't much 1934 hope for real money out of this famous two-year-old because of lack of proper engagements. But next year! She will start in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness both—at least she will be entered.

And there again is a touch of tough luck. For, as even the novice in racing matters knows, the fillies have little chance in the early season three-year-old races against the colts. One victory in more than half a century is the record.

An Elephant On His Hands.

COL. BRADLEY, although he has a couple of geese laying golden eggs for him at Palm Beach and Saratoga Springs, also has a couple of white elephants to feed. At least he has one that consumes a lot of golden eggs each year—and will again unless he can peddle it.

That is the historic Fair Grounds race course at New Orleans. The Colonel bought it some years ago and started to operate it on a truly philanthropic basis. If memory serves, he tried to make it pay on the smallest mutuel takeout known to history, 4½ per cent.

It didn't pay. The Colonel saw it couldn't so he unloaded it—or tried to. But the cat came back and this year he has it on his hands for better or worse—and the worse is yet to come.

Huey Long is in the saddle in New Orleans and in all probability he hasn't forgotten that some of the sizzling testimony given against him before a Senate investigating committee was by the same Col. Bradley.

To make matters worse New Orleans is now in a sort of Sargasso sea, in the racing ocean. All the turf currents are flowing around it. The tide of traffic will be to Miami, to California and to Texas, in all of which localities it now appears likely there will be larger purses and more of them than in the one time winter capital of racing, the Crescent City.

So the Colonel, while announcing dates and racing plans, is open to conviction, the same requiring about $400,000 cash. The Colonel always did have a good, steady serviceable nerve.

But he still has very few offers with $400,000 asked and $100,000 bid.

NORMAN, Ok., Oct. 20.—Nebraska's mighty Cornhuskers opened their campaign for their fourth Big Six title with a 6 to 0 victory over a fighting Oklahoma team here today before 15,000 persons.

The Sooners fought the Huskers on better than even terms throughout the first half and were only 18 inches from a touchdown when the half ended. Nebraska came back in the third period with its first offensive threat of the game faltering on the Sooner four-yard marker.

After numerous punt exchanges, the Huskers got a break in the fourth quarter, partly blocking Steinbock's kick. Francis and Cardwell ripped through the Sooner line for two first downs as Francis scored. Bauer fumbled the passback and was unable to attempt a place-kick for the extra point.

That was all the scoring. The Sooners took the air with a desperate last-minute effort which bogged down deep in Nebraska territory.

Kansas State Hands Kansas 13-0 Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 20.—A dramatic 70-yard touchdown dash and an 11-yard scoring climax to a sustained drive, both handled faultlessly by sophomores, gave Kansas State College a 13-0 victory over the Kansas Jayhawkers here today before a Wildcat homecoming crowd of 14,000.

It was Maurice (Red) Elder of Manhattan, 181-pound fullback, who ended the touchdown famine the university team had enforced on the Wildcats in their home town since 1926, and it was Leo C. Ayers, reserve quarterback, who scored the other touchdown against a bulky Jayhawk team that had them outweighed considerably.

Kansas State made 10 first downs against nine for Kansas and gained 168 yards from rushing against 118. Kansas State completed one of seven forward pass attempts for 23 yards, while Kansas completed two of 13 attempts for 21 yards.

Ames Humiliates Iowa U., 31 to 6.

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 20.—Little Tommy Neal, 150 pounds of shiftiness, and his gallant band of Cyclones brought Iowa State supporters joy they had not known for 19 years today when State College humiliated the State University, 31 to 6, in the contest for Hawkeye football supremacy.

More than 18,000 fans, the greatest throng ever to attend a game at State field, watched the Cyclones overwhelm the Hawkeyes to run up the top heavy score.

It was the sophomore Neal who stole the offensive show as he squirmed and dashed his way through the Hawkeyes for three touchdowns. His longest jaunt was a smart cut back through the Iowa center and guard and a mad 28-yard dash to the goal line.

The stubborn and consistent Cyclone defense manned by Hunter Brown and Ed Schrafroth, sophomore players, completely bottled Oze Simmons, "Ebony Eel" of the Hawkeye back field.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 20. — Riding the air lanes on the wings of Jim Hobin's spectacular passes, the powerful Crusaders of Holy Cross spotted a fighting Harvard team six points and then scored four touchdowns to beat the Crimson, 26 to 6, before a crowd of 40,000 in the Harvard Stadium today.

Once in the final minute of the first period and twice in the last quarter Hobin faded back behind his burly rush line and hurled touchdown passes to his teammates. The first one traveled 27 yards in the air while the others were even longer, his final effort sailing 45 yards into the waiting arms of Walter Paniak in the Harvard end zone.

To make the rout complete, a young sophomore halfback, Vin Dougherty, from Scranton, Pa., threw a 40-yard pass which John McCann, a reserve end, caught in the end zone for another Purple score with only seconds remaining to play.

While the Crusaders were taking their time getting organized, Harvard uncovered a surprising offense in the first period, twice marching deep into Holy Cross territory and putting over a touchdown on their second drive of 51 yards which was consumed in six plays.

A Litman to Jackson pass, good for 20 yards, put the Crimson on the Purple's 16-yard line and then Litman tossed a short shovel pass to Bob Haley, who squirmed over from the 12-yard line for the Harvard score. Tom Bilodeau's attempt for the extra point was wide.

Although unable to threaten again, the Crimson cohorts never gave up fighting as they held the invaders almost to a standstill during the second and third periods. Early in the last period, Hobin returned to the air and made connections on a 30-yard pass to Rex Kidd, who caught the ball on the seven-yard line and lunged over for the score.

That meant the ball game but the Hobin to Janiak and Dougherty to McCann passes, both snared in the end zone, brought 12 points home in the closing minutes.

S. M. W. SMOTHERS OKLAHOMA AGGIES

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 20.—Southern Methodist University's Mustangs, grabbing every break in sight and offering a stiff defense, walloped Oklahoma A. and M. of the Missouri Valley Conference, 41-0, before a crowd of 10,000 here today.

Not once did the Aggies threaten the Mustang goal line, while Southern Methodist's backs swung around the field in sparkling long and short dashes.

Tigers Threaten in Second Period.

It was the Tigers' turn to threaten in the second period. Line plays failing, the Tigers, as expected, took to the air and a 10-yard heave, which was good from Angello to Bourne, placed the ball on the Billikens' 14-yard line. Then it looked like a Tiger touchdown, but the St. Louis line held firm and a last-resort Missouri pass was grounded with St. Louis taking over the attack.

It didn't seem as though the St. Louis field general varied his attack much and, as Missouri has the same formations as St. Louis, there was little deception. St. Louis had to kick soon after getting the ball and Kane placed a nice one out of bounds on the Tigers' 30-yard line. Here, the Missouri backs began to gain some ground through the bulky St. Louis line, but they failed of a first down and a third-down pass was intercepted by Bittner in midfield.

Again, the Billikens began their pounding tactics and, with Hurley doing most of the gaining, rushed the ball to dangerous territory at the 24-yard mark. A pass was called, but Hurley couldn't get away and was smeared for a 10-yard loss. This stopped the Billikens and when they resorted to passes, Grenda, Missouri end, picked one out of the air and it was Missouri's ball in their own territory when the quarter ended.

In the half, St. Louis made seven first downs to one for Missouri, but the Billikens didn't have the finishing punch on two excellent thrusts.

How Cochran Scored.

It took a break to give the Billikens their scoring chance in the third period and they took instant advantage of it. After an exchange of kicks had gained about 30 yards for the Billikens, Kane kicked to Missouri's 20-yard line. Sid Johnson fumbled the ball and Cochran recovered for the Billikens. A play at the line was good for three yards and then Cochran cut through the line for the remaining 17 and a touchdown. Kane converted the extra point with a place kick.

There was hard fighting in the remaining minutes of the period, the fighting ending by the disqualification of "Red" Krause, St. Louis. This put the ball on St. Louis' 23-yard line, but the quarter ended before the Tigers could get under way.

Opening the final quarter, it was evident that Missouri had given up all hope of gaining through the St. Louis line and they attempted pass after pass. Barbaglia, who had replaced Krause at center, intercepted one and then, on Kane's heave, Mason, Missouri end, did the interception stunt. Then, it was Cochran's turn to intercept.

Tigers Again Try Passes.

Each time Missouri got the ball, passes were tried but to no avail. The Billikens toward the end of the period, got another break when, when, after Kane had kicked, Houston fumbled on a line play and the Billikens recovered. The ball was on Missouri's nine-yard line after a nice 17-yard dash by Kane but the St. Louis attack bogged down and the ball went over.

Though deep in their own territory, the Tigers continued their desperate air-attack and, with two minutes to go, Post's pass was intercepted by Drone on Missouri's 16-yard line.

There wasn't time for St. Louis to do anything and the game ended with the Billikens far in Tiger territory but with Missouri fighting gamely to the end.

Notes of Game.

FOOTBALL enthusiasm seems strangely lacking here. The old days of pep meetings and parades appears to have passed along with several other phases, which added color to games beetween traditional rivals in previous years. As a matter of fact, Missouri U. people these days are taking their football very seriously and very sadly.

A game in 1935 between the Billikens and Tigers is in the doubtful stage. Today's contest was the last under the existing two-year contract between the colleges.

The Billikens were first on the field for practice and the spectators showed evidence of awe at the size of the Billiken "beeves" as they were termed in one of the college papers here.

Just before the game started, the sun broke through and made a pretty picture of the "sunken garden" stadium. Bands of both universities were present and discoursed music of various degrees of sweetness. They united to play the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The Tigers have no regular team captain. They choose one for each game and today, the honor fell to Clair Houston of St. Louis, Missouri fullback.

Missouri played great defensive football in the opening period. Their tackling was hard and timely and their quick-kick was a fine defensive play which caught the Billikens very much asleep at the switch.

Four first downs for the Billikens and none for the Tigers in the first quarter, meant nothing except that St. Louis covered a lot of ground. The half first down count was St. Louis 7, Missouri 1.

All talk of "no spirit at Columbia" was dissipated by the lttle fellows Coach Carideo put on the field today.

After time was called at the end of the second period, brief hostilities broke out between Kersens of St. Louis and Finkle of Missouri. They soon were separated and no blood was shed.

HORSE RUNNING FIRST IN NARRAGANSETT STAKE DISQUALIFIED

By the Associated Press.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 20. — The running of the What Cheer Handicap for $5000 and added money was marred today by the disqualification of Top Row, which finished first. As a result Lady Reigh was placed first, with Time Supply second and Indian Runner third. Faireno, heavily-played favorite, finished fifth.

The stewards ordered the disqualification without formal protest when they charged Jockey Peters cut across the field in the last 70 yards. The race was worth $4670 to Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 20.—Coach Francis A. Schmidt reached into his sack of crippled Buckeye regulars in the fourth period today, pushed Jack Smith and his injured knee into the game, and beat Colgate's Red Raiders, 10 to 7, in a stirring intersectional contest.

Smith, with Ohio State trailing, 7 to 3, late in the final period, cracked through the center of the Raider line untouched for the marker that won the game.

The touchdown was the first scored against Colgate this year, and the second in four years, and tinged national championship hopes the Raiders have been nursing.

Ohio State's other scores came on Capt. Regis Monahan's 25-yard place kick in the second period, which gave the Buckeyes a temporary lead, and on Monahan's place-kick after Smith's touchdown for the extra point.

Lyon, substitute Colgate fullback, accounted for all the Raider points in the third period, scoring a touchdown from the six-inch line, where the ball had been placed when interference was ruled on a pass, and then kicking the extra point.

BEHR'S OUTLAW WINS GOLD CUP STEEPLECHASE, 5000 PERSONS ATTEND

Sister, with Ralph Niedringhaus in the saddle, was third.

Bill Snyder, veteran starter, who sent the field away from the barrier in a half dozen Kentucky Derbies, rode back and forth from stewards' stand to the post in grand style. Seated in a nobby tan trap drawn by two big grays, Starter Bill was escorted by four red-coated course officials. The only thing red about Bill was his face.

The crowd of 5000 gave its lustiest cheer of the afternoon when the winner of the Gold Cup race came back to the judges stand, Jockey Davis dismounted to be greeted by Jane Wells, this year's Veiled Prophet queen; Jane Johnson, who was queen last year, and Ruth Duhme, a special Veiled Prophet's maid.

Davis bashfully took the large gold cup, looked at it slyly, and then handed it back to Miss Wells. He gave her his bouquet of roses, too. Then he got a big hand from Benjamin L. Behr, Outlaw's owner, who had gained his second leg on the cup.

The crowd was a typical autumn sport crowd. Men in plaid jackets and cordovan leather shoes. Men with scarves for ties. Women in wine-red and rich brown woolens. Women in green corduroy suits and mink coats. Men in pink shirts, tab collars, and battered hats. Women with yellow scarves, rough wrap-around skirts and small feather-topped hats.

The crowd was intimate. Many knew many. Because Huntleigh Village is still "dry," drinking was in prohibition days. Men carried large square quarts of bourbon and round fifths of Scotch in their coat pockets. On the tally-hos there was champagne. One group had chartered a double-decker bus and installed a bar manned by a white-coated waiter, on the lower deck.

Just as the last race had started the rain began again and before the farmers on their mules had gone the furlong there was a cloudburst. Those who had stayed huddled beneath the stands, but the wind whipped the rain into their faces. All got soaked. And the rainbow that came after a half an hour was no consolation.

Football Doubleheader.

Van's Flyers will have the opportunity of taking the lead in the Greater St. Louis Football League when they play the present leading Quadrangle Club Quads in the second game of the league doubleheader this afternoon, starting at 3:30 o'clock, at the Maplewood Athletic Park, 7700 Manchester, at Laclede roads in Maplewood. The first game at 1:30 o'clock, will pit the Maplewood Wolfs against the Wildcats.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—On the stalwart shoulders of Jay Berwanger, 191 pounds of running, kicking and passing magic, Chicago climbed to the leadership of the Western Conference football standing today by a 21 to 0 victory over a game but thoroughly outclassed band of Indiana Hoosiers.

Most of the engagement was played in a driving rain, but before it degenerated into a comedy of fumbles, the Maroons fashioned three touchdowns. Out of the epidemic of fumbles in the final period, Chicago salvaged two points on a safety by Indiana.

Apparently instructed by Coach Shaughnessy to use straight football and make it work, the Maroons were slow to get started. In the second period, however, Berwanger warmed to his work and supplied the material for the first touchdown.

Before "Harry the Horse" gets into the game, St. Mary's tries Schrieber as a pass pitcher, and Joe Maniaci, of Fordham, nails one of Schreiber's inaccuracies out of the breeze and trots 82 yards to a touchdown, an incident that leads the Fordham rooters to hope for prosperity all afternoon.

Enter Harry Mattos.

Then "Harry the Horse" comes in, and shows the folks some real football twirling. Harry is sort of in and out of St. Mary's football games. Perhaps his arm gets weary after he goes a few innings. Anyway, he comes and goes, and when he goes it is a great relief to his opposition.

Harry is 23 years old, a California 6-footer, and weighs 187 pounds. By the time this reaches the reader he is perhaps fleeing for his life and liberty from Mr. George Marshall, the owner of the professional Boston Redskins, who stared at Harry in wonder and amazement all afternoon, his admiration for "The Horse" being exceeded only by his wonder at the practically magical manner in which the goal posts vanish after the game.

They are gone before you can say any name in the St. Mary's lineup. There are not enough St. Mary's alumni in the stands to carry off one goal post, let alone the whole passel, so the conclusion is reached that some needy Harlem families will have a little firewood this winter.

Tide of Battle Turns.

Fordham is pretty lucky to keep the score down to two touchdowns. St. Mary's blows a couple of noble chances, especially in the last few minutes of playing, when they are pushing the football around at Fordham's threshold, though five minutes after the game opened any gambler would have laid you two and a half to one on Fordham.

St. Mary's plays seems slow and futile at the start, but they soon begin to glow under the warm October sunshine, and toward the finish are out-playing the New Yorkers all over the large lot where the Giants saw their fondest hopes wither a few weeks ago.

And always "Harry the Horse" is most of the show, with No. 50 on his back. He pitches a pass over Fordham's goal line for the second touchdown, after tossing himself into scoring position for the first tally, and then making it in person.

A rare young man is "Harry the Horse" Mattos, and we will long remember him in these soon-forgotten parts.

Harry Ties the Score.

Mattos personally takes care of tying the score in the second period, going over from the one-yard line shortly before the end of the half. His lunges off-tackle through center and around end bring the ball to Fordham's nine-yard line and after a loss on the next play, Mattos pitches a pass to Pennino for first down on the Ram one-yard line. Mattos goes over on the next play and Meister kicks goal to tie the score.

The deciding touchdown is scored after the redoubtable "Harry the Horse" comes back in for St. Mary's late in the third period. He throws a curve to Erdelatz for first down on Fordham's 33-yard line and then shoves through for first down on the 15-yard stripe. Mattos goes through to the 10-yard mark and the teams swap goals as the period ends. On the fourth down, six to go, "Harry the Horse" drops back and whips the ball to Erdelatz over the Fordham goal line.

MICHIGAN WINS; JENNINGS RUNS 64 YDS. TO GOAL

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 20. — The comeback hopes of Georgia Tech and University of Michigan collided on a slippery gridiron here this afternoon and a 66-yard touchdown dash by little Ferris Jennings gave the Wolverines the victory, 9 to 2.

It was Michigan's first triumph of the season and the third consecutive defeat for the once mighty Golden Tornado from the South, which blew itself out in a flurry of futile passes after the rejuvenated Wolverines had piled up a 9 to 0 lead in the third period.

Jennings, the Michigan quarterback whose meager 140 pounds make him one of the lightest men ever to wear the Maize and Blue football regalia as a regular, ended a Wolverine scoring famine that had endured through two dispiriting defeats, when he scored his touchdown.

He took a punt on his 34-yard-line, eluded three desperate Tech would-be tacklers as he skirted the left end of the Southland defense, then sprinted down the sideline screened from further danger by the best interference his teammates have produced this year. Willard Hildebrand place-kicked the extra point.

That was early in the third period. Before the quarter had ended, McKay, substituting for Capt. Jack Phillips at fullback for the Yellow Jackets, fumbled a pass from center while trying to punt from behind his goal line, and two more points were scored for Michigan.

Together, with the minutes ticking fast away, Lund swung into stride beside Kostka, and in short, but tremendous bursts that flattened the tired Pitt forwards, ripped 47 yards to the Panther 17-yard line. There Quarterback Glen Seidel faded back, took the pass from center, tossed a lateral to Kostka, who in turn tossed back to Lund, with the Pitt ends and tackles all but climbing over him, Lund found his big end, Bob Tenner, loose on the 10-yard line and hurled him a perfect forward pass. Tenner had only 10 yards to go to score.

Bevan missed that point, but the damage was done. Weary Pitt clenched teeth and started back, Larue making up for his vital fumble by running all the way from his goal to the 40-yard line in three plays, then passing to Rooker at midfield. But he tried one pass too many, Vernal Levoir, Gopher back, intercepted it, and the ball game was done as far as the Panthers were concerned.

Pitt Makes Seven First Downs.

Pitt scored seven first downs to six for Minnesota, and in addition to the marvelous line play of the first three periods tossed in their amazing scoring play. In the second period burst, Weinstock, faking to the right side, reversed and found a hole off left tackle.

As he shot through, and the Minnesota secondary converged on him at midfield, he passed suddenly, and tossed backward and to the left to Nicksick, who had been trailing him. There was no one even close to the fleet Pitt carrier and he streamed unmolested half the length of the field to the goal.

FILLY CARRIES 122 POUNDS, 8 MORE THAN OTHER ENTRIES

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 20. — Nellie Flag, whose dam, Nellie Morse, won the Preakness in 1924, ran true to form today to capture the $10,000 added Selima Stakes over a field of 13.

The golden filly, sired by American Flag, beat out Walter M. Jeffords' Judy O'Grady by three-quarters of a length to win the mile race for two-year-olds in 1:38 and clip one and a quarter seconds from the 1927 stake record set by Bateau. Her victory, with the added money, enriched Warren Wright's Calumet Farm by $22,420, and brought her total winnings to $27,420.

E. R. Bradley's entries, Blossom Again and Bird Flower, were third and fourth. They finished close together, but three lengths back of Judy O'Grady.

Nellie Flag, given a masterly ride by E. Arcaro, was burdened with the top weight of 122 pounds and was second choice in the wagering. She paid $10.70 straight. Judy O'Grady rewarded her backers at the rate of $7.60 to place and $5 to show, while Blossom Again paid only $3.50 to show.

The Selima Stakes, richest race of the Maryland fall season, was the first feature of a double-stake program. The other was the $5000 Maryland Handicap, which Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, perfectly directed under the rein of J. Bejshak, won by half a length over Brookmeade Stable's Good Goods. Maine Chance, five lengths back, was third, followed closely by Fleam.

VASHON HIGH TRIMS COLUMBIA (MO.) TEAM

Coach Otis Finley's Vashon eleven smothered the Douglas High team of Columbia, Mo., 42 to 0, in an inter-city Negro high school football game yesterday afternoon at Metropolitan Field. Vashon scored in every quarter but the last, to record its fourth consecutive victory.

Brown, the outstanding back on Vashon's team, counted two touchdowns and shared scoring honors with Cooper and Martin, who also accounted for two touchdowns. Walton made the other. Vashon scored 12 points in each of the first two periods and then tallied 18 in the third quarter.

It was the first defeat for the Columbia team, which had won two and tied one before coming to St. Louis. The team is coached by Roland Wiggins.

Next Friday night, Vashon will play a team from Kansas City at Sisler's South Side softball park, Kingshighway and Chippewa.

Florida Wins, 14-0.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 20.—Paced by the elusive Wally Brown, 165-pound quarterback, and one of the South's leading scorers, Florida defeated North Carolina State, 14 to 0, this afternoon before 12,000 fans.

PASSES AND LONG RUNS WIN FOR MAPLEWOOD

Maplewood High School's football team put another victory into its record yesterday on its own field by taking the measure of the St. Louis University High School eleven. The final score was 19 to 0 and about 1200 persons saw the game.

The yellow-jerseyed Maplewood players showed their power in the first quarter when, after 5 minutes of play, Paul Christman, quarterback, flipped an 18-yard pass to Bob Orf, left end, who scampered 11 yards for a touchdown. Lester Nortman converted the extra point on a kick.

With but 2 minutes left in the second quarter, Christman winged another pass for 20 yards which was caught by Carl Pingle, left halfback, who carried the ball over from the 20-yard line. The try for point on a kick failed. St. Louis University tried a number of passes but numerous fumbles and the rain which began to fall late in this quarter stifled their efforts.

On the next play Lester Nortman skirted left end for 55 yards and a touchdown but the ball was called back because of offside by Maplewood.

Principia Beats Wentworth, 16-6

By Davison Obear.

The Principia College football team defeated the Wentworth Military Academy eleven, 16 to 6, in a well-played game at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. This was the second Missouri State junior college victory for Coach Bert Clark's squad. Principia defeated Hannibal-La Grange, 21 to 0, in the first conference battle two weeks ago.

The Stitt brothers, Earl and Robert, figured prominently in yesterday's victory. Earl scored two drop-kicks after touchdowns and his 75-yard run in the third quarter put the Principia team in scoring position. Robert Stitt's brilliant running in the second half aided in keeping the ball in Wentworth territory. Ken Bush proved himself a capable kicker, while Don Benton's defensive play was brilliant.

Capt. Robinson at tackle, the two backs, Sartoris and Heffelflinger, and Morton at end stood out for Wentworth.

In the opening quarter Wentworth, aided by an intercepted pass, advanced to the opposing 18-yard line. Principia held, however, preventing a score. Later in the period Higgins, halfback, carried the ball around the visitors' right end to the 19-yard line. Line plays took the ball to the seven-yard line as the quarter ended. Higgins skirted right end for a touchdown and Earl Stitt's drop-kick was good for the extra points. On the kick-off Sarextra points. On the kick-off Sartoris caught the ball and passed to Heffelflinger, who raced 85 yards for a touchdown. A line buck for the extra point failed. Neither team was able to make any first downs during the remainder of the period. Principia made seven first downs and Wentworth four in the opening half.

The third quarter opened with play mostly in the center of the field for the first 10 minutes. Earl Stitt received a punt and, after throwing off one tackler, raced 75 yards down the side of the field to the three-yard line before he was downed. Higgins went off tackle for another touchdown and again Stitt's drop-kick was good.

In the fourth quarter a well-directed punt by Fullback Bush went out of bounds on the Wentworth two-yard line. Rather than take a chance of having a punt blocked, Sartoris, halfback, stepped out of the end zone to give Principia a safety and two more points.

WITH Missouri's 1934 waterfowl shooting season open since last Friday, the major hunting season is fast getting under way.

Seasons, now or soon to be open include:

DEER—Oct. 25, 26 and 27 on bucks having at least four points to an antler.

QUAIL—Nov. 10 to Dec. 31; bag of 10 a day, 15 in possession.

FURBEARERS—Nov. 15 to Jan. 15; no take limit.

Few waterfowl were reported on hand to provide targets for the scattering of sportsmen who went on lake and slough over the week end. Although postoffice authorities say there has been a fairly good sale of the new $1 Federal duck stamps which nimrods are required to have affixed on their state hunting permits only a few sportsmen had planned to open the season this week-end. A mild fall has not yet forced the big flight southward so, with limited time to spend in duck blinds, most sportsmen say they are going to wait until more favorable weather.

Some authorities are none too optimistic about what even better duck weather will bring because the earlier reports of a waterfowl shortage are being verified from all sections of the country, those familiar with the situation say. There is one group of conservationists which has taken both Federal and State agencies severely to task for not closing the season. This group again this week issued another warning regarding the dwindling waterfowl supply and urged State and Federal authorities to curtail the shooting season. It appears, however, that duck shooting is to be permitted as usual with new restrictions as to bag limit and shooting days. Both State and Federal authorities are insisting that sportsmen help in the effort to curb illegal shooting including exceeding the bag limit and shooting on closed days. Both State and Federal authorities have agreed to work together in enforcement of the emergency waterfowl shooting regulations.

With Federal Court in session in three places in Missouri violators of the regulations may be expected to face a speedy justice, it is pointed out.

Deer Season Opens This Week

The deer season which opens this week for a three-day session is expected to attract about 2000 hunters into 20 Ozark counties. E. L. Preston, director of information for the State Game and Fish Department, at Jefferson City, has answered many inquiries relative to deer hunting during the last two weeks. The region known as the Ozark Highlands is generally considered best deer hunting territory although Gasconade County also ranks at the top of deer killed in years past. Taney County in Southwest Missouri also reports several deer killed. Wayne County in Southeast Missouri has a fairly high deer population, those familiar with that section say, but generally attracts few hunters. The majority of hunters are usually found in Dent and Reynolds Counties.

Raccoon Hunters Ready.

That group of hunters possessing what is known as "tree dogs" already has been afield. The season on furbearers, including the much persued raccoon, opens Nov. 15. This, however, will likely be too early to find pelts in prime condition, veteran furmen say. They argue for a flexible season to be determined by the State Game and Fish Department in variance with seasonal changes in weather.

"What killed the jack salmon," is the moot question fishermen below the Bagnell Dam are asking one another now hat great number of big fish have been found in the Osage River below the Lake of the Ozarks either dead or stunned. Most common opinion has been that with the jacks attempting to go upstream at this season they have rushed into the turbine outlets only to be forced out and thrown against the concrete apron below the spillway. Charles Fleetwood, game warden assigned to the eastern end of the Lake of the Ozarks, now is cooperating with the operators of the Union Electric Co.'s power plant to learn if this is the cause of the waste of fish life and if so, to take steps to prevent fish from getting into the turbines' rush of water.

Princeton Wins On Points After Two Touchdowns

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 20. — The football teams of two of the nation's oldest institutions of higher learning—Princeton and Washington and Lee—waged a dramatic, nerve-wracking battle within the high walls of Palmer Stadium today, with the mighty Tiger eleven emerging victorious by the slender margin of two points as the result of scoring a last-gasp touchdown.

Face to face in its first defeat in two seasons, Princeton turned what would have been one of the most stunning upsets of this surprising year into a 14 to 12 triumph when Pepper Constable, regular fullback held out of the starting lineup plunged over the goal line for a touchdown as the time clock showed two minutes to play.

A crowd estimated to number 25,000 went wild in the closing quarter as first Washington and Lee, presenting a brilliant, fighting array of heads up ball players, came from behind to take the lead by a succession of spectacular forward passes, and then Princeton staged its final winning rally.

A long forward from Sam Mattox, captain of the Generals, to Charley Smith, towering end, gave the invaders, the first touchdown in the opening quarter.

Mattox, however, failed to add the extra point and that failure unlimately resulted in the W. and L. defeat, for Princeton, evened the score in the second quarter by unloosing a sensational aerial attack of its own and moved into the lead when Ken Sandback placekicked the point after touchdown.

With both teams fighting each other to a standstill on the ground, the air brought each its last quarter touchdown.

Oregon State and Trojans Tie, 6-6

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—Oregon State came from behind in the last minutes of play today to tie Southern California, 6 to 6, before 40,000 astonished spectators.

Southern California scored in the first seven minutes of play, but the game exploded in their faces. Fighting desperately to score, Oregon State fired a long pass deep in Southern California territory. A Trojan back dashed over and knocked the ball down, but it fell into the arms of Milton Campbell, Beaver end, and he sprinted across the goal line unmolested.

The Trojans, smarting from the sting of two successive defeats, played their best football of the season. The visitors scored one more first down than the home team, ten to nine, but Southern California had an edge in rushing, 129 yards to 107.

HAEMMERLE WILL MEET ANDERSON ON CARD FRIDAY NIGHT

The fourth all-star middleweight wrestling card to be held under the auspices of the Auditorium Sports Club, will take place Friday evening at the Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p. m.

In the main event Al Haemmerle, 140 pounds, who claims the Eastern Missouri lightweight championship, will meet Johnny Anderson, 147 pounds, coach of the St. Louis University wrestling squad.

SOLDAN HOLDS LEAD IN HIGH SCHOOL GOLF

Soldan scored six points yesterday to hold its lead in the High School Golf League with a total of 19 points for the season with Beaumont which also scored six points, one behind with 18. Another 18-hole round over the Municipal 18-hole course in Forest Park next Saturday will finish the season.

Other teams with their scores for yesterday and totals: McKinley 6—15; Roosevelt 1—9; Cleveland 0—6; Central 0—1.

W. Hawkins of McKinley was low for the 18 holes yesterday with a 78 while Koopman of Roosevelt and Bowron of Soldan tied for second with 83 each.

By Lloyd McMaster

American Professional League football will be presented to St. Louis fans this afternoon for the first time when the St. Louis Blues oppose the Louisville Bourbons, at Public Schools Stadium. Starting time is 3 o'clock.

This game will be not only the introduction of the league teams here but also a battle for first place. While the season is young, the Blues having played only one league contest, the St. Louis and Louisville elevens are the only ones unbeaten. Louisville has won two games while the Blues won their single engagement.

Coach Bucky Moore of the Louisville team will present a team with a strong flavor of the 1933 Portsmouth eleven of the National League. The club will have a line average of 214 pounds and a backfield average of 191 pounds. The Blues will go 212 on the front line but lighter backfield men will bring the team average down below 200.

New Plays Promised.

Coach "Choppy" Rhodes promised some fancy football—some plays that he says never have been seen in college or pro play. He predicted a victory for the Blues, and added that the taking of this game probably would mean first place in the league standing for some time as Louisville is considered the strongest of the southern teams.

Rhodes expects to use an attack built around George Grosvenor, former Colorado U. player, who has gained much popularity in his two appearances here in exhibition games. Grosvenor, a quarterback, is credited with booting the ball 75 yards on the fly in last Sunday's game at Charlotte, N. C., which the Blues won by 21-0.

Scores made against Charlotte afford a basis of comparison of the two teams. Louisville also beat the North Carolina team, its margin of victory being 7 to 0.

First Local Title Contest.

Today's game is the first of five league contests to be played in St. Louis by the Blues. The league schedule calls for home and home games with all the other clubs—Louisville, Tulsa, Memphis, Dallas and Charlotte.

One member of the Blues, Halfback Buck Hansen, will not play today. He has a leg injury which will keep him out of uniform. Center Bill McDonald and Tackle Sark also have injuries, but may be in action. While Hansen is lost for the home league opener, Arnold Arenz has been added to the Blues' list since they last played, and Coach Rhodes has said Arenz would be in the game today. Rhodes likes Arenz' passing.

SISLER'S 50-YARD RUN WINS FOR BURROUGHS

The Burroughs "A" team scored its first victory of the season, defeating Clayton yesterday at Clayton Field, 13 to 6. The first score of the game was made when O'Niel, Burroughs' halfback, crossed the Clayton goal line in the first quarter.

Shaffer, fast Clayton back made Clayton's only score during the third quarter. Tied until the last few seconds of play, 6-to-6, the break came for Burroughs when Sisler, Burroughs' halfback, intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. Russe plunged for the extra point.

The lineups:

CLAYTON.	POS.	BURROUGHS.
[illegible]	R. E.	Jones
[illegible]	R. T.	Hay
[illegible]	R. G.	Matthews

Substitutions: Clayton—Whike for Jamison, Jablonsky for Hicks, Klutzger for Jamison for Whike, Hicks for Burroughs—Scuder for O'Niel, for Eiseman. First downs—Burroughs 5, Clayton 6. Referee—Newsom; umpire—; linesman—Halter.

Western "B" Ties, "C" Team Wins.

The "B" teams of Western and Burroughs played a hard fought game to a 7 to 7 tie yesterday at Clayton. It was the excellent running of Edwards that put the Burroughs team in scoring position. Lawry scored for Burroughs while Dunne scored for Western.

The Western "C" team defeated the Burroughs "C" team, 18 to 7. The touchdowns for Western were made by Page, Morgan and Newberry. The touchdown for Burroughs was made by Obourn after a long run by Phelps.

First downs—Western 11, C. B. C. 8.

A squat 170-pound human battering ram, and a 140-pound speedster who returned punts until the opposing ends were dizzy, combined with a bruising blocking and tackling power that sent player after player down and sometimes out, enabled Western Military Academy's football team to trounce Christian Brothers' High 25-0 yesterday afternoon at Alton in the opening game of the Preparatory League season.

The ram was Al Armato, who scored three of his team's four touchdowns, and aided in the fourth, and the speedster was Bob Cutler, who averaged about 20 yards on his return of punts and scored the fourth touchdown on a 40-yard runback of a kick.

The Brothers fought courageously, but with Western tackling and blocking runners so fiercely that two of the Borthers' regulars were forced out of the game in the third period through inability to take more punishment, Western tallied twice more in the last quarter to completely rout the C. B. C. team.

Billy Ratican, who was almost all of the Brothers' offense, and Len Gorman, fullback, were the players forced out of the game in the third period. Ratican went out after carrying the ball for a good gain, and Gorman was knocked out, as was Al Armato, when the latter blocked Gorman in clearing the path for Cutler's touchdown.

Held scoreless in the first quarter, although constantly threatening, Western broke through to score in the second frame. Cutler paved the way with a 23-yard return of a kick to C. B. C.'s 17-yard line. Tschanen and Armato alternated at plugging the line, with the latter scoring from the two-yard mark.

In the third period, after Ratican went out, Cutler caught a punt near the sideline and cleverly cutting diagonally across the field, he placed most of his men in front of him as interference, with Armato colliding with Gorman to take out the last player in front of him. Tschanen then passed to Cutler for the extra point, the only one Western made.

Starting on its 33-yard line in the last stanza, Western, on a 21-yard run by Tschanen and a 30-yard dash by Cutler, placed the ball on C. B. C.'s six-yard mark, from where Armato finally carried it over.

The Brothers' entire second team went in, and started off fine, and drove to Western's 22-yard line, the high-water mark of their advance, but a 15-yard penalty stopped their advance. Tschanen, after an exchange of punts, intercepted a pass on the Brothers' 17-yard line. After Cutler added five yards, Armato went 12 yards through the line for the score.

The victory makes Western favorite for the Prep League title, and it may be decided in the next two weeks, as the Altonites play St. Louis University High next week at Alton, and McBride the following week.

ALTON WINS THIRD STRAIGHT ON EAST SIDE

Alton continues to set the pace in the Madison-St. Clair football conference as it won its third straight start yesterday afternoon by turning back the Wood River High eleven, 13 to 7, at Wood River. In the one other contest played on the East Side, East St. Louis defeated Collinsville's Kahoks, 14 to 6.

Coach Ray Jackson's Alton eleven lost no time in scoring in their contest against Wood River as they counted touchdowns in each of the first and second quarters. Wood River registered its touchdown in the first quarter.

In the second quarter East St. Louis played the Kahoks off their feet and accounted for two touchdowns. Walter Jefferies, although not counting a score, was mainly responsible for the fine play of the victors. Of the 11 first downs registered by East St. Louis, Jefferies had a hand in seven of them.

In the first quarter East St. Louis got three first downs and Collinsville the same number. In the second quarter, Eddie Coker passed to Walt Posage, netting the victors their first touchdown. Later in the same period George Strecker plunged through the center of Collinsville's line for another touchdown. Eddie Posgave gave East St. Louis both points after touchdown with kicks from placement.

Collinsville's score came in the last few seconds as Deering passed to Evers as the gun ended play. The try for extra point from placement failed.

Bowling Notes

Officers for the coming season will be elected at the annual meeting of the Greater St. Louis Tenpin Bowlers' Association at Hotel Melbourne at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Judge Frank B. Grodzki, who has held the presidency since 1927, will be a candidate to succeed himself. In a statement issued last night, Grodski said that he would make an active fight for retention of the office and would urge the bowlers to return Jerry Ameling to the position of secretary and C. Howard Stewart to the post of treasurer.

Hank Summers' Budweiser bowling team, of the Major City and A. B. C. Scratch leagues, will oppose the Saratogas in a three-game match at the Saratoga Recreation tonight at 8 o'clock.

Clarence Stein, manager of the Saratoga alleys, has scheduled a six-game sweepstakes for Oct. 27 and 28. Entry fee is $2.70, including bowling, and entries can be filled by calling HIland 9633.

Jean Huelsman won high scoring honors in Heidel's Women's Wednesday Night League with a 622 total, which included a 246 game and helped the Schmitts win three games from the Budweisers. L. Wild nosed out Miss Huelsman for high single with a 248 count. In the other matches the Morganfords won three from the Colombos and Schreibers took two from the Pennys and the Heidels won two from the Bigaltes.

The Silver Seals and Fosters are tied for first place in the Mound City League at the Del-Mar alleys, the Fosters winning three games from the Dealers and the Seals dropping the odd game to the Hauptmanns. The Brocks won two from the Comforts and the Judge Butlers took two from the Liberty Bells in the other matches. Herle won the weekly high three with a score of 617.

In a doubleheader bowled by Heidel's Women's Scratch League, the Vescovos scored high three, 2756, in their match against the Eurekas, but the Eurekas won the odd game, their total being 2608. In this match the Vescovos recorded team season high single game of 1010.

Park Recreation won two games from Hellrungs, 2508 to 2538; Dorrs made a clean sweep against Heidel Recreation in three games, 2522 to 2484, and Edith Waldens won three games from Students' Den, 2574 to 2269.

In the last half of the doubleheader, the Hellrungs scored team high three, 2663, winning three games from the Eurekas, who totaled 2569. Park Recreation took the odd game from the Edith Waldens, 2484 to 2497; Dorrs won three games from the Students' Den, 2636 to 2461, and Vescovos gained the odd game from Heidel's Recreation, 2525 to 2426.

U. CITY TO PLAY TUSCALOOSA, ALA HERE SATURDAY

An intersectional contest between University City High School, leading team of the County League, and Tuscaloosa High, one of the strongest teams in the state of Alabama, will be played next Saturday afternoon on Washington University Field.

University City has not been defeated since Soldan's 7-0 victory in 1932 during the early part of the season. This year, the Indians have scored three triumphs, beating Clayton 41-0, Webster Groves 12-7, and St. Charles, 59-0.

Tuscaloosa has turned in two one-sided conquests so far this season, defeating Gordo (Ala.) 30-0, and Holt (Ala.) 40-0.

The Alabama school has an impressive record in intersectional competition, defeating six out-state teams, scoring 164 points to its opponents' 32. University City accounted for 13 of them when it lost in the final minutes of a game in Tuscaloosa 19-13 in 1931.

TRIPLE A HANDBALL TOURNAMENT OPENS

Mayer and Haynes, seeded seventh and representing Fire Engine House No. 18 were forced to three hard-fought games in the opening round contest with Clausen and Bishop, Triple A pair, to feature play in the Triple A city-wide handball tournament yesterday afternoon, downing their foes, 21—7, 18—1, 21—12. The match was played on the outdoor court at Triple A.

In a preliminary round match, Davis and Joseph, Triple A, downed Remley and Mullen, St. Louis U., 21—14, 21—20, while in another preliminary, Long and Hotze of Triple A side-tracked Eckhardt and Crump, St. Barbara Church duo, 21—14, 21—16.

Play will continue this afternoon with the two remaining preliminary round matches scheduled to start at 1 o'clock to be followed by the first round matches. George Sanford and Charles Berg, top seeded team from Triple A, will swing into action at the same time, opposing Al Davis and Arthur Joseph, fellow-club members.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

HOCKEY SQUAD TO START WORK HERE SATURDAY

OTTOWA, Ont., Oct. 20.—St. Louis Eagles are rapidly taking shape and Manager Eddie Gerard now has his team cut close to playing size. Following a pair of bristling workouts this morning and evening at the local auditorium, Gerard used the pruning knife to weed out several amateur and minor league professional players and, with the addition of several new players, will be ready to take the Eagles to St. Louis, leaving here next Thursday. Ellis Pringle of last year's Windsor Bull Dogs in the International League, and Harold "Yip" Radley, former Ottowa senior amateur defense man who performed for the Cleveland Indians in the International in 1933, left the St. Louis team after tonight's drill. Although Gerard is letting five amateurs go, he has hopes of keeping an eye on them by having them play with the Ottawa Senators, entry in the Quebec senior amateur hockey group.

The St. Louis pilot, coach of the Montreal Maroons last year, was particularly pleased with the showing of his team in yesterday's drills. He intends to have them engage in two practices on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week and probably again on Thursday morning. The squad will then leave here Thursday night for St. Louis where workouts on the Arena ice surface will probably get under way Saturday.

"Bud" Cook, young center ice player, who is a brother of the New York Rangers' famous pair, Bill and Bud, is going exceptionally well in practice. He is showing a fine turn of speed and brilliant stick-handling and is certain to be among the party that takes the ice in St. Louis for the first time.

On defense Gerard had two combinations at work. Irving Frew and Vernon Ayers paired together with "Scotty" Bowman and Jerry Kalbfleisch handling the other rear guard duties. The St. Louis pilot has hopes of landing another defenseman in the next few days, although just who this player is has not yet been made known.

The players are very anxious to get to St. Louis, where the big ice surface is bound to help such speedsters as Jerry Shannon, Max Kaminsky, the Roche brothers and others. The Eagles looked impressive in the double program yesterday.

Just how strong the team will be will not really be known until after the first game but, if the squad continues the rapid improvement shown in recent drills, the Eagles are bound to be real contenders all the way.

Daily workouts will take place in St. Louis after the squads arrival in preparation for the National League opening with the Chicago Black Hawks, Nov. 8.

Webb to Box Arkansas Title Holder Wednesday

Rual Bowden, a 175-pounder from Poplar Bluff, who captured the Southeastern Missouri championship, has been signed to meet Herman West, a Southern Illinois Golden Glove titleholder, in what should prove to be one of the outstanding battles on the card. Bowden has lost but seven matches in 54 jousts, while West dropped but one decision in his last 10 starts.

Kessler is attempting to close two more all-star features, and is planning to send Vic Gimarino, a former city champion, against Barney McDuffee, a Southern Illinois Golden Gloves 145-pounder, who has won all of his bouts in St. Louis. Gimarino has completed his training at Sherman Park, and is ready for the test.

Egon Longiaru, who sprang a surprise by defeating Art Pierson, has announced that he is willing to give his foe another chance. Pierson is expected to file his entry tomorrow.

Dave Stanfield meets Jim Simlongton, a Southeastern Missouri lightweight champion, in the third all-star match closed. Stanfield, who has defeated four of his last five opponents by the kayo route, will be seeking revenge for Simlongton gained a decision over him two years ago.

NEW ARENA CLUB FORMED TO SPONSOR AMATEUR ATHLETICS

A new St. Louis amateur sports organization, the Arena Athletic Club, has been organized, with 55 members as its nucleus. By-laws are being drawn up and a final organization meeting will be held Thursday night at the Arena, at 7:30 o'clock.

The members chose as their first president, E. J. Wallace. Charles Gevecker, president of the Western Amateur Athletic Union, was elected first vice-president; Mrs. Ted Young, second vice-president; Robert G. Blattner, third vice-president, and Art Willow, secretary-treasurer.

It is the plan of the club to sponsor only amateur athletics. Among the sports tentatively considered on the year-around program are ice hockey, speed and figure skating, indoor tennis, table tennis, bicycling, boxing, wrestling, softball, basketball and football.

20 MUNICIPAL SOCCER ELEVENS IN ACTION TODAY

The two defending champions, the Alpen Braus and the Holy Rosary club, will begin the twenty-third season of the Municipal Soccer League this afternoon, along with 18 other teams.

The Alpen Braus, known as the Doyles when they won the city and state senior titles last spring, play the Hartmanns in the opener at Fairground No. 2, with Judge James P. Finnegan making the official kick-off at 2 o'clock. In the second game the Russells are matched with the Kelly Recreation.

Holy Rosary, city junior titleholder, meets the Russo Brothers at Fairground No. 5 after the Loop Recreation has played the Eighteenth Ward Democrats.

Manager Elmer Dowling of the Alpen Braus has lost Goalie Walter Giesler and Outside Left Joe Strattman to the Ben Millers of the professional league, but has J. McAndrews of the Clearys and J. Brannigan of the Minit Rubs as respective replacements

Besides the crack forwards, E. Grenon, W Fogarty and J. Rabbitt, Dowling has the following veterans: J. Regan, J. Machen, J. Doyle, J. Gamewell, J. Breman, J. Hederman, J. Brockmeyer, J. Fogarty and H. Duhlman; and new men—S. Nolan, J. Ipemeyer, E. Begley and W. Swearingen.

Johnny Ebert, Holy Rosary manager, is relying on Eugene Rapplean, William Connors and John Dalton for his scoring punch with his other players including: Wilford Murphy, William Nisley, Robert Broderick, Ralph Koch, August Rigodano, Paul Grico, Maurice Dalton, Melvin Nieman, Derrill Dunkman and Herbert Kramer.

Three other divisions open today. In Concordia No. 1 St. John the Baptist meets St. Hedwig and St. Francis de Sales opposes St. Agnes. In Carondelet No. 1, the Busicks play the South Side and the two spirited rivals, La Sociedad Espanola and the German Sport Club (1932-33 city champion) play the second game.

The other division, really two, has the name, "Forest Park-Sherman Park," and will have Irish Village playing Winklers and St. Ambrose Y. M. S. battling Carlstrom, both games at Forest Park, grounds No. 11. Since this schedule was formed two other teams have enlisted, with two more needed to round out each circuit.

Three divisions are inactive this week: Fairground Nos. 3 and 4 because of an incompleted shift of teams, and Carondelet Junior Division No. 2 because one vacancy still exists in this group.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Fairground Park No. 2—Hartmann vs. Alpen Brau, H. Donovan, 2:00 p. m. Russell vs. Kelly, H. Ratican, 3:30 p. m.

Fairground Park No. 5, Juniors—Loop vs. Eighteenth Ward Democrats, A. Claeys, 2 p. m. Russo Bros. vs. Holy Rosary, E. Burke, 3:30 p. m.

Forest-Sherman, at Forest Park Grounds No. 11—Irish Village vs. Winklers, N. Reidy, 2 p. m. St. Ambrose Y. M. S. vs. Carlstrom, I. Wimer, 3:30 p. m.

Carondelet No. 1—Busiek vs. South Side, W. Brady, 2 p. m. La Sociedad Espanola vs. German Sport Club, W. Walsh, 3:30 p. m.

Concordia No. 1—St. John the Baptist vs. St. Hedwig, J. Cradock, 2 p. m. St. Francis de Sales vs. St. Agnes, P. Garcia, 3:30 p. m.

The Fairground No. 3 and No. 4 divisions of the Soccer League and the Carondelet No. 2 Junior division will play their opening games next Sunday.

SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT TO CONTINUE TONIGHT

Another attempt will be made to continue the championship series of the St. Louis Softball Park, Ohio and Shenandoah avenues, tonight when the Grand Chevrolets and Stockmans clash in the third game of a three-out-of-five series in the men's division and the Silver Seals and S. K.'s clash in the girls' games, the latter teams taking the field at 7:30, followed by the men at 9 o'clock.

Both divisions are deadlocked with one victory for each team and the remaining games are scheduled for tonight and Tuesday night and if a fifth game is necessary, will be contested Wednesday night.

The teams started their battles for the park title two weeks ago but were halted several times by rain and wet grounds. The Stockmans and Silver Seals won the first half of the split season in the park in their divisions, while the Grand Chevrolets and S. K. nosed out the first-half winners to cop the second half.

BANAS, FORMER NOTRE DAME PLAYER, IS STAR OF INVADERS

Believing that they form a more powerful combination than the Gunner eleven of last season, which lost but two of its 16 starts, Chile Walsh's local pro gridders will oppose the Chicago Gophers in a professional football contest this afternoon at Sportsman's Park.

The kick-off for the football game is set for 2:30 o'clock, and earlier the Marres and Ben Millers will trade kicks in a St. Louis Professional Soccer League match, beginning at 1:20 o'clock.

The admission price to see both games is 75 cents, while women and bleacher fans will be admitted to the double bill for 40 cents.

Walsh is pinning his hopes of victory on his two star backs, Chester "Swede" Johnston, the line-plunger, and Cy Casper, the crafty broken field runner, and his stout line. Johnston and Casper, who have been valuable in both the Gunners' games to date, proved in practice during the past week that they are even expected to play an improved brand of football against the Gophers.

Gene Alford, blocking halfback, and Blake Workman, quarterback, round out the first-string ball-carrying quartet.

With two lines Walsh is calling on his heaviest and most experienced huskies to start. He has in Paul Moss, former All-America from Purdue, and George Rogge, ends; Sandy Sandburg and Charley Diehl, a pair of 220-pounders, tackles; Leonard McGirl and Al Wunsch, guards, and Don Weldon, center, a line which can perform capably.

The Gunners, in polishing off the Oklahoma City Chiefs, 19 to 6, and the Chicago Tigers, 27 to 2, played good football, but it is expected after getting the two early season battles under their belts they will be a more formidable aggregation against the Gophers.

The big and aggressive halfback, Steve Banas, of Notre Dame, is the player the Gunners will have to watch in their battle with the Chicagoans. Banas, a 215-pounder, has led the Gophers to victories in all their games but one during the past two years. It took the Chicago Bears, N. L. champions, to stop the winning streak of the Gophers, and even in that game Banas had a great day. He scored a touchdown as his team went down to defeat, 18 to 6. His work on the defense also stood out, for he continually backed up the line as the Gophers held Red Grange, Bronko Nagurski, Hewitt, Kopcha and other Bruin stars scoreless for two periods.

The Chicago Tigers were blanked by the Gophers 10 to 0.

In addition to Banas, the Gophers have some other fleet and daring backs in the persons of Quarterback Opasik of Indiana; Halfback Saluski of Purdue and Fullback Patrick of Oglethorpe.

The lineup:

209	Moss	L. E.	Matovina	200
220	Sandburg	L. T.	Bodman	210
200	Wunsch	L. G.	Zych	200
190	Weldon	C.	Smith	225
205	McGirl	R. G.	Jahr	200
220	Diehl	R. T.	Shearer	215
180	Rogge	R. E.	Bendo	205
188	Workman	Q. B.	Opasik	185
180	Casper	L. H.	Banas	215
185	Alford	R. H	Saluski	175
205	Johnston	F. B.	Patrick	205

Starting time, 2:30 p. m. Officials: Don Henry (Kenyon), referee; Boise Pothoff (Washington), umpire, and John Morrison (Iowa), field judge. Reserves: Gunners—Senn, La Presta, Rapp, McLaughlin, Andraws, Gladden, Boeman, Jennison, Montgomery, Reynolds and MacLeod. Gophers—Dover, Schumacher, Pano, Cogan, Dotlich, Blake, Hall, Delich, Hills, Long, Fletcher, Bock, Kwansy, Racich and Hillel.

John Marre's soccer club, bitter rival of the Stix team in several past seasons, has an opportunity to take undisputed possession of first place in the St. Louis Soccer League race this afternoon. It will only be necessary for Marre's boys to defeat the Ben Millers in their match at Sportsman's Park, preceding the Gunner football game. Kick-off in the soccer match is scheduled for 1:20 p. m.

In defeating the Centrals, 2 to 1, in the season's opening games last Sunday, the Marre club displayed the speed and fighting spirit that has characterized Marre clubs for years. The Millers, with a far stronger lineup than they had last season, would seem to be logical favorites in today's game, but some of their stars have not yet hit their best stride, and the better-conditioned Marre club seems to have an edge. Kickham and Woody Selby, important cogs in the Miller machine, were much too selfish last Sunday in their game with the Hellrungs, when the Millers were held to a tie score.

With C. W. Corcoran of St. Louis, He Organizes Company at State Capital.

Missouri's State capital has a new Ford dealer in a new location—the Corcoran Motor Co., Inc., owned and operated by several prominent citizens of the State.

C. W. Corcoran, active head of the new firm, is well known throughout the State for his automobile activities. His most recent connection was with one of the large automobile distributors in the United States, located in St. Louis.

Associated with him is Senator Michael Kinney of St. Louis, president of the Missouri State Senate and one of the oldest legislators in the State in point of service. Corcoran and Senator Kinney formed the new company, which took over all sales and service of Ford products in Cole County, of which Jefferson City is the county seat.

One of the first actions of the Corcoran company was to remove from the location on the West Side of the city to new quarters at 322 East Capitol avenue, one of the most modern up-to-date sales and service establishments in Jefferson City. The building is of one-story construction easily entered by a motorist desiring service. There is a large showroom and ample space in the basement for storage of new Ford V-8's.

Announcing the new dealership in Jefferson City, the Ford Motor Co. also states that the Corcoran Motor Co. will be a parts distributor, carrying a complete line of parts for the servicing of all previous types of Ford automobiles, commercial cars and trucks as well as the present day V-8's.

The Corcoran Co. will have a Ford V-8 truck distributing these parts and taking orders from garages in the vicinity of Jefferson City.

Such large users of Ford products as the State of Missouri, which has its highway headquarters at Jefferson City, will be supplied by this parts distributor.

Lincoln Engineering Co. Makes Rapid Advance In Lubrication Field

A St. Louis industry which has jumped within a year to a prominent position in its field is the Lincoln Engineering Co., engineer, designer and manufacturer of Lincoln lubrication equipment.

Until a year ago, the company manufactured powerized lubricating equipment for a national sales organization. Then it decided to do its own manufacturing and selling. The entire Lincoln line is engineered for the needs of today and tomorrow. It has kept pace with the advances in motor car engineernig and the newest types of lubricants.

Many of the finest service stations, motor car dealers, garages and filling stations in St. Louis are equipped with Lincoln lubricating pumps, guns and other devices. Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, has equipped his Ford agency on Washington avenue with Lincoln devices.

Laying Road of Iron.

Engineers of the University of Minnesota are laying a 30-foot stretch of cast-iron pavement on the campus which is expected to be virtually skidproof in any weather, and resistant enough to outlast granite, brick, wood or cement. Surfacing blocks of cast-iron are of various kinds, one type being 12 inches square, and another being in the form of an equilateral triangle 10 inches on a side. In both cases, the blocks are about two inches thick, and are hollowed out on the under side to reduce the weight, which amounts to approximately 25 pounds per square foot of paved surface. The upper side is studded with a diamond-shaped pattern, similar to that used on some makes of nonskid automobile tires.

Short Tours From St. Louis

A TRIP out the Olive Street road, through Chesterfield and on to the Missouri River makes an excellent 25-mile drive.

The little known "Pleasant Valley" is a very interesting excursion.

Follow the Clayton road to the end, where it meets the Valley road, which passes along one side of the valley and runs into the Long Kerrs Mill road, forming a circuit route back to Clayton road and on into Manchester road.

United States No. 66 to Eureka, then the Old State road (County Highway B) is a picturesque up hill down hill drive. No. 66 to Eureka is concrete, and B from there to the Manchester is fine gravel.

An attractive drive goes out the Olive Street road to Chesterfield, then circles on Wild Horse Creek road back to Manchester road. This route is not congested, offers unusual beauty, is in first-class condition and passes the new Joseph Babler State Park.

The Pacific North road, leading from Pacific, Mo., on United States 66, to United States 50 is locally famous for its vistas, especially that of the Meramec Valley. This road is gravel and narrow in places, but is good.

Fort Bellefontaine, high over the Missouri River, offers a sweeping view of the surrounding country. It is a detention home for boys and is reached by way of Bellefontaine road and Spanish Lake.

The Florissant Valley is pretty, no matter when visited. Out Natural Bridge to Florissant road, then to Bridgeton road, is the most interesting drive. This takes in the old settlement of Florissant, and passes directly in front of the Municipal Airport.

For those who prefer a longer drive, Gravois road to St. Clair and return over U. S. 66 gives an all-concrete circle trip.

The House Springs-Antonio road, leading from House Springs on the Gravois to Antonio on the old Lemay Ferry Rock road, is in fine condition. Return from Antonio may be made over the old road through Maxville to a junction with U. S. 61.

A recent report of the State Highway Commission said that the detour on State 21 out of DeSoto was to be officially removed about Oct. 20. However, traffic is already using the new construction. This is a direct route into the Arcadia Valley, which is at its best.

Traffic on U. S. 61 is carried over a short section of construction at the Meramec River south of the river 7½ miles of pavement is being widened, with traffic using construction. Careful driving is necessary.

With the season rapidly approaching when motorists will be buying weather protection for car cooling systems of the du Pont Co. announces an aggressive advertising and merchandising program for its product, Zerone.

The selection of the proper anti-freeze presents each year a problem to the motorist. His first thought is usually to protect his cooling system from freezing. Other factors enter into the use of an anti-freeze. Cooling systems are designed to operate with water as the cooling medium. Water permits the formation of rust, hindering its own free circulation and heat transfers, but with the relatively high boiling point of water the motorist is seldom troubled by his radiator boiling over. With the adding of most anti-freeze products to the water in a car cooling system, the boiling point of the cooling medium is lowered and prevented by the rust in the radiator from circulating as freely as it should and thereby transferring the engine heat to the air, so motorist is frequently troubled with a "boiling" radiator, the du Pont Co. says.

Zerone is designed by the du Pont Co. to protect cars against freezing at any degree of temperature and also to prevent the formation of rust in the cooling system. It is an all year round product since, having no offensive odor, its presence in the cooling system in hot weather is not objectionable to a motorist.

The du Pont laboratories in their research work for a low priced anti-freeze without objectionable features, found that by a synthetic process, rather than by distillation, they could produce the most efficient anti-freeze. By this synthetic process they got a product free from offensive odor and evaporating at a very low rate. Their charts show, they declare, that about 30 per cent less Zerone is required to protect a cooling system for any degree of temperature than of other anti-freezes in the same price class.

During the past two years there has been a growing demand by motorists for products in packages giving assurance that they are getting a product of the strength and purity the manufacturer inteded they should get. This demand has extended to anti-freeze. To meet it, the du Pont Co is marketing Zerone in refinery sealed cans, in gallons and quarts. Zerone in sealed cans costs a car owner no more than when he is served from a drum. These small containers give the motorist who is particular the opportunity to carry a few cans of Zerone in his garage or in his car as a ready protection against sudden changes in temperature. The weather protection is on hand right when it is needed.

E. F. Schumacher, assistant director of sales, and R. H. Coleman, advertising manager, of the Zerone Division of the du Pont Company were in St. Louis Wednesday and entertained the St. Louis and nearby jobbers and their selling organizations at a dinner in the Melbourne Hotel. Schumacher said that shipments of Zerone thus far this year have exceeded those in any previous year by 100 per cent. Zerone, he said, was growing tremendously in consumer favor because it gave a motorist the maximum protection, prohibited rust formation in his cooling system, had no offensive odor, evaporated very slowly and yet cost no more, and in most cases less, than ordinary anti-freeze products.

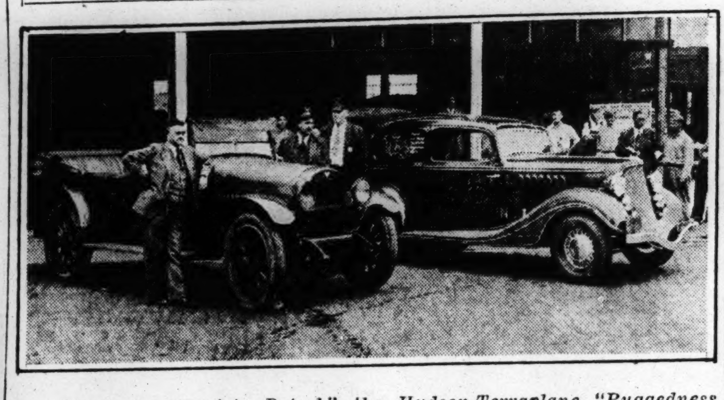
His 1918 Car Still Rugged



When the "Prairie Patrol," the Hudson-Terraplane "Ruggedness Run" car that is making the two-week night and day drive, arrived in Herrin, Ill., it was met by a 1918 Hudson touring car driven and owned by a Herrin man, Carl Neilson, who purchased it new in June, 1918. Neilson has driven his 16-year-old Hudson more than 238,000 miles; he believes that his Hudson has set quite an example of ruggedness, too. In the photograph Neilson is standing at the right of his Hudson.

A complete fall showing of new Cadillac and La Salle models will be held in the Oliver-Cadillac Co. sales rooms, 4100 Laclede avenue, all this week, starting today. This will be the largest display by the company this year, and will include interesting color and upholstery combinations. The public is invited during the day or evening until 10 o'clock.

Among the models Guy W. Oliver, president of the company says, will be a Fleetwood special convertible five-passenger coupe on long wheel base. It is black all over with leather trim, and the top is of imported English fabric. Another car is a special Fleetwood body, seven-passenger, 12-cylinder limousine in classic blue, with chromium metal body striping, and imported Wiese upholstery trim in a special design. Another car is a La Salle short wheel base, convertible coupe with de luxe fender well equipment and soft gray leather upholstery.

Among some 30 other new cars, each of a different pattern and color combination, is a special Cadillac V-8 town sedan in Waverly gray all over, with fender well equipment, and six stainless steel-spoked wire wheels. The upholstery is in plain style, imported French broad cloth. This is an exact duplicate of a car shown in the General Motors exhibit at Chicago which won wide praise and was copied by many distributors for show cars.

Visitors will receive a book entitled the "Buyer's Guide." This is the 1934 edition produced by the General Motors Customer Research, a pioneer in this field for 10 years, which maintains a specialized staff for conducting consumer surveys.

According to Oliver, this book reflects the views of 211,000 motorists responding to the consumer research survey. It is designed mainly as an aid to deliberations by the careful car buyer.

The company also will display a complete line of Oldsmobile sixes and eights, all week.

1,672,000,000 Rode in Busses.

One billion six hundred and seventy-two million persons rode in busses in the United States last year, as compared with 1,662,800,000 in 1932. Despite increased patronage the total gross revenue of the bus industry was $283,200,000, which is $9,000,000 less than for 1932. There are now 5200 companies operating busses in all types of common carrier service.

N. A. D. A. Directors Meet Here to Plan Policies for Next Year

Plans Made to Perpetuate Motor Vehicle Retailing Code by National Legislation.

Seventy-five prominent auto retailers and directors of the National Automobile Dealers' Association met here the past week to formulate the association's program for the coming year. They represented 30,000 auto dealers, whose volume of business annually exceeds twelve billion dollars. Collectively, the members of the association directly employ more than 390,000 persons engaged in selling and servicing motor vehicles.

The code of the Motor Vehicle Retailing Trade sponsored by the association last year has proven to be one of the most successful codes of Fair Trade Practices developed under the NRA. Plans were made for perpetuation of the code through national legislation.

The National Recovery Administration and the courts in several decisions have upheld this code in all of its phases," a statement said. "The fair trade practice provisions do not contain any price fixing or monopolistic practices; and its perpetuation under permanent legislation will insure the rehabilitation of this trade, so auspiciously begun under the National Recovery Act.

President F. W. A. Vesper, in his report to the directors, described advances made by this trade in the past year and expressed the belief that many problems which confronted the industry in the past are in a fair way toward being eliminated once and for all.

Detroit was selected as the place for the annual meeting of the association in January.

L. M. Stewart of St. Louis, was elected treausrer of the association to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. C. Frampton.

The Greater St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association entertained NAD . the directors.

Hudson-Terraplane 'Ruggedness Run' Test to End Tuesday Morning

Car Now on Fifth Swing Around 2000-Mile Circuit Through Three States.

The fourth lap of the Hudson-Terraplane "Ruggedness Run," held as a demonstration of automobile ruggedness, was completed here at 7 a. m. yesterday. The car set out immediately on the fifth and last swing on the 2000-mile circuit through Missouri, Illinois and Iowa.

For this last lap, the circuit was extended to take in Carbondale, on the first stretch through Illinois. On the swing from Iowa down into Missouri, provision has been made for extending the circuit south through Cuba, Ellisville, Farmington, which will be reached at 9:05 p. m. tomorrow; Poplar Bluff, 11:30 p. m. tomorrow; Cape Girardeau, 1:35 Tuesday; Cairo, Ill., 3:15 a. m. Tuesday, and then via Carbondale, Du Quoin, Centralia, Vandalia, Greenville and Collinsville into St. Louis at 10:45 a. m. Tuesday.

The "Prairie Patrol," as the Hudson-Terraplane ruggedness car is called, left St. Louis Tuesday, Oct. 9, to start this test of automobile endurance, and it will complete its two-week day and night run in St. Louis next Tuesday at 10:45 a. m.

The Terraplane has been routed over all kinds of roads in the three states and virtually every type of road traveled by today's motorists has been encountered. Rain the past week made many of the gravel and dirt roads almost impassable, but this did not prevent the car from running on its express schedule.

The Terraplane being used in the ruggedness run is a year-old car. It already had been given a year of hard driving by a private owner, who relinquished it to the Hudson Motor Car Co. for use in the run. According to the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., local Hudson-Terraplane distributer, the Terraplane will cover well over 11,000 miles, or an average year's mileage, in the two weeks.

Stops at cities and towns on the route are being made, so that persons interested in this test of automobile ruggedness can see the car. City officials and large crowds have welcomed the car in every town that it has passed through

Because of the wide distribution and uniform quality, Standard Oil Co. products were chosen for the Hudson - Terraplane Ruggedness Run car. The Terraplane is equipped with Goodyear G-3 all-weather tread tires.

Standard Oil Co. Dealers, Employes at Meeting in St. Louis

A meeting held by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana Wednesday night at the Chase Hotel was attended by 280 dealers and their employes in the St. Louis metropolitan district.

It was explained by F. B. Kramer that this is the second year in the Standard Oil Co.'s three-year dealer merchandising program.

I. W. May presided at the meeting, and D. O. Snyder and W. B. Lalley were among the speakers.

A slide film, illustrating sales opportunities and showing how to take advantage of them, was shown. Following the meeting, there was a buffet supper and entertainment.

Time Payment Sales.

Harry Hartz Here With Record Setting Chrysler Airflow Car

Harry Hartz, the noted race driver and racing car builder, stopped in St. Louis Wednesday and Thursday to show the Chrysler Imperial Airflow car with which he broke all stock car speed records from one mile to 24 hours' sustained run

Hartz made the records on the salt beds of a dry lake in Utah, over a measured 10-mile track and under the close supervision of the American Automobile Association.

After having set 72 new stock car speed records, Hartz drove the same car from Los Angeles to New York at an average speed of 41 miles per hour and averaged 18.1 miles per gallon for the trip.

The Los Angeles to New York trip was also under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, two of whose observers rode in the car and saw that all State traffic regulations were observed.

Test of Chevrolet Standard 4-Door Sedan For Gasoline Econom

New Model Does 34 Miles to th Gallon—Performance Reported as Outstanding.

Wednesday, C. E. O'Meara, zone manager for the Chevrolet Moto Co., two members of the zone sales staff, a local dealer and three St. Louis newspaper men, conducted an economy run and performance test starting at the Chevrolet plant in St. Louis and ending at the Chevrolet plant in Kansas City.

Two of the new Chevrolet standard four-door sedans were used in the run. The test car was driven by O'Meara, and a newspaper man acted as his observer. The car also carried one passenger. The other car was driven by newspaper men. This car carried four passengers.

Starting from the Chevrolet plant at Natural Bridge and Union, St. Louis, at 8:15 a. m., the cars were driven through city traffic to route No. 40 to Wright City, Mo., a distance of 46 miles for an economy test. Average speed was maintained at 32 miles per hour. This was checked by time of arrival at Wright City at 9:40 a. m. The gasoline consumption of the test c was 1.35 gallons, an average of miles per gallon. The newspaper men checked the accuracy of the mileage obtained and the gasoline consumed. There was no evidence of any consumption of motor o during the entire trip.

Leaving Wright City, a performance test was conducted during the rest of the trip to Kansas City. The car driven by the newspaper men was tested for speed, acceleration, hill-climbing and braking. Road speeds up to 75 miles per hour, acceleration tests on hills and unusually quick stopping proved the outstanding performance of the car.

Stops were made at Columbia and Boonville, where members of the party were interviewed by Chevrolet dealers and local newspaper reporters.

"The new Chevrolet Standard Six four-door sedan is designed for long life and durability, combined with utmost operating economy,' O'Meara said. Although 34 miles on a gallon of gasoline is an outstanding achievement for a full-size four-door five-passenger car carrying three passengers through city traffic and on the open road, reports of economy tests conducted throughout the St. Louis area with this model cite unusually high 'gas' mileage. This, I believe, is due to the fine engineering incorporated in the design this new six-cylinder Chevrolet car. I was deeply impressed with the engineering achievement from every standpoint after careful observation of the cars, their performance, riding and driving comfort."

"The new Standard Chevrolet is the world's lowest priced six-cylinder four-door sedan, delivered here in St. Louis for $618.35 with full equipment, including spare tire, tire lock and bumpers front and rear."

Gasoline Thieves Lashed.

Theft of gasoline in Southern Ontario is almost as serious as pirating a canoe in the North. Two youths were recently sentenced to 10 strokes of the strap for taking gasoline from the automobile of a tourist.

BETTER HOUSING CAMPAIGN FOR CITY AND COUNTY

Hundreds of Trained Men to Take Field This Week—Will Enlist the Co-operation of Owners.

Beginning this week, the better housing campaign will be effective in St. Louis and St. Louis county. Hundreds of men, given special training for the purpose, will take the field for a house-to-house call, their objectives being the owners of buildings in need of modernization to the extent of making them attractive for occupancy. Compensation of these field operatives will be provided from funds placed with the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, and it is estimated that an aggregate between $300,000 and $400,000 will be expended upon that branch of the movement. The Federal Housing Administration is sponsoring the activity in a nation-wide way, upon a survey basis of 16,000,000 buildings in need of rejuvenation as stated.

In the campaign here the Federal Bureau has the full co-operation of the Chambers of Commerce of St. Louis and St. Louis county. The goal set by the local agencies for modernization expenditures is $10,000,000. In other large communities where similar movements have taken place the goals have been materially exceeded.

Loans Available When Needed.

The majority of owners of properties needing repairs, which range in cost from $100 to $500 according to figures in the returns, are meeting these costs from their own resources. Where the condition is different the Federal Housing Act provides a reasonable method of borrowing for that purpose, at a low rate of interest and to be repaid over a period of three years.

It will be the business of the men sent out, to enlist the house owners in practical co-operation, to go over each case, showing what can be done to advantage in the way of repairs and desirable improvements, also how to make a loan if it be necessary. His duty does not include the collection of any money or solicitation of subscriptions, but merely the individual indication of the amount of money that can be used for needed repairs during the next three months. Widespread response on the part of owners, it is pointed out, will give employment to thousands of workers in city and county as well as bring the houses up to a revenue-producing level.

Outstanding Examples.

Philadelphia is perhaps the outstanding city to date in results obtained through the better housing drive. The goal fixed there was $15,000,000 and the total obtained was $21,000,000, while at New Orleans the total named for rebuilding pledges was $11,000,000, and Los Angeles, $10,000,000. In the first named city the aggregate outlay for new and old construction the first nine months of the current year was $6,478,910, an increase of nearly $1,000,000 over the corresponding period last year. Baltimore also went into the modernization movement with enthusiasm, and reports large response on the part of house owners. How much of the $6,374,016 spent on construction in that city was due to this undertaking is not reported, but the total compares with $3,745,820 expended during the first nine months of 1933.

No Increase in Taxes.

Persons making small repairs to their homes, as a result of the better housing campaign, need not fear that their tax assessments will be increased in consequence, City Assessor Ralph W Coale announced yesterday. Replying to a letter from John Ring Jr., director of the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, on this subject, Coale said:

"When an owner of a home paints his house, or makes any kind of small repairs which simply tend to offset depreciation, there is never any contemplation on the part of the assessor to increase the assessments for taxation purposes. It is my opinion that more than half the cost of such repairs will go for labor, and we are anxious to do everything to help the Better Housing Committees in increasing employment, and will co-operate in every way consistent with the law."

WEST END HOME BOUGHT BY JOHN F. WILKINSON

The seven-room residence with two added glass sun parlors, on the southeast corner of Rosedale avenue and Westminster place, was purchased last week by John F. Wilkinson, of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., from heirs of the Hamilton estate. It was a cash transaction.

TRACT OF 7 ACRES SOLD BY SCHMOLL-HERNREICH CO.

An area of seven acres, known as the Stillwell tract, in Southwest St. Louis, owned by Eastern interests, has been sold to one of its clients by the Schmoll-Hernreich Realty Co. The acreage has a large frontage on Chippewa boulevard, a widened and newly-paved thoroughfare forming a link in Highway No. 66, and extends southward to St. Louis Hills. It is immediately west of Hampton boulevard, which it is definitely planned to widen and pave from Forest Park, where a necessary viaduct is completed. A considerable tract of ground directly across Chippewa boulevard is owned by the Board of Education, which is expected to erect thereon a high school and stadium. The transaction was on a cash basis.

ST. LOUIS B. & L. GROUP GOING TO ANNUAL MEETING

A score or more of representatives of St. Louis building and loan companies will be in the large contingent of delegates traveling by special train to the National convention of B. & L. Associations, to be held in New Orleans beginning next Wednesday. The St. Louis delegation, together with 40 or 50 from Kansas City and Hannibal will depart this afternoon in two special cars, which will be attached to a special B. & L. train from Chicago at Carbondale, Ill. Arrangements for the trip by Missouri delegates and visitors were made by Miss Lucile S. Richardson, assistant secretary of the Missouri State League of B. & L. Associations.

Among those attending the convention from St. Louis are: A. G. Kuehner, Maurice Wright, James L. McQuie, Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Witte, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Earickson, Charles Stewart, John C. Hall, A. F. Leonhardt, E. A. Kamp, S. A. Koster, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blackwelder and daughter, Betsy; Mrs. Flora J. Mechin, James F. Williams and Miss Lucie S. Richardson.

"AFCO" Heating Modernizes the Home

Bring the comfort and convenience of modern "AFCO" Air Conditioned Heating into your home. Enjoy complete freedom from furnace tending. The reasonable cost will surprise you.

"AFCO" regulated temperature and controlled moisture content in the air assures clean, uniform, healthful heat at lower cost. Also saves by reducing cleaning bills and preserving furnishings.

An "AFCO" System gives you added room. Conserves space in the living rooms and makes the basement livable. Use it for a den, playroom or rathskeller.

"AFCO" Systems are made for all-size homes—new and old—also for all fuels—gas, oil, coal or coke. Automatic systems include oil or gas burner.

Things to Consider WHEN BUYING A HOME

1st—WHAT TO BUY—

Buy according to your present income. Three years ago it would have been a different story, but today more than ever you can see the wisdom in buying within your means. Low priced homes, such as built by the Ball Lumber Company, are the answer as to what to buy for the family with moderate income.

2d—WHERE TO BUY—

In Washington, D. C., the home loan authorities urge and insist that homes, when loans are made on them, be built and bought in the path of growing values. Buy for the future and we suggest that you visit our new University City location.

3d—HOW TO BUY—

It is true you will be expected to pay a little more than rent. But not for long (say 3 to 4 years) then not only will you pay a good deal less than rent, but you will have the lasting satisfaction, joy and security of home ownership. NOW—For as little as $450 down and $37 per month including $25 principal and all interest, for 3 years. No big last note. Just small first deed of trust. Think—HOMES do not depreciate like an automobile. Think how often people buy a car or some other luxury and charge off to depreciation the first year as much or more than we ask as a down payment on a home. BE WISE. BUY A HOME FIRST.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

SHIFTING OF SHACK DWELLERS MADE BY 50C A MONTH RENTAL

Fifty cents a month ground rent isn't an oppressive sum, when measured by rentals for penthouses, or even lesser expensive residential properties, but to dwellers in shacks along the river front, erected by and for themselves, it is hardly a welcome assessment. As there are about 150 of these shacks, it means a revenue for the landlord of something like $75 per month.

Within the last few months nearly all the vacant ground thus occupied has been purchased by a capitalist imbued with abiding faith that the shoreline of the city abutting the great water traffic artery will come into its own, and for that day he is content to patiently wait for his profit.

It wasn't for this major return, however, that he imposed the 50 cents a month rental, even though it means an aggregate that is somewhat beyond the despised sum. Looking at the matter through the spectacles of a legalist, he took cognizance of what is termed "squatters' rights," and the method adopted to safeguard his ownership transferred the shack dwellers from that category to tenants.

CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS DECLINE IN SEPTEMBER

Nine Months Total Above That for Like Period in 1933, Dodge Figures Show.

Construction projects started during September reached a total of $110,219,200, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. This represents a loss exceeding 8 per cent compared with the August volume of $120,014,600, and approximately the same percentage decline from the September, 1933, total of $120,134,400. Examination of the classes indicates no pronounced decline in any specific type of building. Public works, with increased highway work, showed an increase over August, the totals being $43,478,500 and $41,905,900, respectively.

Totals for the first nine months of the current year in each of the 10 major classes of construction show material gains when compared with the corresponding period of last year, in fact, the cumulative total for all types, amounting to $1,203,952,100, is almost equal to that for the entire year 1933, and exceeds the nine months' total of last year by more than 62 per cent. Non-residential building, with a total amounting to $432,259,200, shows a gain of more than 46 per cent over the corresponding 1933 total of $294,921,000. The public works total for the year to date is more than twice that for the corresponding nine months of last year, with contracts amounting to $491,444,400 and $210,420,600, respectively. Gains this year over 1933 amounted to more than 66 per cent in the public utilities classification, and to more than 4 per cent for residential building.

Contract figures compiled by the Dodge Corporation for the St. Louis district follows: September, 1934, $9,173,500, comparing with $9,099,100 for the corresponding month in 1933; first nine months of 1934, $69,287,000, which compares with $46,005,500 for the like period last year.

SEPTEMBER FARM SALES BREAK LAND BANK RECORD

Records for farm real estate sales during a single month were broken by the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis in September, those of farms exceeding $212,300, according to L. E. Hatch, salesman for the Land Bank.

Hatch points out that a noteworthy feature of this buying is that purchasers are seeking good farms, they being plentiful in territories where crops and prices are good. The farms are in Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas. Only 25 per cent cash is required for delivery of deed, Hatch states, with the remainder carried in a 20-year amortized loan at 5½ per cent interest.

New Deal Policy Offers Indians Self-Government in Place Of "A Century of Serfdom"

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.

It is possible that in the final analysis the New Deal will mean more to the Indians than to any other group in American life. If the present administration has a Cinderella, it is this dwindling, defrauded race.

Changes are in progress for the Indians that are not mere surface changes but evidence of a basic reorganization of Government policy and Indian life. Conservative critics of the Administration's program have accused the Government of pauperizing large sections of the population through Federal relief and public works appropriations; but no such charge can be leveled against the Indian program.

For the Indian has been a Government pauper for 75 years or more, ever since civilization destroyed his means and mode of living. Now it is proposed to make him self-supporting, to restore him, insofar as that is possible, to his original livelihood. This is ended a long and dismal attempt, doomed to failure from the beginning, to force the Indian to conform to white patterns. The result was a miserable Indian, who was never a very good imitation of a white man.

A Law and a Man.

There are two principal factors in this change. One is the new Commissioner of Indian Affairs, John Collier, who is putting into practice policies that he has advocated as a champion of the Indians for many years. The other is the Wheeler-Howard Act, called the Indian bill of rights.

"The Wheeler-Howard Act offers to the Indians self-government in place of a century of serfdom," said Collier recently of this measure, which became law on June 18. "It offers economic security in place of the economic destruction systematically pursued by the Government for half a century, racial integrity and self-respect in place of racial degeneration and disappearance."

This is somewhat like locking the barn after the horse has been stolen; for, as Collier points out, the act stops the wastage of the Indian estate, but only after three-fifths of all Indian lands have been lost.

Under the law, the 48,000,000 acres still owned by the Indians will remain permanently in Indian ownership. Also, it ends the grazing system, whereby Indians received in rent only a fraction of the value of their grazing lands, which were surrounded by private holdings. The Indian's perpetual estate under the Wheeler-Howard law is equal to more than one-fortieth of the land area of the United States. Half of it, of course, is semi-desert land. In addition, the act makes available $2,000,000 for purchase of Indian lands lost through trickery of one kind or another on the part of the white man.

Old Policy Wiped Out.

"In the Wheeler-Howard Act," Collier adds, "Congress has wiped out the whole destructive policy of 'liquidating' Indian lands and natural resources, a policy that was sinking the Indians to ever lower levels of pauperism, disease and spiritual degradation. This act contains a mandate for the conservation of the lands, forests and grazing ranges of the Indian.

"And, of course, we are concerned not so much with the conservation of lands and resources as of human life. We can now begin to help the Indian lift himself out of the poverty, disease, fear and apathy which a century of dishonor has inflicted on him. And we can begin to conserve and release the Indian arts and the rich imaginative life of the Indians for the permanent enrichment of American culture."

Federal Jobs for Indians.

Collier was head of the American Indian Defense Association before his appointment by President Roosevelt. He has from the beginning sought to give to Indians the direction of their own affairs. Civil service requirements, applying alike to white and red men, hitherto served to keep them out of the Indian service. For example, an Indian candidate might be eminently qualified in every practical way for a forestry or grazing job, but the fact that he did not know plane geometry kept him out of the position. By order of President Roosevelt the civil service requirements were modified to extend the privilege of non-competitive examination to Indians, covering all positions in the Indian service. Few have realized that there has been little or no provision for the higher education of Indians, education really beyond the eighth grade, since the abandonment of Carlisle Institution in 1917.

Indian Superintendents.

Collier has named four Indians as superintendents of reservations. One of these is Robert Yellowtail, who belongs to the Crow tribe. He took over the post of superintendent of the Crow agency in Montana on Aug. 1. His appointment was unique in that it came as the result of a referendum by his tribe as to whether he should receive the job or not. Local interests had contended that Mr. Yellowtail would not be acceptable to the majority of his tribe. In a secret vote 588 Indians of 689 voted for their fellow tribesman. He was the first of his race to be appointed agency superintendent under the new civil service ruling. It is a difficult position, involving everything from property administration and community organization to the performing of marriages.

"A man who has lived on the reservation and has intimate acquaintance with the individual Indians there has an advantage over the stranger appointed from the outside," said Commissioner Collier at the time of the appointment. "The fact that Mr. Yellowtail is an Indian should add to his influence with his people and strengthen his people's will to live and to achieve."

Descendant of Uncas.

A few days later Ralph Fredenberg, enrolled Menominee Indian, was made superintendent of the Menominee reservation. Even more recently the Indian service took into its ranks for help on the program authorized by the Wheeler-Howard Act, Miss Gladys Tantaquidgeon, who is almost literally "the last of the Mohicans." Miss Tantaquidgeon is a direct descendant of one of the aides to Uncas, made famous in James Fenimore Cooper's novel, "The Last of the Mohicans," and also of Sansom Occum, a full-blood Indian in the early Connecticut days, who educated himself and became a successful missionary and minister.

Specially trained in anthropology, it will be Miss Tantaquidgeon's task to make a survey of the surviving Indians in the New England States. Under the terms of the Wheeler-Howard Act, persons of one-half or more Indian blood, regardless of whether or not they have previously had tribal relations with the Government, are entitled to certain educational and other privileges. Miss Tantaquidgeon's census will include all who are entitled to these privileges.

Money for Schools.

A Public Works allotment of $3,613,000 is financing the building or remodeling of 110 schools throughout the Indian lands. This is being done with a view to the decentralization of Indian education, thereby ending one of the most tragic phases of misrule in the past. Under the boarding school system children were taken from the family at the age of 6 and sent, often long distances, to the Indian school. They could return only once in every two years. To the Indian, tied to the family, the clan, by the most primitive ties, this was the source of deep unhappiness. And when his education was completed, he returned to his tribe an alien, scarcely familiar with even the language of his people, since he had been compelled to speak English at his school.

Educating Adults Also.

W. Carson Ryan, director of education in the Indian service, undertook to change this policy some years before Collier's appointment. But, handicapped by lack of funds, he did not get far until money was made available to build small new schools on, or close to Indian reservations. About 50 schools are now in various stages of construction. The larger projects are those of the Hopi reservation in Arizona, the Navajo reservations in Arizona and New Mexico, the Sioux reservations in North and South Dakota and the Pueblo lands of New Mexico.

The buildings are designed to serve all the needs of Indian community life, with facilities for adults as well as for children. Nearly all of the plans include a laundry, sewing rooms, facilities for health service and clinical work, wash houses and shower baths and, in some instances, a community shop. Every effort has been made to have the external architecture in keeping with the environment and the native building of the Indians themselves. However, they are provided with modern devices for artificial heating, plumbing and, where it is possible, electricity.

Hogan Type of School.

The hogan (Indian lodge) type of school is particularly interesting. It consists of a series of hogans, octagonal in form and hooked up together so as to form a functional classroom plan. The advantage of this type of plan is its flexibility. Several other classrooms can be added to those already designed without spoiling the composition. Indian children have already built hogan classrooms at two of the Indian schools, which have proved very successful.

With a Public Works allotment of $950,000, a new capital for the Navajo reservation in Arizona is being built. Buildings of adobe clay will have steam heat, water-tight roofs and steel window frames. The Council House, designed to conform with ritualistic tradition, is the largest of 50 buildings now under construction. About 500 Indians will be able to assemble in it for the regular councils of the tribe. There were certain questions between old and

He Made $100,000,000 Where Others Made Billions by His Skill—Experimenting, Not Business, Interested Him.

By JOHN F. O'HAGAN,
For Many Years Associated with the Late Thomas A. Edison.

FIFTY-FIVE years ago three weary young men, after 40 hours of constant vigil, watched a horseshoe-shaped carbonized thread filament in a glass globe flicker and die.

With the death of that light a new era was born. Civilization was started on its march down the path of the electrical age. It was to be illuminated by the incandescent electric lamp that had just been invented and which, in a comparatively short time, was to brighten the highways and byways of the world.

It was 9:11 p. m. Oct. 21, 1879, when Thomas A. Edison, 32 years old, already called "the Old Man" by his co-workers, turned to his superintendent, Charles Batchelor, 33 years old, and to John W. Lawson, an assistant, 22 years old, with the remark: "Good, but not good enough. We'll improve it." Later the historic lamp was broken up for microscopic study.

In a closed room on the second floor of the two-story frame laboratory at Menlo Park, N. J., Edison—soon to be acclaimed by the world as "The Wizard"—and his two faithful helpers enacted this great drama in the pageant of human progress while he was facing bankruptcy.

Wife Painted to Raise Funds.

Just before the previous Christmas the inventor's 24-year-old wife, in a studio in the attic of their home, had painted fancy baskets, perfume boxes and concave glassware to be sold to obtain funds for the family's holiday needs.

Her brother, Charles Stillwell, and the inventor's nephew, Charles Edison, were threatened with arrest in Elizabeth for peddling without a license as they trudged through heavy snow from door to door trying to sell these wares.

Workers had been without their wages at the laboratory and bills for materials were unpaid at a time when Edison—sorely pressed by his creditors—was working toward the completion of one of the most glorious contributions to the material advancement of the human race.

Spent $340,000.

He had already spent $240,000 collected from the sale of previous patents and $100,000 earned from the manufacture of telegraphic and stock ticker machines and parts. This was probably the largest amount ever made and spent in a few years by a young inventor.

On Dec. 23, 1880, the Sheriff of Middlesex County, N. J., seized his goods and chattels to satisfy a judgment against a promissory note for $3,351.70, covering principal and interest dating back to Dec. 9, 1874.

Included in the seizure was "Colonel," the family horse, and a buggy in which the two older Edison children drove to school to Metuchen, several miles away.

It took many days for Mr. Batchelor to raise money from relatives and friends to satisfy the judgment and to make possible the use of needed equipment as well as to restore the children's means of transportation to school.

Glory But No Money.

Had Edison's property not been released he could not have made the first public demonstration of his light on the grounds at Menlo Park during the holiday season of 1879-1880.

On a Washington-bound train for a conference with President Wilson shortly before we entered the World War, Edison (as was so often his custom) sat with pad and pencil ready to jot down any valuable ideas that occurred to him.

As we came to the Menlo Park Station I nudged him, pointed up the slope toward the site of his historic laboratory built in 1876 by his father, Samuel Edison, and facetiously whispered in his ear, "The old place ain't what she used to be."

With a majestic, melancholy mien he gazed up and said, wistfully, "Leaves of yesterday; it was all work and worry. Others got the money and I got the glory."

Working on Electric Light.

The incandescent lamp was only the final step in a series of related great inventions. To make it efficient, economical and safe required the designing and development of a new type of dynamo, switchboards, regulators, pressure and current indicators, sockets, meters, small switches, underground conductors (he was the first to use this system of transmitting power), junction boxes, service boxes, manhole boxes, connectors and special wires.

When Edison began his studies of fractionizing or subdividing the electric light the electric arc lamp was already in use, but delivered only small quantities of light at high cost.

He realized that, to be successful, he had to deliver light at low cost, at constant voltage and low amperage to individual outlets from a central station.

His Dynamo Never Changed.

In order to generate this kind of current he was obliged to design an entirely new type of dynamo, reducing resistances to make possible a "multiple system." This has never been changed.

This dynamo, in the first trial, showed an efficiency of 90 per cent — something scientists had earlier "proved" mathematically could not be done. Had Edison used low voltage, instead of 110 volts, the cost of copper wire (even for installation in a small area) would have been staggering. In fact, copper production at that time could not have met the demand.

Previous to Edison's invention, electricity had very limited use, with undependable storage batteries in connection with the operation of the telegraph and the telephone — both of which he tremendously improved — the former through his multiplex system and the latter through the granular carbon transmitter.

For half a century prominent scientific minds had striven to more definitely and more clearly demonstrate the theories which, for the lack of precise apparatus and definite formula, were mostly veiled in the mist of phenomena. For centuries science, or that small part of it that was physically demonstrable, had remained the secret of a select scholasticism.

Edison, with his numerous inventions at Menlo Park, tore the veil from ancient doubt.

Denounced As Dreamer.

Due to his earlier inventions, by the year 1879 Edison was already looked upon, particularly by Europeans, as a genius, an enigma and a madman.

The announcements of the first public demonstration of his lighting system caused noted men of science to denounce the young inventor.

Some said he was a dreamer. Others said he was a fit subject for the lunatic asylum.

On the eve of the demonstration of the light Sir William Preece, noted English scientist, in a lecture in London said: The subdivision of the electric light is an absolute ignis fatuus."

Edison (who had gone to public school but two months in his life) turned to Francis H. Upton,

Germany, if It Wins Saar, Will Be Desirable Ally for Poland and Italy—Mid-Continental Combine a Possibility.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Oct. 20.

SUDDEN shifts in the foreign policies of European governments are common these days when the political line-up on the continent is based upon expediency. Few factors remain fundamental. Italy, Austria, Hungary and the Little Entente about-face almost every season. Only the Franco-British entente seems basically sound, and that because, in the final analysis, the common interests make a united front between those two nations essential. Consequently the devil-may-care attitude that Poland has adopted is not surprising. It is, however, a bit mysterious and that is what is causing speculation in the foreign chancelleries of London, Paris, Rome, Berlin and Moscow.

What lies behind Marshal Pilsudski's determination to go it alone, if it could be fathomed, would furnish the key to mid-European political developments of the next few months perhaps. The dictator's action in throwing down the gauntlet at the recent League Assembly, repudiating the minorities treaty which has bound his country since its creation at Versailles, and turning his back on the Franco-Russian proposal for an "Eastern Locarno" — a pact which would guarantee Poland's, Russia's, Germany's and the Baltic States' frontiers—may mean many things.

Trend Toward Germany.

British diplomats fear Warsaw is casting its lot with Germany and Italy in creating a mid-continental bloc reaching from the Baltic to the Mediterranean. The object would be to isolate Russia from Western Europe. It is no dark secret that Poland hates and fears Soviet Russia more than it does Nazi Germany. The Germans, in turn, despise the Russians, fear France and are ready to tolerate the Poles as the least of three evils. The only outstanding question between the Poles and Germans is the corridor, which gives the former access to the North Sea at the expense of separating East Prussia from the Fatherland. A 10-year truce between Warsaw and Berlin has shelved the issue momentarily.

"Anything can happen in 10 years" a high Polish official, shrugging significantly, explained to the writer. If Germany's antipathy for the barrier has not disappeared in a decade the Poles believe they can make some other deal with the Germans which will be advantageous.

A Possible Deal.

That deal is said to involve the absorption of Lithuania and Latvia, and perhaps Estonia, into a Middle-European bloc. If Finland —which is violently anti-Soviet— were included, it would mean linking the Arctic with the Mediterranean. Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia, with a population of about ten millions, already have a Teutonic tinge, due to their long subserviency to Baltic Baron rule, and their Nazification is not impossible through economic penetration if forcible political domination proves inadvisable.

For Poland a rapprochement with Germany—if it were sincere —would be an infinitely better guarantee against the Russians than her present fickle alliance with France. The French are playing too closely with Moscow to please the Poles and the late Foreign Minister Barthou was largely responsible for the entry of the Soviet Union into the League and Moscow's subsequent acquisition of a permanent seat in the Council. Now unless France can bring Russia into the Franco-Polish combination she will have to weaken France's link with Warsaw.

Protecting Germany's Rear

For Germany's anti-French anti-Russian policy a friendly Poland at her back is indispensable. The Poles, friendly, would prove a formidable buffer against the Soviets if Germany had to fight along her Western frontier. Moscow, even if she wished, would find it difficult to aid her French ally if Poland opposed passage of Bolshevik troops over her territory—which is the reason Pilsudski has given for rejecting an Eastern Locarno. The Russians could strike Germany only through the air and to send squadrons of bombers across Poland would be exceedingly difficult if the Poles insisted upon fighting to preserve their neutrality. With their rear safe the Nazis believe that even now they can put up a good fight against the French.

The third angle to the hypothetical triangle which European diplomats are discussing deals with Italy. Here, too, the reasons for a rapprochement with the Germans are clear. Aside from his quarrel with Hitler over Austria, Mussolini has no reason to regret his previous sympathy for Naziism, of which Fascism was the spirtiual god-father. The Nazi political credo is his own, albeit in a more vicious form than Fascism of today. There are signs that the Nazis already are seeking to rebuild their entente cordiale with Rome both by giving assurances to Mussolini that Austria's nominal independence will be respected and to the Catholic Church promises that German Catholics will hereafter be unmolested.

Rome and the Saar.

If Germany wants to regain the Saar in the January plebiscite it is imperative that Berlin make peace with the Vatican. About 600,000 of the population of the Saar (73 per cent of the voters) are devoutly and disciplinedly Catholic, and with one word from the priesthood or Vatican they will turn thumbs down on Nazi Germany. The church also plays a strong role in Austria where it can do much towards bringing about the restoration of the Hapsburgs, which the Nazis oppose. If Berlin is to advance her Mid-European policy it is necessary to work with both Warsaw and Rome and the Vatican is strong in either capital.

It is preposterous to believe that Italy's recent enthusiasm for a rapprochement with France is more than skin-deep. Mussolini's entire political psychology, in which he has steeped Young Italy, is based on Franco-Italian rivalry. French democracy is anathema to Italians. The Austro-German-Polish dictatorial theory of government dovetails with Fascist principles.

Mussolini's Position.

Mussolini, himself, knows well that his political demands on France are unattainable in fact. Come what may, France will not agree to literal naval equality with Italy—which would mean Italian domination of the Mediterranean. Nor would England consent to it. Furthermore France is not going to make any territorial concessions to Italy in Africa or the Near East. Rome turned towards France only when the Teuton menace appeared on her northeastern horizon, and Paris is well aware of the fact. Mussolini was furious when the Nazis rewarded Baron Aloisi's political juggling in the Saar with the Austrian double-cross. Mussolini also resents Germany's opposition (with Yugoslavia) to the restoration of Archduke Otto on the Hapsburg throne. It makes Otto's contemplated marriage to an Italian Princess futile.

Since every international move in these days of economic, political and financial stress necessarily is based upon give-and-take considerations, the Polish-Ger-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

On the Reading of Books.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REPRODUCTION in the Post-Dispatch of Oct. 12 of a cartoon from the Cleveland Press, picturing "Voter" as being prostrated by a pile of books, prompts the writer to indite a letter.

An erudite Frenchman recently deplored the enormous output of books as discouraging to independent thinking. Books and more books on every conceivable line of thought, so that a lazy individual can buy a book on almost any theme of interest and in a few hours acquire what he would not have got on his own in as many years. If a voter wants propaganda, it may be his for $1.67 per.

One thing about books that is very interesting to the writer is their differences in other respects than subject matter, narrative and action. I read "Anna Karenina" some time ago, and although I have read uncounted books of fiction since—some of them more absorbingly interesting while being read—the characters in the Tolstoy book and the life they lived have remained more indelibly impressed on my memory than those of the others. It came nearer to accomplishing an illusion of participation than books by other authors read subsequently. Did Tolstoy's art do that, or some extraneous influence? It breathes sympathetic understanding of racial scope, a masterly sense of values and the integrity of impersonal justice.

Protests 90-Minute Trip.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE recent change in location of the Veterans' Administration offices, from 4030 Chouteau to Jefferson Barracks, has created a great deal of comment among the veterans who are forced to go to the bureau for medical attention and supplies.

Inasmuch as this move was made as an economy measure, it has the earmarks of real common sense in the eyes of the taxpayer. Nevertheless, it has heaped upon the veteran the burden of a 90-minute trip with four transfer points.

Criticises Labor Leadership.

IT is an established rule that time changes all things. But like every good rule, there has to be an exception; in this case, it is the leadership of the American labor unions. For 50 years or more of its existence, the American Federation of Labor has been led by the same conservative, slow-acting, meaningless individuals.

Thus, the recent session of these leaders again confirmed the time-worn policy of keeping the A. F. of L. out of politics. They still feel that the ancient Roman custom of supporting individuals rather than parties will prove effective, when it has been demonstrated time and again throughout the history of republics that only organized effort behind a loyal party will be the sole successful program for any group to follow. Union labor may find out, perhaps too late, that this attitude of its leaders of holding aloof is a most serious blunder.

Has man ever accomplished anything worth-while without a struggle? Is it possible for labor to make any progress with sluggish, reluctant leadership? Labor must be as vigilant of its rights as is capital, if the gains of the past half-century are even to be protected, must less augmented.

Employment of Married Women.

HERE'S a hand to "Forgotten Working Girl"; hers is a real and not an imaginary problem. If the hundreds of thousands of married women whose husbands are making a good living for their families, but who are now employed in schools, in private offices, in municipal, state and Government institutions, were as patriotic in 1934 as they were in 1917, the depression would be materially lessened. In nine cases out of 10, the employer knows the existing conditions, but is not interested in the unemployed in point of worthiness or need.

Is it impossible to appeal to this nation to the end that anyone who has a job he doesn't really need will pass it on to someone worthy and in need?

A CITIZEN.

Behind the Anderson Outrage.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOU have advocated judicial reform with a vigor that meets the approval of all decent people, but there is an element among the criminal lawyers who will use every foul means of which they are capable to defeat this good purpose. If a lawyer would stoop to prevent the passage of reforms in court procedure, would he be likely not to advise a means to eliminate a prosecuting officer who stood in the way of "walking" a client?

It is time that the sheep and the goats in the attorney flock were separated if the sheep intend to continue in the confidence of the people.

The Bar Association is challenged by every law-abiding citizen to run down the skunks and scum of the earth who caused the accident which crippled C. Arthur Anderson, and to bring to the bar of justice the master minds who conceived it.

On the Granting of Bail After Conviction

The release on $30,000 bond of Angelo Rosegrant, convicted of participation in the kidnaping of Dr. I. D. Kelley, raises some important points of law and procedure.

It was contended by counsel for Rosegrant that the granting of bail was mandatory under the construction placed by the Supreme Court of Missouri on Section 3746, Revised Statutes of 1929. That section reads as follows:

> In all cases where an appeal or writ of error is prosecuted from a judgment in a criminal cause, except where the defendant is under sentence of death or imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, any court or officer authorized to order a stay of proceedings under the preceding provisions may allow a writ of habeas corpus, to bring up the defendant, and may thereupon let him to bail. . . .

We have italicized the word "may" in the two instances in which it appears because, in our opinion, it shows the clear intention of the Legislature to give Judges the discretionary power to grant or refuse bail. If the Legislature had intended to make mandatory the granting of bail under these conditions, it would have used the word "shall." Such was the argument of Prosecutor Wolfe in resisting Rosegrant's application for bail.

Counsel for Rosegrant, however, pointed out that the Supreme Court had construed this section to mean that bail must be allowed as a matter of course on appeal for defendants not under sentence of death or life imprisonment. He quoted a 1924 decision of the court, where it was held that any such defendant is, "under a clear construction of the statutes, in which the Legislature has acquiesced for more than 30 years, entitled as a matter of right to bail pending his appeal from a judgment of conviction."

In the matter of bail for Rosegrant, the view expressed by the defense counsel prevailed, although the cited decision of the Supreme Court was made 10 years ago, and in a proceeding with a set of facts entirely different from those in the Rosegrant case.

From the opinion that the release of Rosegrant on bail was mandatory, we dissent. We realize the value of precedent in courts of law, and the influence which Supreme Court decisions necessarily have on courts of lower jurisdiction, but we believe that in the present case there was ample justification for the refusal of bail and for inviting the Supreme Court to make a re-examination of Section 3746.

We believe this justification was twofold: (1) the use by the Legislature of the permissive word "may" instead of the imperative "shall" in Section 3746; (2) the unique circumstances involved in the prosecution of the Kelley kidnaping case.

The first point has already been covered. In the second point, we refer to the fact that, before Rosegrant went to trial, a key witness for the State—John C. Johnson—was murdered by machine gunners while staying at the home of a county law officer as a measure of protection against just such an eventuality. We refer further to the fact that a few days after Rosegrant's conviction, C. Arthur Anderson, Prosecuting Attorney in charge of the case, was subjected to a murderous assault and suffered serious injuries, as a result of which he is now confined in hospital. A campaign of terror has been instituted by the underworld which warrants judicial cognizance.

Refusal of bail in the Rosegrant case would have kept in confinement a man convicted of kidnaping, who has a year to perfect his appeal, in a case marked with such extraordinary violence as to have aroused general apprehension and unusual precautionary measures in the community. Refusal of bail would have been in line with the thought of some of the most distinguished jurists that the United States has produced—the thought that the law is not a static, but a dynamic thing. This view has been often and eloquently set out by former Justice Holmes, Justice Cardozo, Justice Brandeis and others.

"A spirit of realism," Justice Cardozo has written, "should bring about a harmony between present rules and present needs."

In his monumental and authoritative work on the United States Supreme Court (1923), Charles Warren expresses this same theory of the dynamic character of the law. Warren quotes approvingly from E. V. Abbott's "Justice and the Modern Law":

> When the bar of the country . . . respectfully but inexorably requires of the Supreme Court that it shall continually justify its decisions by the Constitution, and not by its own precedents, we shall gain a new conception of the power of our constitutional guaranties . . . What we need is constant and unrelenting professional criticism of judicial opinions, and constant, unrelenting insistence that judicial errors of reasoning shall be judicially corrected. (Italics are ours.)

In his long career on the supreme bench, Justice Holmes always regarded the law in terms of growth, protesting against the syllogistic view of the law, the notion that it can be confined within a fixed system of rules. "For the rational study of the law," he has said, "the black-letter man may be the man of the present, but the man of the future is the man of statistics and the master of economics. It is revolting to have no better reason for a rule of law than that so it was laid down in the time of Henry IV. It is still more revolting if the grounds upon which it was laid down have vanished long since and the rule simply persists from blind imitation of the past."

And going into the very heart of Justice Holmes' judicial philosophy is this statement of his: "It (the law) is legislative in its grounds. The very considerations which Judges most rarely mention, and always with an apology, are the secret root from which the law draws all the juices of life. I mean, of course, considerations of what is expedient for the community concerned."

The Supreme Court of Missouri, in the 1924 decision heretofore referred to, said:

> The construction (that bail is mandatory in such cases as Rosegrant's) has therefore become a part of the statute itself. If the statute as so construed does not measure up to the requirements of adequate law enforcement, as now conceived, the remedy lies with the Legislature rather than with this court.

In effect, the Supreme Court felt that judicial construction of Section 3746 had forced the reading of the Legislature's term "may" as "shall" and it could see no escape except by further legislative action. By all means, let the Legislature, at its coming session, change Section 3746 to make crystal clear, beyond peradventure of doubt, the right of Judges to use discretion in granting bail after conviction.

Meanwhile, it is regrettable that the Supreme Court has not been given the opportunity to re-examine its own 10-year-old view in the light of a new case of extraordinary significance and importance. Bail was denied to Rosegrant while he was merely resting under indictment; bail was permitted to Rosegrant AFTER the assassination of one of the State's principal witnesses, AFTER the conviction of Rosegrant as a kidnaper, AFTER the murderous attack on the Prosecutor. The simple facts spoke eloquently for a re-testing of the Missouri Supreme Court's dictum of 1924.

THE WOOING OF VERMONT.

The Democrats are now looking with desirous eyes on Vermont. They are pouring honeyed words into her ear. They are making golden promises. They are practicing other arts of wooing—less subtle, perhaps, but so often persuasive, as the disillusioning annals of romance attest. The Democrats are showering Vermont with costly gifts. They are ribboning her marbled hills with fine, smooth roads. They are adorning the primeval squares of her humble towns with imposing edifices. They are, in a word, giving Vermont the rush of her life.

What of Vermont? Will she continue as of old, chaste, cold and unresponsive, deaf to all the fervid avowals, as unmoved, too, by the largess, as she has ever been unbeguiled by the lilies? It might be so supposed. For, as we have had occasion more than once to observe, Vermont's constancy to the Grand Old Party is the American classic of political loyalty. Other states have won honorable mention in respect of their fidelity to the Republican credo, but have now and then drifted away from their moorings on the tides of tumultuous emotion. Vermont? Never. Unswerving and unswervable, she has watched fellow communicants hesitate and waver and finally take the plunge while she herself has steadfastly chosen to bear the ills she has rather than fly to others she knew not of. Yet it must be remembered that hitherto the Democrats have been impecunious suitors. They could spin rosy tales, to be sure, and sing lovely songs, but they were empty-handed troubadours. Now they come laden as the boats of the Phoenicians, with silks and jewels and Persian spices and Tyrian dyes.

You know all about the debauchery of the rock-bound coast of Maine; Col. Theodore Roosevelt has exposed that affair. And if Maine can be bedazzled by the loaves and the fishes, is it not possible that Vermont may succumb to the richer and far more tempting fare she is being served?

That's the question.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH RUSSIA.

The negotiations between this country and Soviet Russia on debts and trade have dragged on for months, and the end is not yet in sight. Just now, Ambassador Troyanovsky is at Moscow for fresh consultation with his Government, and a renewal of efforts to break the deadlock may be expected soon.

The problem is not between the two nations alone, but involves also Soviet policy toward other countries, as well as internally. If Russia agrees to pay the American claims on pre-Soviet debts, totaling $500,000,000, then France and England will seek payment as well, and their claims are far greater. The Communists have assured their people they would never pay the Czarist debts, hence the suggested subterfuge of getting American loans and repaying them at high interest rates. It is proposed that our Treasury record the extra interest as debt installments; the Russians would simply call it interest. But our Government draws the line on loans, though it does offer commercial credits.

Both England and France have been unable to come to terms with Russia, and they predict similar lack of success by the United States. Certainly the subtleties encountered are a new and difficult complication in our country's debt negotiations. Our Government has gone a long distance in the grant of credits, and if the Russians want a resumption of trade relations as ardently as they profess, their leaders' ingenuity should be able to evolve some formula to meet the unusual needs of the situation.

ITEM ON CHILD CARE.

The old-fashioned parent who respected and heeded the ancient maxim, "Spare the rod and spoil the child," at last has found a modern psychologist who feels much the same way. She is Dr. Grace Adams, well-known child psychologist and writer. Dr. Adams dismisses as so much flapdoodle the warnings of advanced preceptors about physical punishment setting up all sort of ruinous inhibitions, frustrations and repressions in the youthful psyche. For a child under 4, she says, one slap is worth an hour of reasoning. Many a parent has found it so, not because the youngster doesn't understand reasoning, but because sharp little Junior can rebut instantly Daddy's best-ordered arguments, or, just as effectively, can disregard them. This leaves Daddy looking pretty silly, and the disciplinary problem remains unsolved. A well-timed slap or a spanking judiciously administered often clears the atmosphere, and has been found to have great educational value.

Are those who hold this philosophy unfeeling brutes? We don't think so. Anyway, it is an experiment well worth trying on that type of juvenile known to the doting mother as a "problem child" and to the suffering neighbors as a "spoiled brat."

MR. GARNER RESPECTS THE FUNDAMENTALS.

Vice-President Garner was summoned by the President to a conference in Washington on the political situation. But the Texan begged off on the grounds (1) that everything was going Democratic in November anyway, and (2) that he wanted to complete his hunting and fishing schedule in and around Uvalde. Thereby the Vice-President not only prolonged his vacation, but showed his devotion to two of the country's fundamentals.

The first of these is the Constitution. It says about the Vice-President merely that he shall preside over the Senate (but shall not vote unless there is a tie); that he shall succeed to the executive office in the event of the President's disability, and not much else. Not a word about going to Washington when he is enjoying a vacation, or about sitting in on political medicine-making.

The second institution is the time-honored obscurity of our Vice-Presidents, as established with scarcely a break by a long line of them, and glorified in music and drama by the shrinking Throttlebottom in "Of Thee I Sing." Mr. Garner has upheld the tradition with all his power, stayed modestly out of the spotlight, let other people do the talking and the hand-shaking.

Mr. Garner knows his duties and obligations. There need be no fear that any of the Republic's foundation stones will be uprooted by any untoward ambitions on his part.

Illumination?

THE theme of this novel is certainly a great one—perhaps in its further implications the greatest of all themes. It may be stated simply, if somewhat inadequately, as follows: Only through the death of the privileged, socially short-circuited self, with all its fortifying conventions and prejudices, and a prideless rebirth into the common life of all humankind, including the lowest in men's eyes, can a man become socially wise and holy. To achieve this death and rebirth is, in Waldo Frank's conception, to become truly a Socialist, in a sense unknown to Marx and Engels. It is the ancient theme of saints and saviors.

How well Waldo Frank has expanded and illuminated his theme is, of course, a matter that will be decided by intelligent readers for themselves. Certainly those who may, for one reason or another, be moved even to inordinate enthusiasm have strong backing in what has already been said by important people. The following from a literary editor in Buenos Aires is fairly typical of the high-pitched voices that have hailed this work: "It is, in the domain of art, the master work of this universal epoch. It is the highest spiritual fruit of our time, and its time." What an enormous body of data, and what a godlike mentality, must have been involved in the arrival at such a judgment!

But one wishes the book to be great, and if it is, it is; although it cannot but seem to some, who are probably dull and uninspired, that the hysteria of our time may have been shared as well as represented by the author.

The protagonist, David Markand, is a highly successful American business man with little cultural background and with a crude philosophy appropriate to his function. His wife, Helen, is a very superior, intellectual woman. When the story opens, a shadow has fallen on their relationship and is rapidly deepening. It comes over David in the mornings, when he wakens, as a sense of strangeness and detachment. For Helen, it results in a flight from rationalism into the bosom of the Catholic church.

David, an official of a great tobacco company, is further enriched by a bequest from his uncle; but suddenly the shadow has blotted out the last familiar landmark of his old life, and he decides to chuck the whole business and plunge into the unclean maelstrom of common human existence in the vague hope of somehow saving his soul alive. Selling his interest in the great company, he places his fortune in the hands of a lawyer friend with instructions to look after his wife and family, and goes away to make a living with his two hands.

There follow some years of varied experiences among the lowly and the socially disinherited, and if there are depths of beastliness, David descends, and where there is suffering and brutal injustice, he shares it—not as an investigator but as one of the gray millions. In spite of the efforts of his friend and his wife to lure him back to their conception of sanity, he persists in his search for salvation. His young son dies, and still he cannot return. He meets his lonely and loving wife by appointment, and still he cannot give up the apparently insane search.

At long last, he comes to see the great light of deliverance and feels free to return to his family. Just why then, and not sooner, this writer has been unable to determine, but no doubt the point will be clear to others, and well taken. It seems, however, that a quite casual adventure with a lowly colored woman somehow resulted in the great illumination. The incident is celebrated not without a graphic power in such matters that is exercised with suspicious frequency throughout the story. But one cannot help wishing that the intended symbolism were slightly less doubtful in character, and that our hero might have found a better way of demonstrating the profound truth of essential spiritual equality.

Having merged (mystically, let us agree to say) with what he had once conceived to be the lowest, he had become somehow the universal man; and thereupon he could return to Helen wholly purified.

Happily, in the meantime, the lawyer friend has considerably increased David's fortune by wise handling.

It would be interesting to hear what he is going to do with all that money. It would be even more interesting to learn what Helen thinks about the great illumination.

THE WORLD AS I SEE IT. By Albert Einstein. (Covici-Friede, New York City.)

IT is the glory of this collection of letters and papers to reveal a human being in the finest sense of the word "human." It has often been said that not more than a dozen men in the world are able to understand the theory of relativity upon which the fame of Einstein is built. But any sympathetic reader should be able to feel the simple greatness of the spirit that is revealed here; and may not such greatness surpass in its value to men any intellectual structure that men can ever build?

For cosmic theories come and go like the peach crops, and in the long view, they may well be no more than creative representations of the time-mood out of which they grew; but human goodness and wisdom, the essential truth about human relationships, are the same whatever men may think about the universe; and out of what other stuff than that of their own mysterious consciousness can men shape their pathetic certainties? Ours is the most scientific of ages, yet we seem to have mislaid our wisdom, and to have fallen into such fatal contradictions as only the mad could achieve.

The dominant note of the book, as of the man's character, is struck in the following statement: "The destiny of civilized humanity depends more than ever on the moral forces it is capable of generating."

Even in the scientific section, where one might expect a cold intellectuality, the warm humanness of the man is felt. What he has to say of human life in general and of present-day affairs is said with a childlike directness that can leave no doubt of the meaning; and the habitual gentleness of manner intensifies the effect of a sinewy virile strength that lies in reserve, emerging now and then in arrow-like sentences that know their vital mark and find it swiftly.

The following passage, which is evidently a genuine self-revelation, is especially worth pondering, and may suggest the source of the man's luminous sanity:

"To inquire after the meaning or object of one's own existence or of creation generally has always seemed to me absurd from an objective point of view. And yet everybody has certain ideals which determine the direction of his endeavors and his judgments. In this sense, I have never looked upon ease and happiness as ends in themselves—on an ethical basis, I consider these the ideals of an inferior being.

"The ideals which have lighted me on my way and time after time given me new courage to face life cheerfully have been truth, goodness and beauty. Without the sense of fellowship with men of like mind, of preoccupation with the objective, the eternally unattainable in the field of art and scientific research, life would have seemed to me empty. The ordinary objects of human endeavor—property, outward success, luxury—have always seemed to me contemptible.

"My passionate sense of social justice and social responsibility has always contrasted oddly with my pronounced freedom from the need for direct contact with other human beings and human communities. I went my own way and have never belonged to my country, my home, my friends, or even my immediate family, with my whole heart; despite the existence of these ties, I have never lost an obstinate sense of detachment, of the need for solitude—a feeling which increases with the years.

"One becomes sharply conscious, without too much regret, of the limits of mutual understanding and sympathy between one's fellow creatures. One no doubt loses something in the way of cheerful bonhomie; on the other hand, one is largely independent of the opinions, habits and judgments of one's fellows, and avoids the temptation to take one's stand on such insecure foundations."

IT is nearly a quarter of a century since John Lomax published his "Cowboy Songs and Other Frontier Ballads," now justly regarded as a classic by folk-lorists, along with the author's second book, "Songs of the Cowcamp and Cattle Trail." After these two collections were published, there remained in manuscript, Mr. Lomax says, several thousand pages of similar material, out of which, largely, the present collection has been chosen. Unlike the former volumes, this one contains material from all parts of the country, and the music is in each case presented with the text.

John Lomax is now honorary consultant in American folk song and curator of the folk song archives of the Library of Congress. Alan Lomax is his son, now a student at the University of Texas.

PLANNING EXPERTS TO OPEN MEETING IN CITY TOMORROW

Municipal, State and National Problems to Be Taken Up at Three-Day Conference.

SECRETARY WALLACE TO MAKE ADDRESS

Zoning, Land Use and Control, Parks, Forests and Population Are Topics on Program.

A three-day public conference on city, State, regional and national planning will begin tomorrow at Hotel Chase with the city of St. Louis, the National Conference on City Planning and the American Civic Association participating.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace will be the principal speaker at a dinner Wednesday evening at Hotel Jefferson, at which national planning will be discussed. Gov. Park will preside.

The conference will be opened at 10 a. m. tomorrow by Alfred Bettman, president of the National Conference on City Planning. Henry P. Chandler of Chicago, director of the Regional Planning Association, will speak on "The Economic Value of a City Plan" and W. B. Harrison, former Mayor of Louisville, Ky., on "Politics and Planning." A general discussion on means of making city planning effective will be led by Abram Garfield, chairman of the City Planning Commission of Cleveland, O.

Bartholomew to Talk.

Harland Bartholomew, St. Louis planning consultant, will talk on "Metropolitan Planning for St. Louis and Environs" at the luncheon session.

Regional planning is the topic to be discussed at the afternoon session, with an address on "Large Scale Regional Development," by Earle S. Draper, director of land planning and housing for the Tennessee Valley Authority and a talk on "Mid-American Regional Planning," by Jacob L. Crane Jr., consultant for the State Planning Boards of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

For the evening meeting the general subject is promoting planned land use. Speakers and their subjects: Dr. Francis Farrell, president of the Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, "New Methods of Land Control;" L. R. Schoenmann, regional director, Land Policy Section, Agricultural Adjustment Administration, "Rural Land Use Planning"; Noble Clark, regional director of the AAA Land Policy Section for Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, "Co-ordination of County, State and Federal Land Planning"; W. A. Rowlands, rural zoning expert of the University of Wisconsin, "Experience in Rural Wisconsin Counties;" L. Deming Tilton, director of county planning, Santa Barbara, Cal., "Experience in California Counties."

To Discuss Zoning.

At the breakfast session Tuesday there will be discussions on zoning administration and planning education in schools and colleges. Chairmen of State planning boards will exchange ideas on the problems of state planning in the regular morning meeting. Dr. Charles E. Merriam, professor of political science at the University of Chicago will be the speaker at noon.

In the afternoon the delegates will be taken on a tour of the city to inspect the plaza and civic center and other centers of development.

National Planning Session.

Wednesday will be devoted to discussion of national planning. In the forenoon, Charles W. Eliot, executive officer of the National Resources Board, will describe the board's aims, Dr. L. O. Gray of the AAA will give the land use report, and Morris Cooke of the National Resources Board will talk on "National Water Resources."

In the afternoon F. A. Silcox, chief of the United States Forest Service, will talk on "National Forests"; J. Horace McFarland, former president of the American Civic Association, will discuss "Thirty Years of Conservation," and George M. Wright of the National Resources Board, will speak on "Recreation Areas."

Speakers at the dinner, in addition to the Secretary of Agriculture, will be Bettman and Frederic A. Delano, president of the American Civic Association.

On Thursday the delegates will go to Columbia for a discussion of the State plan of Missouri.

Heads Lowell School Patrons.

Expediency Explains Sudden Shifts in International Blocs

man-Italian combination theoretically stacks up perfectly. All of these three countries see eye to eye on questions of internal policy; they tend towards extreme nationalism and economic self-sufficiency. They are exerting themselves, to the breaking point, to build up formidable military machines. Mussolini's efforts in this direction the last decade are well known. Hitler's rehabilitation of the Prussian fighting force is going forward rapidly. Poland, of late, has intensified her military preparedness. Marshall Pilsudski now has power to decree a state of internal or external emergency at will. He can, with the stroke of the pen, mobilize every male between the ages of 17 and 60 and every female between 19 and 45—70 per cent of the population. All physically fit must now take military training. A half-million unemployed will be the first to be conscripted; 200,000 high school students must enter the army three years earlier than heretofore. Pilsudski says his idea is to make Poland self-sustained militarily, independent even of France. To attain this end he is spending 40 per cent of his annual budget on the regular army and armaments.

Poland's Ambitions.

Why Poland rejects an "Eastern Locarno," which would guarantee existing frontiers is explained by some diplomats in this way: She has not abandoned her hope of seeing the Ukraine one day independent of Russia or under her sphere of influence. She anticipates the day when Polish troops may help free the Ukraine from Bolshevik rule. Polish frontiers may even again, after several centuries, extend to Kieff and Odessa. Secondly, if practical politics should dictate surrender of the corridor, compensation would have to be taken at the expense of Lithuania. (Pilsudski is a native of Vilna and has never taken Lithuanian independence seriously.) Any pact guaranteeing existing frontiers might prove embarrassing.

As for Italy, she would secure a powerful ally against France if a bloc were formed which included the Baltic, Poland, Germany, the Balkans and the Danube. She would get an even break with Germany economically in Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania. Rumania and Yugoslavia, both violently anti-Soviet, might possibly be detached, with Czecho-Slovakia becoming helpless. Besides 3,000,000 Czecho-Slovaks already are German-speaking.

The most potent argument Germany can offer is naturally economic. Ruhr iron, coal and steel are indispensable for mid-Europeans. Ruhr industrialists have made immense strides since Hitler came into power. With possession of the Saar, and normal economic laws again working, their organization will be unbeatable in Europe.

Separately it is difficult for Poland and Italy to become really independent economically. Together with Germany it would be easy. They would have everything necessary—from steel to potatoes. With the Ukraine wheat fields the bloc could thumb its economic nose at the rest of the world. The market—including the agrarian belt—would include 200,000,000 consumers.

The French and British Governments are not viewing the political horizon with equanimity these days. Foreign Minister Barthou did a god job last spring rebuilding the "ring of steel" around Germany. The Nazi adventure in Austria drove Italy into France's lap. Then the Franco-Russian rapprochement and Moscow's entry into the League brought about Poland's deflection and Hitler's about-face eased up Italian apprehensions. Over in London Sir John Simon is observing closely, ready to intervene in the traditional British way of playing both ends against the middle if the European concert develops a discord. Out of the soup that is being brewed anything may emerge—and a dictator-dominated mid-European bloc should not be overlooked.

the only college graduate among his associates. Showing him the cabled report in a New York paper Edison asked with a smile, "What does that Sir-ly gentleman mean by the last two words?"

In his further experiments the inventor found twisted paper and cardboard filaments more durable than cotton thread. Then he substituted straight-grained bamboo. His final work was with the "squirted process," using a cellulose mixture.

In the middle eighties he sold his lamp patents and works at Harrison, N. J., for more than one million dollars. This was the nucleus of the vast electric lamp enterprises of the General Electric Co.

A little later when Edison learned of the enormous profits he would have made had he retained control of his lamp patents he realized he had made another business blunder, probably the most serious of his career.

It was a very sore spot for him and for 30 years no one dared broach the matter of the sale of his lamp interests. To writers and historians who visited him when they brought up the question of the electric light he would always say, "You can find it in the books."

Had Edison retained one-half interest in all of the inventions produced at Menlo Park from 1876 to 1886 he would have been the wealthiest man in history.

But experimenting and not business interested him. With him money was something to be spent in the laboratory.

What Others Made.

When the Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded him in 1928 for his magnificent benefactions to mankind official figures showed companies producing his inventions had invested capital of $15,599,000,000. This is almost $3,000,000,000 more than the then total value of all of the monetized gold in the world or slightly less than $5,000,000,000 below the total world net debt to the United States as revealed by official figures to President Roosevelt one month ago.

The inventions at Menlo Park, produced in a few years, accounted for more than half of this grand total, despite the fact that in the nearly 50 years that followed Edison obtained about 1000 additional patents.

In his lifetime close associates estimate that "The Wizard" made about $100,000,000. Most of this he plowed back in experiments and much he lost in business. Many times he told the writer his laboratory maintenance often cost him $1,000,000 a year.

Edison's Golden Jubilee.

A half-century after those humble, heart-breaking beginnings at Menlo Park, when Edison made his first challenge to the stars with his 10-candle-power bulb, the President of the United States and a distinguished group of Americans, gathered with him in Greenfield, Mich., to observe the golden jubilee of his great invention. Then 82 years old, he contracted a cold.

It was the last public event for Edison. He had had the supreme satisfaction of seeing many of his brain children become the universal servants of mankind.

Thereafter he became a changed "Old Man." Me must have known the end could not be far off. For the first time in the knowledge of old friends and associates he began to dwell upon things of yesterday.

Apparently he knew that for him there could not be many tomorrows. His health gradually failed. Life finally flickered and died at the very time when, more than a half-century before, he was preparing to turn on the current for the first light that was to bring life to a new age.

Three days after his death, on the fifty-second anniversary of his epoch-making achievement, he was placed in a humble grave in Rosedale Cemetery, Orange, N. J., there to rest until a more suitable monument is erected to contain the remains of him who changed man's mode of living more than any other and whose name will remain a great, inextinguishable star in the firmament of the famous.

Self-Government Offered to Indian Under New Deal

new, primitive and modern, to trouble the architects. Thus, a doubt arose whether adobe or cement should be used for the floor. The Indians no longer sit cross-legged in their Council House and it was finally decided that a cement floor might stand up better under the scraping of chairs.

Hospitals Provided.

In Yosemite National Park a new Indian village, begun in 1931, is being completed with PWA funds. This consists of 15 three-room cabins, a six-stall garage and shower rooms.

Most essential of all, perhaps, are the 12 hospitals which are being built with Public Works money. That there was great need for modern hospitals is indicated by the fact that of hospital service hitherto available to Indians only 5 per cent was given the approved rating of the American College of Surgeons. Incidentally, too, the death rate of the Indians is approximately twice that of the white population.

Fourteen thousand Indians have been included thus far in the Civilian Conservation Corps program and Robert Fechner, director, says their work compares favorably in every way with the work done by white CCC camps. A somewhat different system was used in the Indian camps. They were allowed to bring their families and camp in family groups. Ample proof was offered in the Indian CCC camps, according to the Indian Bureau, that Indians are capable of performing the same kind of work as white men, that is, as machine operators, telephone linemen and foremen. The CCC work served also to call attention to the glaring need for conservation of Indian lands, seriously eroded in many areas through years of over-grazing.

Tribes Vote on Change.

While these and numerous other changes now in progress constitute a brand-new Indian policy, it is possible that the most radical innovation introduced by the Wheeler-Howard Act lies in the privilege of the tribes to accept or reject it. It thus extends at the very outset the right of self-government. The act provided that within a year following its passage the tribes must pass on it. By reservations and tribes they are deciding what their relationship with that hitherto very questionable figure, the Great White Father in Washington, shall be. Indian officials are confident of an overwhelming majority in each tribe for the measure. Referendums thus far completed show, according to the Indian Bureau, a ratio of about 10 to 1 in favor of the Wheeler-Howard Act. The principal opposition is fomented, it is said, by private interests concerned over continuing the present system of grazing on Indian lands.

Oklahoma an Exception.

The Indians in Oklahoma were excluded from most of the provisions of the act. This was done at the insistence of Senator Thomas and other Oklahoma political leaders who argued that they were not sure whether it represented the best plan for tribesmen of their State. Because of their huge oil holdings the Oklahoma tribes have long been a thorny political factor. Collier points out that fully 90,000 Indians in eastern Oklahoma have never had any oil and are living today in poverty as severe as that of any tribes in the country.

At the time that he opposed the Wheeler - Howard reorganization plan for the Indians of his state, Senator Thomas said that he intended to investigate affairs on each reservation to decide whether he had been right or wrong in his attitude. He is now making those visits and with him for most of the tour, at his invitation, was Commissioner Collier.

So the Oklahoma Indians may come under the New Deal, too. What has been done thus far is merely the beginning. The bill of Indian rights calls for a basic reorganization which will go steadily forward under the direction of Commissioner Collier.

Actual Value May Be $150,000 Since Stocks Are Carried at $1 Per Share.

Personal property in the estate of Charles G. Ewing, member of an old St. Louis family, who died Aug. 29, was valued at $95,116 in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday. However, as the stocks are carried at a nominal value of $1 a share, it was said the actual value of the personal property would approximate $150,000.

Among his stocks so carried were 350 shares of St. Louis Union Trust Co., and 100 shares of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. He also owned 28,713 shares of the Philipsburg Mining Co., listed at $1 a share.

The inventory shows a fractional interest in several parcels of St. Louis real estate, among them, 206 North Broadway, and realty at Tenth and Locust streets. The value of this interest is not appraised.

Mr. Ewing, who was 50 years old, resided at 4943 Laclede avenue. He was president of two mining companies. Under his will, $15,000 was left to a friend, Dr. Charles H. Conley, of Frederick, Md.; $10,000 to Edward P. Hall, 5705 Cates avenue, also a friend, while Mrs. Jane Taylor Price and Miss Cornelia Scott, both old friends of his, were left $1000 and $500, respectively. A bequest of $5000 was made to a brother, Fred Ewing, who, with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., was named co-executor and co-trustee. The residue of the estate was left in trust for the benefit of Fred Ewing.

TOUR OF HISTORIC SITES OF CITY TO BE MADE TODAY

The second annual Historic Sites Tour of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce will be held this afternoon, starting at the old Courthouse, Broadway and Chestnut street, at 2 p. m. Among the places to be visited will be three historic sites recently marked with plaques by the division. The public will be welcome to join in the tour.

Maps showing an established route for visitors to the sites downtown have been prepared by the division and will be distributed today. Included are the Old Courthouse, William Clark Home, Lindell Hotel site, Henry Shaw's old home site, Lucas Market Place, Eugene Field's childhood home, Grant-Dent House, Old Cathedral, Old Government House, landing place of Laclede, founder of the city; Old Rock House, old log cabin site, National Hotel site and starting point of Boone's Lick Trail.

Dr. Poling and Others to Speak—1000 Delegates Registered.

The Forty-sixth Annual State Christian Endeavor Convention will be held at the Winnebago Presbyterian Church, Winnebago street and Tennessee avenue, Nov. 8-11.

A program of conference work, fellowship periods, and entertainment has been arranged for the 1000 delegates who have registered for the meeting. More than 35 conferences have been scheduled.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union and president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, will speak on the religious conditions for young people in European countries he has recently visited. The Rev. Vere W. Abbey, general secretary of the India, Burma, and Ceylon Christian Endeavor Unions, will picture conditions in the Far East. Dr. Samuel M. Glasgow, pastor of the Independent Presbyterian Church, Savannah, Ga. will make the opening address.

There will be daily messages and discussions on the subject "Be Christian," which has been selected as the theme of this convention. Floral designs of "cross of exaltation," the symbol for the theme, will be used in the decorations.

More Than 300 Delegates From Various Sections to Attend Four-Day Conference.

The four-day session of the National Fall Conference of the Volunteers of America, bringing more than 300 delegates from various parts of the country, will open tomorrow morning at the Hotel Jefferson. The conference will include directors meeting and inauguration of the new state commands plan of campaign.

General and Mrs. Ballington Booth, founders of the movement, arrived in the city yesterday. General Booth occupies the pulpit at the St. Peter's Episcopal Church today, while his wife, who is also the founder of the Volunteer Prison League, discusses her prison work from the pulpit at the Christ Church Cathedral. Col. J. H. Berry will address the congregation at the Third Baptist Church. On Wednesday, General Booth will speak before the members of the Scottish Rite Club at a luncheon at the American Hotel.

DOCTORS TO DEMONSTRATE PROGRESS IN OPERATION

Southwestern Branch of American Urological Association to Meet Tomorrow.

The Southwestern Branch of the American Urological Association will hold its fourteenth annual meeting at the Coronado Hotel for three days, beginning tomorrow, dedicating its program, which will be in the field of social hygiene, to Dr. Bransford Lewis, 4400 McPherson avenue, in honor of his fiftieth year in the practice of urology.

Operations will be performed by St. Louis urologists, in conjunction with invited guests, each morning at Barnes, Firmin, Desloge and City hospitals. Lectures with laboratory demonstrations will be given by prominent specialists in the methods demonstrated. Dr. Clinton K. Smith of Kansas City and Dr. N. G. Alcock, chief urologist of the Iowa City Hospital, Iowa City, Ia., will be two of the operating surgeons.

Progress in anesthesia will be shown by the use of a new drug called "Evipal." An injection of this fluid causes the patient to sleep naturally for 20 minutes. There have been no fatalities and no sensations with the anesthetic during 400 trial operations in New York City.

Included among the 250 persons who will attend the meeting are: Dr. Waltman Walters, surgeon at the Mayo Clinic; Dr. Arbor D. Munger, secretary of the association; Dr. Oswald Lowsley, chief urologist of the Brady Institute, New York City; Dr. William Braasch, chief urologist of Mayo Clinc; Dr. Alfred Folsom, chief of the Department of Urology, Baylor University, Dallas, Tex.; Dr. Charles Higgins of the Crile Clinic, Cleveland, O., and Dr. Oswald Grant of Louisville, Ky.

WELCOME INN GETS MANY DONATIONS FROM OUTSIDE CITY

Checks for Emergency Fund Received From Lexington, Va., and Nashville, Tenn.

Contributions to the emergency fund campaign of Welcome Inn have been received from numerous donors residing outside St. Louis, according to Mrs. Nat Brown, chairman. Checks were received from Lexington, Va., and Nashville, Tenn., both contributors writing they had seen newspaper accounts of the work being done by the agency.

The campaign, which is entering the fourth week, is still short of the $20,000 goal, she said. Last week the agency found it necessary to eliminate meat and soap distribution as an economic measure. Turnips, which are plentiful this season, are being canned for distribution this winter, Mrs. Brown said.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Described as "among the most beautiful ever issued" by this Government, the new Philippine stamps—14 in all—will be placed on sale shortly after the first of the year.

Ten of the new issues will be in centavo denominations and the other four in peso denominations. A peso is the equivalent of a half dollar in American money, and a centavo as equal to half a cent.

Printing of the new issues will be completed by the middle of next month, then they will be packed and shipped by rail and steamer to the Phillipines. All first day covers must be obtained direct from the Bureau of Posts, Manila, in the islands, although the stamps will later be available at the office of the Philippine Trade Commissioner in this city.

The 2-centavo stamp will be maroon and have for its main design a portrait of Dr. Joze Rizal, foremost Filipino martyr and patriot. The 4-centavo will be green and have a design symbolizing agriculture; 6-centavo, brown, bearing a portrait of a Filipino girl; 8-centavo, purple, showing Moros fishing for pearls in Mindanao-Sulu.

The 10-centavo will be red, showing Fort Santiago, Manila; 12-centavo, black, with sketch of Salinas Salt Springs; 16-centavos, blue with sketch of Magellan's Landing; 20-centavo, olive green, with portrait of Juan de la Cruz, typifying a Filipino gentleman of an earlier generation.

The 26-centavo will be a dull blue, showing rice terraces in the mountain province, Island of Luzon, and 30-centavo, vermillion red, with replica of the Blood Compact.

The 2-peso stamp will be brown and yellow, with a sketch of the battle of Manila Bay; 4-peso, blue and black, with replica of Montalban Gorge; 5-peso, green and black, containing portrait of President Washington.

Some of the new stamps will be horizontal, some oblong and others vertical. Two will be square. The value of the new issues will be the same as the current issues, except that there is no special delivery and no 10-peso stamp in the new group.

Navy Day Proclamation.

Mayor Dickmann yesterday issued a proclamation setting next Saturday as Navy Day in St. Louis in connection with the thirteenth annual observance of the day throughout the country.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 21, 1934.

Strict Welfare Rules For Movie Children

State Representatives Placed at Studios, Teachers to Conduct Education—David Holt, New Star, Was Extra Player.

IN THE picture, "You Belong To Me" at the Orpheum this week, David Holt, a new child star, is introduced to movie-goers—a six-year-old who, his studio hopes, will become a Mr. Shirley Temple in the hearts of American audiences.

David, the son of an automobile salesman who went from Florida to California in search of better opportunities, might never have gone before the cameras had not a neighbor of the Holt family persuaded the boy's father to let him play in several extra scenes.

The sudden illness of Dickie Moore, scheduled for the child role in "You Belong To Me" sent Director Alfred Werker scurrying for a substitute. Miss Rachel Smith, Board of Education attache at the Paramount studios, came across some old stills on her deck and was impressed by the face of a little boy in a mob scene. She showed it to Werker who chose the boy, David, without any hesitation. And so David is now the big money-maker in the Holt family.

BUT the few children who are featured is almost negligible compared to the number who serve in bit parts here and there, or who, like David Holt, may only make a mob scene seem more realistic. Even new-born babies are essential studio properties.

As a result of the appearance of children in the movies, parents and welfare agencies have made considerable inquiry about working conditions for the children.

So far as California laws are concerned, the only reference to children working in motion pictures is brief. It is embodied in Act 3625. This rather terse regulatory measure demands that permits be issued for children working in motion pictures; and that a properly constituted officer be satisfied "that the environment is a proper environment for the minor and that the conditions of such employment are not detrimental to the health of such minors and that the minor's education will not be neglected nor hampered."

NO DEFINITE agreement regarding child work in motion picture studios was effectively attempted until the formation of Motion Picture Producers' Association in 1926. It was only then that work was started to draw up rules. Since then these have been strictly enforced and each year improved upon.

According to these rules, a child under six months can only be exposed before the camera and under lights for 30 seconds at a time. An entire day's work for an infant must be confined to exactly 20 minutes total. The highest salaried stars in Hollywood, according to a note received from one studio, are seven new born babies which are being used in sequences of the company's "The White Parade." Their salary for 20-minute appearances is $75 per appearance, or $1800 for an eight-hour day.

Between the ages of six months and two years, a child may be on the studio lot a total of four hours, but never more than two hours on the actual picture set. There must be nurseries, beds, proper milk and heating. A welfare representative of the State must be on hand at the studios when children are working or being utilized. This welfare agent is responsible for and must report on sanitary conditions, dangerous surroundings, proximity of eating places, general moral tone, ventilation, lighting, and note dust, smoke or other injurious factors.

THE next classification covers children of ages from two to six years. This is the class that Shirley Temple comes under at present. She was five last April. Children of this group can be on the studio grounds a total of six hours, but can be on the actual motion picture set only three hours for any purpose.

The regulations for children over six years of age call for not more than eight hours on the studio lot and never over four hours on the set. All children of school age must bring a card from their teacher setting forth just how far their studies have progressed. The teacher at the motion picture studio must take up and teach from that point on in perfect keeping with the regular public school course and as long as the child is engaged at the picture studio.

Recently, of 1232 permits issued in a year for children, only 277 were for those of pre-school age. The Los Angeles Board of Education report shows that 963 minors, or 78 per cent, worked 10 days or less in the year and much of this time was inclusive of regular school holidays.

A child with an active permit and one that is kept up or consistently renewed is fortunate in that he or she receives continual medical examination, treatment and advice. This amounts to good health insurance. Mothers are at once acquainted with any shortcomings or defects and they are corrected. In one year 127 permits were suspended due to visual and eye defection, faulty teeth, gums, tonsils, throat conditions, glandular status and anemia. In 120 of these cases conditions were immediately corrected and the child passed as fit the next time.

The casting director for children at the central agency is a woman of great experience. She knows what she is doing at all times. There are no fees charged children seeking work in pictures through the central agency. This woman says a number of anxious and aggressive mothers bring their children in often "over-groomed." Most children required should be just plain, natural children, with sophistication completely lacking. "Over-dressing" or marceling is frequently a disadvantage to the child.

"Yellow Jack" Cast Begins Rehearsals

Rehearsals of "Yellow Jack" have been begun by the Little Theater which will present the Sidney Howard play on Nov. 19, as one of its two repertory pieces for the first part of the season, along with "The Late Christopher Bean." Principal roles in "Yellow Jack" will be taken by Bruce MacFarlane, Percy Ramsay, Elliott Bergfeld, J. William Lucas and Anna Ivy Sargent. Miss Sargent, in the role of a nurse, has the only feminine part.

Thyrsus Plays on Nov. 8, 9.

Thyrsus, Washington University dramatic organization, will present the English 16 plays, written by students, in January Courtroom, on the campus, Nov. 8 and 9. At the second performance, announcement will be made of a play service, by which the English 16 plays will be available to high schools and dramatic groups.

Mae West Named Box Office Leader

MAE WEST is being hailed as the greatest individual attraction of any feminine star in motion pictures as the result of a national theater poll conducted by the Hollywood Reporter, outstanding trade publication. More than 6000 theater owners gave Mae first box-office ranking. Joan Crawford followed, while Norma Shearer was third, Kay Francis fourth and Janet Gaynor fifth. Five others in order are Jean Harlow, Claudette Colbert, Shirley Temple, Ann Harding and Margaret Sullavan.

Sequel to "Thin Man."

Myrna Loy, who has completed eight pictures in a year and was looking forward to a vacation of world travel, has had to alter her plans. She will begin work soon on a sequel to "The Thin Man."

Walter Hampden as "Richelieu," at the American Theater

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS :: :: By Colvin McPherson

IT IS good, on occasions, to make use of that well-known human muscle, the diaphragm, in a hearty spasm of laughter. Such occasions are provided at the Shubert Theater in "The Gay Divorcee," which will have you acting silly right away. Those who remember "Flying Down to Rio," a previous picture by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, will find "The Gay Divorcee" a worthy sequel. The music this time is not up to the brilliance of Vincent Youmans' score for the South American picture, but the humor is far ahead, the show moves faster. Despite much repetition, the "Continental" will not stick as did the "Carioca," but Astaire and Rogers keep on dancing, so no complaint is offered. Ginger, with all the old spicy inelegance gone, is a demure, refined lady who wants to get a divorce before letting Astaire fall in love with her. Her efforts to make arrangements by a denatured hotel guest method cause the confusion. The lines are funny enough but the between-the-lines are the diaphragm wreckers. A lion's share of the entertainment is left to Alice Brady, who as Ginger's aunt, is as flighty as the race to Australia.

The Last Gentleman

GEORGE ARLISS, in the movies, has fallen into two roles — Disraeli and Old English—and the one distinct exception is "The Green Goddess," which probably revealed Arliss at his best as an actor. In "The Last Gentleman," at Loew's, he is again the puttering old man, severe, full of eccentricities but with a lovable sense of humor. In 1934, in Massachusetts, he calls his relatives together, ostensibly for a memorial service to a member of the family who has died in China. It is merely to observe the members of the group, since old Cabot Barr (Arliss) must leave his fortune to someone. The souls of all are revealed in due time (probably a little overdue for bright ticket-holders) and old Cabot dies. But the joke the old gentleman plays at the reading of the will and the deft handling of the situation by the director, Sidney Lanfield, puts "The Last Gentleman" into a class with Arliss's best pictures. Never has his characterization of an old man been more convincing than in a few brief moments at the finish.

Lady by Choice

PRAISE must be the portion for the fine, ironic etching of the contemporary scene in "Lady By Choice" at the Ambassador, but the plot finally strays down the old ox road and becomes just a case of a wealthy youth and a fan dancer who are held apart and then pushed together. May Robson is lady for more than a day this time. Although one of the most gloriously depraved old wretches of screen history in her first few appearances, she right away straightens up when Carole Lombard, the Venus of the plumes, adopts her for publicity on Mother's Day. From then on, it is May's choice to make Carole a lady. She even tries to break up the match between Carole and Roger Pryor because she thinks Carole is gold-digging. Miss Lombard's work is grand, but she has taken to screaming most of the time lately. "One Exciting Adventure" could have been made original only by having Binnie Barnes, a lovely kleptomaniac, steal the high spot on the Ambassador bill. She is simply full of cute little stunts and doesn't get caught at all.

Caravan

MONEY was spent on "Caravan" at the Missouri, and the production shows it. Sets include a Hungarian chateau 200 feet high, a complete Hungarian village, mile-long vineyards. The costuming of gypsies and peasants is almost a miracle. Werner Richard Heymann's catchy tunes are turned over to singing choruses on the slightest excuse. And excuses are needed, for the picture is too long for the plot, something about Loretta Young, an heiress, marrying a gypsy to save her vineyards and then discovering she's likely to sour the wine. "King Kelly of the U. S. A.'" does not reveal Guy Robertson as any new screen idol, even undressed like one, but it is often hilarious with his naive efforts to balance the budget in the mythical kingdom of Belgardia. He merely makes the country over into a kind of Belgian-village-at-the-World's Fair and takes in the pasootas.

Six Day Bike Rider

"SIX DAY BIKE RIDER" will appeal only to the juvenile mind and if I know the generation, is not even quite to taste in that sector. Joe is a squint-eyed railroad station agent at Mildew, Cal., who for various reasons, including disappointment in love, enters a six-day race. Visitors to the Orpheum ought to be affected by reminiscences, if nothing else, in "You Belong to Me." Vaudeville, once the Orpheum's pride, is on the screen, and so is Arthur Pierson, who played at the Orpheum in stock. Enough for tears. The show is about David Holt, an average child actor, losing his father and mother and being adopted by Lee Tracy and Helen Morgan. Tears again. Then Helen sings about her man and if he'd just come home. I held out until then.

One Night of Love

THERE are those who say it's Tullio Carminati who keeps "One Night of Love" at the Fox for the current year. And there are others who say it's an unrequited love for real grand opera, at movie prices. But, after all, it's only the management and Will Rogers in "Judge Priest" may be introduced any day now.

Hampden in "Richelieu" At American Theater

Actor Repeats Role of Cardinal From Last Season — Also to Appear as "Hamlet" and "King Richard III."

WALTER HAMPDEN, who played a week's engagement here last January, will return to open the season at the American Theater tomorrow night with "Richelieu," one of the dramas which made up his repertoire last winter.

Supported by a company of 35, Hampden will also present two other plays in his three-day stay—Shakespeare's "King Richard III" on Tuesday evening and "Hamlet" at the Wednesday matinee. "Richelieu" will be repeated Wednesday night.

The version of "Richelieu" is by Arthur Goodrich. It was adopted from the Bulwer-Lytton play, performed first in 1839 in London, which became a vehicle for William Charles Macready, Edwin Forrest, John McCullough and Lawrence Barrett, and found its supreme exponent in Edwin Booth. In late years, Robert Mantell was the only American actor, other than Hampden, to appear in "Richelieu" with any frequency. Hampden, on deciding to act the Cardinal-Premier, selected Goodrich to make the adaptation. Goodrich had previously fashioned "Caponsacchi" for Hampden from Robert Browning's "The Ring and the Book."

THE drama shows the crafty and powerful Cardinal at the zenith of his career, in one of the crises in which his life and authority are threatened and the throne of Louis XIII endangered by a conspiracy led by Gaston, Duke of Orleans. The action reveals how Richelieu, alternately as lion and fox, preserves the monarchy and unites the distressed lovers, Julie de Mortemar and Chevalier de Mauprat.

Goodrich's daughter, Eleanor, will take the role of Julie de Mortemar and will be seen also as Ophelia in "Hamlet" and Lady Anne in "King Richard III." Hampden's Ophelia here two years ago was Evelyn Venable, now a well-known motion picture actress.

For "King Richard III," Hampden used the pure Shakespearean text, without the interpolations which enjoyed a vogue in the eighteenth century. His "Hamlet," played with several short scenes of the original which ordinarily are removed, has become a standard for the role in the United States.

Other principals in the company are Mabel Moore, Katherine Lane, John Davenport Seymour, Ernest Rowan, Dallas Anderson, G. Hannam Clarke, LeRoi Operti, Robert Schnitzer, Edwin Ross, Richard Bowler, Franklin Salisbury and Edwin Cushman.

ANOTHER booking for the American, announced in the last week, is a return engagement of Marc Connelly's play, "The Green Pastures," which is set for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 22-24. The engagement is for three evenings and a Saturday matinee.

Richard B. Harrison, now 70 years old, still holds his record of not having missed a performance in the role of "de Lawd" in more than four years, but the death of Alfonso Fenderson at Danville, Va., a fortnight ago removed the Moses of the original cast. The present tour includes 112 cities before the Negro cast goes back to Broadway early next spring. When the tour is completed, there will be only five states of the Union in which the play has not been presented—Wyoming, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Maine.

A NEW Marc Connelly play, "The Farmer Takes a Wife," is set for a Broadway opening Wednesday night. Acting as understudy to Margaret Hamilton in the lead role is Mary Wickes, who is better known to St. Louisans by her real name of Mary Wickenhauser.

Miss Wickes, regularly in a minor part, had the lead role for several performances in Philadelphia last week, where the play has already opened, when Miss Hamilton became ill. Miss Wickes, a graduate of Washington University, is a former comedienne of the St. Louis Little Theater and received further training at the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Mass. Her first professional appearance was well-received by Philadelphia critics, according to a letter to F. Cowles Strickland, director of the Little Theater.

Katharine Cornell, whose repertory appearance closed the American season last spring, is spending the winter in New York. Opening on Dec. 20 at the Martin Beck Theater, she will present "Romeo and Juliet," with Basil Rathbone as her leading man, for four and a half weeks; "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" for four weeks and "Flowers of the Forest," a new modern drama by John Van Druten.

Only five established legitimate stars have appeared in the new plays this season—Walter Huston in "Dodsworth," Judith Anderson in "Divided by Three," Francine Larrimore in "Spring Song," Frances Starr in "Lady Jane" and Dame Sybil Thorndike in "Distaff Side"—but coming out later with Miss Cornell, will be Eva Le Galliene and Ethel Barrymore in "L'Aiglon" and Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in Noel Coward's new comedy, "Point Balaine."

Helen Hayes' tour in "Mary of Scotland," which is expected to include St. Louis, has been postponed.

Change in Policy To Make News-Reels More Entertaining

A CHANGE in news-reel policy, which will make news-reels more of entertainment features than purveyors of news, is under way. Indicative of the rebirth was a brief, dramatic account one of the reels had recently of a polo game, with unposed shots of spectators thrown in for amusement and suspense.

In bad taste, perhaps, but nevertheless interesting, was the unrehearsed breakdown of Mrs. Bruno Hauptmann while singing a lullaby to her baby. It was a new type of drama for the films. Mistakes of the news-reel actors are no longer "clipped" as they once were. Many local movie-goers will remember, with delight, the embarrassment of Princess Marina of Greece, betrothed of Prince George of England, who came to the end of a polished little speech and found that although the camera was still there, she had nothing to say.

Grand Opera Season To End With "Tosca" And "Andrea Chenier"

PUCCINI'S "Tosca" tomorrow night and Giordano's "Andrea Chenier" Friday will bring the fall season of the St. Louis Grand Opera Company to a close.

Maria Jeritza, Viennese prima donna, who until her resignation a few years ago, was one of the leading sopranos at the Metropolitan Opera, will make her St. Louis debut in the title role of "Tosca." Her only previous appearance in St. Louis was in a concert six or seven years ago. Mario Chamlee, tenor, will be the Cavaradossi and Alfredo Gandolfi, baritone, will sing Scarpia.

Giovanni Martinelli and Elisabeth Rethberg of the Metropolitan will have the first tenor and soprano roles in "Andrea Chenier," supported by Carlo Morelli and Ada Paggi.

Lanny Ross' Real Name.

Nation's Capital As Movie Setting

Washington, D. C., is to be constructed in replica in Hollywood for Walter Wanger's drama of war and politics, "The President Vanishes." Among the more elaborate settings will be the gallery of the House of Representatives, rostrum and floor; the Cabinet room; White House study; main gate and guard house of the White House; White House library; residential street, and an alley, near Washington street. Although Lewis Stone was originally slated for the part of the President, he has been replaced by Arthur Byron, character actor who, the studio says, has "greater experience in the interpretation of political characterizations."

HELP WANTED—MEN, BOYS

Saleswork

PERMANENT POSITIONS
NEW, COMPLETE LINE

Promotions and additional new lines made openings which we will fill with intelligent, sincere, neat-appearing men over 25.

Several serious-minded men able to supply character references can establish themselves in a permanent, profitable, dignified business so broad and complete that it is not affected by seasonal changes. Protected customer contact, not one-call sales, built our business. Liberal basis of compensation ranging from $150 per month up, depending on the man, his sincerity and his desire and ability to follow a definite successful program. No investment now or later.

A car and sales experience desirable, but not essential, as we prefer to give the men selected the same intensive merchandising training on our complete line, which has made our St. Louis organization the national leader.

PRELIMINARY INTERVIEW
POSITIVELY NO OTHER TIME.

GENERAL ELECTRIC DISTRIBUTER,
4144 LINDELL.

WANTED, MALE HELP

SALESMEN WANTED

IF YOU ARE THE MAN

Who Has Always Wanted to Become a

SALESMAN

But Did Not Have the Courage to Make a Change,
This Ad Should Appeal to You.

One of the nation's largest distributors is inaugurating a $2,000,000 advertising and sales campaign and is desirous of securing the application of men who want to sell, but do not know a method of developing their ability.

There are thousands of such men without regular employment with real ability whose entire futures can be changed with the opportunity and facilities we have to offer for training in sales work.

In reply state age, education, dependents, and any other information which would be of value in considering your application. State address and phone number. Box Y-325, Post-Dispatch.

MEN

On account of the steady progress and growth of our company, we are in a position to take on a few additional men from time to time; the requirements for these positions are quite reasonable so that the average man of good habits and clean-cut appearance will stand a fair chance of being employed.

This company has been uniquely successful throughout this depression, in fact 1933 was our fourth successive record sales year. In line with our steady gains in business, the earnings of our men are higher; not only are more men earning $50.00 and $75.00 a week, but in recent months we have issued many weekly pay checks running between $100.00 and $250.00, throughout the entire country. These earnings, of course, are generally made by more experienced men, but there are exceptions where new men have quickly advanced themselves to the higher incomes.

Similar positions are available in our local office to a few more men who are qualified to learn this work, and who would be satisfied with earnings of $125.00 monthly while learning, provided they saw opportunities for increases with experience; the men accepted for these positions will be given a very thorough course of training free of charge.

For personal interview, call at Room 512, Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts., Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15.

Bridlespur Club Entertains With Annual Hunt Ball

THE sixth annual steeplechase of the Bridlespur Hunt Club and its attendant social festivities reached a new high last night with the hunt ball, an elaborate affair, at the club. Complimentary to the out-of-town visitors, many of whom ride in famous hunts and steeplechases in the East and South, the decorations depicted part of a Virginia estate with its colonial mansion, its court yard and stables.

A marquee was built off the informal luncheon room of the club for the dinner and ball. The guests entered through the door of a white colonial house to a pillared veranda over which pink roses climbed, into a court yard enclosed by a brick wall. Vines ran riot over the wall arranged against pine trees and brightly colored foliage that gave a realistic autumn effect. At the end of the court yard were seen the stables, with double door and barred windows. Pale blue drapery simulated the sky, and inverted cart wheels swung from wagon chains to hold the lights. Old coach lights lined the sides of the room.

More than 200 guests were seated at a large E-shaped table adorned with clusters of pale pink roses and yellow chrysanthemums and lighted by yellow tapers in silver horseshoe shaped candelabra. At the head of the table were seated the officers of the Bridlespur Hunt Club and out-of-town guests, who made a loving cup of the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup, the trophy of the principal event of the afternoon. The pink coats of the gentlemen riders and the elaborate gowns worn by the women guests made an attractive scene at the flower decked and candle lighted dinner table. One section of the table was reserved for 40 debutantes and their escorts.

Preceding the steeplechase the annual hunt breakfast for 165 guests was held. There were three tables stretching the length of the imitation court yard. The tables were covered with yellow damask and decorated with bouquets of shaggy yellow chrysanthemums and small yellow pom poms.

Contemporary Club Program for Season

THE Contemporary Club has announced its program for the season as follows: Monday, Nov. 5, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, whose topic will be "The Business of Diplomacy;" Friday, Dec. 14, Edwards Weeks, on "An Editor's Easy Chair;" Wednesday, Jan. 23, Dr. William Beebe, on "Five Hundred Fathoms Down," and Friday, Feb. 15, Sir Willmott Lewis, on "Vision in World Affairs."

Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann will be chairman of the first program, and will introduce the speaker. Mrs. Owen is Minister from the United States to Denmark, and is the first woman to hold such a position. She was formerly Congresswoman from Florida.

Mr. Weeks, the second speaker, is editor-in-chief of the Atlantic Monthly. Dr. Beebe, noted scientist, will speak on his recent bathysphere trip to the ocean floor, and Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times since 1920, will discuss his work in France, China and Japan.

Woman's Club Juniors To Give Entertainment

THE first entertainment of the season to be given by the Junior Committee of the St. Louis Woman's Club will be a dinner dance to be held at the club Saturday night. The club will be decorated with dahlias in autumn colors and the rooms will be lighted by yellow tapers.

Among the large parties will be one in honor of Miss Jane Caulfield for which Mrs. Charles D. Ashcroft will be hostess. A group of the debutantes and their escorts will comprise the guest list. Miss Caulfield is the daughter of former Gov. and Mrs. Henry S. Caulfield.

Jane Penn Meier Becomes the Bride of William Gray

THE wedding of Miss Jane Penn Meier, daughter of Mrs. Adolphus Meier of Sleepy Hollow, near De Soto, Mo., and William Adreon Gray took place quietly yesterday morning in the chapel of the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. John E. Hines, assistant pastor, read the service at 10:30 o'clock in the presence of the families and a few close friends. There were no attendants. The altar was decorated with clusters of white chrysanthemums and greenery, and was candle-lit.

The bride's brother, Adolphus G. Meier, gave her in marriage. She wore her traveling costume, an ensemble of olive green wool with a green satin blouse, and a coat of the material, trimmed with mole. Her hat, also trimmed with mole, matched the suit, and she wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray departed immediately after the ceremony for their honeymoon, and will occupy an apartment at 6062 Cates avenue. The out-of-town guests included her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartner Hurkamp Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and made her debut informally several years ago. Mr. Gray is the son of Mrs. Georgie Young Gray, 5955 Clemens avenue, and Cabell Gray. He is a graduate of the St. Louis Country Day School and Brown University, where he became a member of Delta Phi fraternity.

Luncheon for Stella Cartwright

MRS. OLIVER L. GARRISON, 81 Aberdeen place, will be hostess at a luncheon today in honor of Miss Stella Cartwright, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh F. Cartwright, 5649 Cabanne avenue. The party will be held at the country place of Mr. and Mrs. George Dobler at Barnhart, Mo. In case of rain, the party will be held at the home of Mrs. Garrison. The guests will include 15 debutantes and their escorts.

'World's Fair' Debut Party for Mildred Webster

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS EXPOSITION was reproduced on a small scale last night at the St. Louis Woman's Club to provide an unusual setting for the debut party of Miss Mildred Webster. The host and hostess were her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Van Holst Pellekaan of the Senate apartments, with whom she makes her home.

Many of the features of the Chicago Fair were in evidence. Guides in regulation red coats, African sun hats and Sam Browne belts functioned as doormen, assisted with the arrangements and directed the guests down an avenue of flags to the reception rooms.

The brilliant colors seen at the Fair were used extravagantly in the dining room, where most of the party was held. Glass skylights were dimmed with squares of color, and side brackets were converted into colored cellophane torches. The long windows were curtained in oil cloth, each a different hue.

The long midway of the exposition was depicted by gay modern posters of the Fair buildings, painted in tones of the originals. These covered the supporting pillars of the room, and projecting triangle signs attached to each gave the name of each building. Beginning with Fort Dearborn and the Hall of Science, the guests walked past the Belgian Village, the Italian Pavilion, the Streets of Paris and the Transportation building to the miniature sky ride over Miss Webster's table at the far end of the room. The skeleton steel work encased the pillars at each side of the table, and the busses, "Amos" and "Andy" moved overhead by electrically controlled devices.

Instead of flowers as centerpieces, there were long upright cutouts of the fair buildings over wide stripes of colored oil cloth down the length of each dinner table, and each was set near the pillar which corresponded. Black oil cloth striped the large U-shaped table of the guest of honor, and in the center was a modern black urn filled with cellophane silver flowers and flanked by white candles in chromium metal holders.

The dinner chair of each young woman guest was covered by a red, green or white rubber rain cape such as has been worn by visitors in Chicago for two years. The capes were donned over evening frocks as the evening progressed. Dinner partners were found by flags and cards attached to walking sticks given as favors to the men.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Holst Pellekaan and Miss Webster received their guests in the lounge of the club before a floral background composed of many baskets of chrysanthemums and roses sent to the guest of honor for the occasion. Miss Webster wore the gown in which she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball, a

Miss Florence Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Austin, 433 South Kirkwood road, Kirkwood, was married to Frank J. Bush Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bush, 430 West Swon avenue, Webster Groves, at Grace Episcopal Church last night at 8:30 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. J. J. Wilkins, rector emeritus of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of ivory-tinted satin, fashioned on princesse lines, the skirt flaring at the knee and ending in a train. The neck was cut in a high cowl, and the sleeves, full to the elbow, terminated in long tight cuffs which were pointed at the wrist and trimmed with small satin buttons. Her veil was held in place by a wreath of satin leaves, worn as a tiara. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley.

Her sister, Miss Helen Austin, who was maid of honor, wore a dress of chartreuse velvet, molded to the figure, with a deep full ruffle attached at the hemline and extending into a short train. A matching ruffle edged the shoulder cape which was tied low in front, below the cowl neck. Her bouquet was of dark red roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Julia Gehm and Miss Mildred Bush, sister of the bridegroom, wore gowns of copper-colored velvet cut like that of the maid of honor. They carried yellow roses. The bride's gifts to them were silver monogrammed key chains.

Mrs. Austin wore a dress of tulip-blue crepe with a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Bush also wore gardenias and was gowned in brown crepe.

Mr. Bush has as best man his brother, Robert Bush, and as groomsmen Edmund Temple Allen, Russell Alt, Edward Blank and William Raith. His gifts to them were also silver monogrammed key chains.

Palms, ferns, white candles and white chrysanthemums formed the setting for the ceremony. The Austin home was decorated with greenery and chrysanthemums for the small reception which followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bush have departed for a honeymoon in Florida. On their return they will make their home in St. Louis.

The bride received her education at Hosmer Hall and at Washington University, where she was pledged to Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Bush also attended Washington University and was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Relief Campaign Women's Unit

MRS. WILBUR B. JONES of 4386 Westminster place, will serve as chairman of the West End Region of the third annual United Relief campaign, which will open in St. Louis and St. Louis County Nov. 14. She will direct a volunteer group of 500 women.

Mrs. Charles Mullikin of 46 Vandeventer place will assist Mrs. Jones as vice-chairman. Heading the Forest Park district will be Mrs. Lynn Gratiot of 5154 Westminster place. Her co-chairmen will be Mrs. Samuel B. McPheeters of 4955 Maryland avenue, Mrs. Harry Lesser of 12 Washington terrace and Mrs. O. P. J. Falk of 219 Woodburne drive.

The West End district will have three chairmen, Mrs. Norman C. Wolff of 6558 Waterman avenue, Mrs. Bernard McMahon of 4632 Pershing avenue and Mrs. Henry Kaltenbach of Litzinger road. Each chairman will in turn be assisted by captains and team workers.

The West End region is the only unit composed entirely of women. Mrs. Jones was chairman of the West End region in the Community Fund drive in 1930 and in the last United Relief campaign was vice-chairman of this region. Mrs. Gratiot is president of the Occupational Therapy Workshop. Mrs. McPheeters is active in the Children's Hospital and the Maternal Health Association. Mrs. Lesser is interested in the St. Louis Maternity Hospital, Mrs. Falk in the Junior League, Mrs. Wolff in the Central Institute for the Deaf, the Girl Scouts and the Jewish Social Service, and Mrs. Kaltenbach in the Provident Association.

Goodwill Nursery Luncheon.

MRS. BURNS DICK has completed the arrangements for the October sewing luncheon at the Goodwill Day Nursery next Friday. The occasion is open to all who are interested in providing clothing for the children who are being cared for at the nursery while their mothers who are employed, are absent from home. The meeting will be at the nursery, 1910 North Thirteenth street. The Women's Auxiliary to the Goodwill Industries directs the work, and Mrs. Dick is chairman of the committee which provides the clothes for the children.

BETTY ANN BURNEY BRIDE OF LIEUTENANT

MISS BETTY ANN BURNEY, daughter of Mrs. Mabel C. Burney became the bride of Lieut. Andrew Donald Stephenson, United States Army at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Maj. Walter B. Zimmerman, chaplain at Jefferson Barracks, at the quarters of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. William L. Brown.

After Mrs. A. C. Strausbeck of St. Louis sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly," the ribbon bearers, carrying bows of white satin ribbon, formed and aisle for the bridal party, which descended the stairway, the bride on the arm of her brother-in-law, Captain Brown, who gave her in marriage. The service was read in the living room, where the fireplace was banked with palms and flowers, to represent an altar. Lighted cathedral tapers were placed on either side of the mantel. At the close of the ceremony, the bride and groom returned along the ribboned aisle under an archway of crossed sabers, held by the ushers.

The bride wore a gown of peach crepe, made on long fitted lines, and having a matching jacket faced with brown velvet. The square neckline was banded with the velvet and had a large bow at the front. The skirt was slit at the front and sides, and ended in a fishtail train. She wore a brown velvet turban and a shoulder-length veil of brown tulle, and brown satin slippers. The only jewelry worn was an antique gold necklace and earrings which had belonged to Captain Brown's mother. The bride's bouquet was of talisman roses, tied with peach satin ribbon.

Miss Lenora Kretzer of St. Louis, the maid of honor, wore a brown lace gown, made with a covered shoulder line and a peach taffeta belt. She wore peach satin slippers and a brown tulle turban and nose veil, the turban being trimmed with peach taffeta. Her arm bouquet was of bronze chrysanthemums, tied with bronze satin ribbon.

Joan Brown, niece of the bride and the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William L. Brown, was ring bearer. She wore a peach taffeta dress with a ruffled skirt and sleeves and carried the ring on a flower muff. made of pom-poms. Peggy Schucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester R. Schucker of Hutchinson, Kan., and niece of the bride, and Lillian McGaw, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. E. J. McGaw of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and niece of the bridegroom were the ribbon bearers.

The bride's mother was gowned in royal blue lace, and wore a corsage of roses. The bride's sister, Mrs. William L. Brown wore a beige lace gown and a matching jacket and silver sandels. Her corsage was also of roses.

Lieut. Oren E. Hurlbut, United States Army, who was a classmate of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Lieut. William C. Hall, Lieut. Charles A. Carrell, Lieut. Herman Kaesser and Lieut. Lawrence K. White.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Post Officers' Club for the members of the garrison and the wedding guests. The long tea table was covered with a canton cloth and centered with a bouquet of fall flowers. Tall white tapers lighted the table. Mrs. Walter C. Short, Mrs. Irving M. Madison, Mrs. William A. Smith, Mrs. John D. Eason, Mrs. Harry Kirsner and Mrs. Ida Hurlbut presided.

The bride cut the first piece of wedding cake with her husband's saber, after which Mrs. Robert L. Hostetler presided at the cake table. Mrs. John T. Westermeier, Mrs. Louis Truman, Mrs. Walden B. Coffey, Miss Ida Johnston, Miss Maxine Cannon and Miss Carol Sims assisted in serving.

Lieut. and Mrs. Stephenson left on a short wedding trip, after which they will live at Jefferson Barracks, where Lieut. Stephenson is on duty with the Sixth Infantry.

Walter N. Dobson Weds Janet Bissell

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.

MISS JANET BISSELL, daughter of Mrs. French Rayburn Bissell of New York City, formerly of Dallas, Tex., was married at 4:30 p. m. today to Walter Norton Dobson Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter N. Dobson, 6240 Southwood avenue, St. Louis, in the chapel of St. Barthlomew's Church.

The bride, in pearl white satin with a four-yard accordion pleated train, went to the altar on the arm of George Pattullo, a family friend. Her mother gave her in marriage.

Her gown had princess lines and a modified heart-shaped neckline. The train fell from the skirt in fan shape from her headdress, a semi-wreath of gardenias, and an accordion pleated veil extended the length of the train. Her bouquet was lilies of the valley, gardenias and white orchids.

The maid of honor, Dorothy Page, of New York City, wore a deeper shade of talisman. Rush Brisbane was the best man, and the ushers were Clifton Willburn, Douglas Welton and Leonard Clark, of New York City, and Robert Dye, of Glenn Galls, N. Y.

Tropical fern and flame colored dahlias decorated the chapel. Garlands of white dahlias marked the pews.

Miss Nadine Jaeger Weds G. A. Woodruff

MISS NADINE JAEGER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto E. Jaeger, 6047 Pershing avenue, and George A. Woodruff, son of Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. W. S. Woodruff of Shreveport, La., were married last night at 8:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Dunbar, 332 Edgewood drive. The Rev. Dr. Edmund H. Lowe, pastor of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, officiated in the presence of about 50 guests. The wedding took place in the living room before an improvised altar of greenery and white chrysanthemums. The room was illuminated by candle light.

The bride was married in her mother's wedding gown of white crepe trimmed with old lace. A lace veil worn by her mother, and which has been in her family for several generations, was also worn by the bride. She carried white chrysanthemums. Miss Olive Culbertson was maid of honor for her cousin. She was gowned in light blue moire and her bouquet was of pink chrysanthemums. Eugene Daugherty was best man for Mr. Woodruff. Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar's daughter, Georgia, was flower girl.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Mr. Woodruff and his bride will spend their honeymoon in the South and on their return will live at 6047 Pershing avenue. Both are graduates of Washington University.

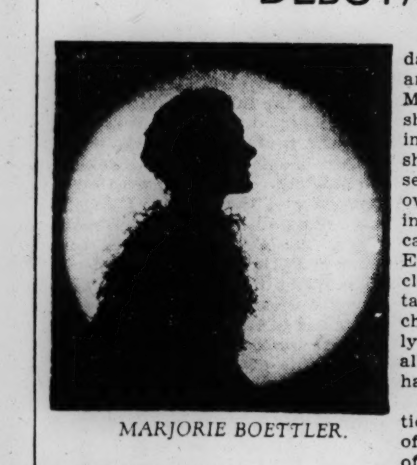
DEBUTANTE SILHOUETTES



MARJORIE BOETTLER.

BEFORE Marjorie Boettler was ten she gave a tea party at which some of her guests were so young they passed up the tea for a lollypop. She has been giving parties ever since for no one responds to the social impulse more enthusiastically than Marjorie.

The hospitality of the Boettler home is the reason for many happy memories for Marjorie, her friends and those of her brother Dolph, for it has been their gathering place since childhood. At a moment's notice Mrs. Boettler could, and would, rustle a "snack" for forty or more friends, who accompanied Marjorie home after a Fortnightly dance or a Mary Institute party. When she was a tiny girl her little group conceived the bright idea of making the floors slick for dancing by smearing them with mashed bittersweet berries instead of wax. Now that she is a debutante the art of entertaining is an old story.

Marjorie plays tennis every day and won both the singles and doubles championships at Mary Institute. Next to tennis she likes to ride and swim. Being the happy type that she is, she enjoyed everything on a resent trip to Europe. The boat over and back was just as thrilling to Marjorie as seeing the capitals and show places of Europe. She is interested in clothes which she plans with taste and thought. When she chooses a new gown it is usually a blue one, which incidentally goes well with her blond hair and blue eyes.

Her outstanding characteristics are graciousness and charm of manner. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Boettler, 5226 Washington boulevard.

LYDIA ROMBAUER believes in "Seeing America First." She has traveled from the East to the West coast and vice versa, and from Northern Canada to Mexico many times, and when she gets around to it she intends to go abroad. "Liddi," as she is called by her family, always picks a spot near lake or ocean, for her greatest pleasure is driving a speed boat, the speedier the better. On a recent trip to California she became adept at aquaplaning and besides getting a deep tan in Florida last winter, she thrilled spectators on the surf board. She swims, plays golf and likes to ride.

Despite flitting hither and yon, and participating in a varied assortments of sports, Lydia is far from the athletic type. She is quite the opposite. She is tall and slender, and has golden hair that she wears in a mop of short curls. She is one of the most graceful dancers in the debutante set and likes to give and go to parties. She has a flaire for rich colors and ornaments without being spectacular. Her favorite colors for evening are chartreuse, coral, gold and red. The gown that she wore as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball was of her own designing. The dress was of coral toned velvet, very clinging and trimmed with a wreath of rhinestone flowers, a costume that few could have worn as she did, without being conscious of the attention it attracted. For day time wear her clothes are demure and practical, most of her things being sports or tailored suits in brown or black.

Lydia is the daughter of Mrs. F. Rudolph Meyer, 6065 Lindell boulevard. Their attractive Spanish house is noted for its hospitality and gay informal parties.

ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS IN CITY AND COUNTY

THE wedding of Miss Jean Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Armstrong of Fort Dodge, Ia., and Armin Ochsner, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Ochsner of Rockford, Ill., took place at St. Luke's Church in St. Louis Wednesday, Oct. 10, with the Rev. J. W. Armstrong of Danville, Ill., the bride's uncle, officiating. The ceremony was followed by a wedding dinner at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. R. A. Urian, 7320 Forsythe boulevard.

The bride's gown was of hunter's green transparent velvet, trimmed with gold. She wore a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Ochsner is a graduate of Corpus Christi Academy at Fort Dodge, and of the University of Illinois. Mr. Ochsner is a graduate of the University of Illinois and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha. Mrs. Ochsner is a member of Theta Phi Alpha.

Immediately after the reception, Mr. Ochsner and his bride took a motor trip to New Orleans. They will make their home in Rockford.

Miss Catherine Peet, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Peet, 5052 Lotus avenue, became the bride of John Michael Joyce Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Michael Joyce, 3840 Fillmore avenue, Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock at the Blessed Sacrament Church. The Rev. Robert Peet, the bride's brother, officiated. A wedding breakfast at the Park Plaza for the bridal party and members of the two families followed the ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Mildred Siegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Siegel, 7706 South Broadway, to Mitchell M. Gralnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Gralnick, 5783 Westminster place, was solemnized Sunday, Oct. 7, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the B'Nai Amoona Congregation with Rabbi A. E. Halpern and the Rev. J. Gowsieow officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin, fashioned on princess lines with a high neckline and the sleeves were pointed at the wrist. She wore a veil of tulle trimmed with lace. The cap was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valleys.

Mrs. M. Kornblum, the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor. Mrs. B. O. Siegel, the bride's sister-in-law, and Miss Gertrude Goldberg, the bridegroom's niece, were the bridesmaids. The attendants were gowned alike in autumn shades of peach, coral and rust crepe, trimmed in velvet, and they carried velvet muffs to match. Their slippers and hats were of brown velvet.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Samuel W. Gralnick, and the groomsmen were M. Kornblum, B. O. Siegel and Dr. Samuel Rubin of Springfield, Ill.

Immediately after the ceremony supper was served at Marcus Farm for the immediate families.

Miss Bea Kirsch, Miss Anna Weiss, Miss Rosella Taryle and Miss Lillian Sachs gave a dinner party and shower at the Castilla Tea Shoppe Monday evening in honor of Miss Tillie Sachs, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Sachs, 6260 Cates avenue, whose engagement to Ted Yates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Yates of Rochester, N. Y., was announced recently. After dinner the guests played bridge.

Miss Dena Carlie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Carlie, 5660 Labadie avenue, became the bride of Max Lipschitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lipschitz, 6318 Cabanne avenue, Sunday, Oct. 7, at 6 o'clock in the evening at the American Annex Hotel. Rabbi Jacob Mazur performed the ceremony in the presence of 400 guests. A reception followed the wedding service.

Mrs. Arthur Goldstein was the matron of honor and the bridesmaids were: Miss Tobie Carlie, the bride's sister; Miss Lucille Davis and Miss Esther Walts. The groomsmen were Lew and George Lipschitz and George Carlie. Marvin Whyman was ring bearer and Maxine Rosenblatt and Lillian Glotnick were flower girls.

Mr. Lipschitz and his bride have gone east on their honeymoon.

The wedding of Miss Hildegarde Ann Scherstuhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin G. Scherstuhl, 3138 Maury avenue, and Alfred B. Breuning, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Breuning, 5474 North Kingshighway, will take place Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, at the Holy Family Church, the Rev. William H. Huelsmann officiating.

The bride will wear a gown of lace and white satin and will carry a bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. She will be attended by Miss Marcella Rickey, the groom's cousin, and Miss Alice Vogel. They will wear chiffon velvet dresses in pastel shades of green and choral and carry bouquets of chrysanthemums.

The bride's cousin, Alvin Kruse Jr., will be the ring bearer, and the bride's twin brothers, Martin and Stephen, will be groomsmen. William Spiegelhalter of Kansas City and Hilmer Kruse, will be ushers.

The ceremony will be followed by a breakfast at the Saum Hotel and a reception later at the home of the bride's aunt after which Mr. Breuning and his bride will leave on a honeymoon to Florida.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Pierce Burbank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Warren Burbank, to William L. Moeller, son of William Moeller, 6734 Smiley avenue, took place at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Salem Evangelical Church. The Rev. J. H. Overback performed the ceremony. A supper for the families and the bridal party at the Forest Park Hotel followed the wedding.

Miss Grace Elefritz was maid of honor and Elmer Moeller was best man. Mr. Moeller and his bride have gone to the Grand Canyon and California on their wedding trip.

The marriage of Miss Sylvia Katz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Katz, 3971 Page boulevard, and Albert de Woskin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam de Woskin, 2047 Easton avenue, took place Oct. 7, in the study of Rabbi Jacob Mazur. The marriage was announced at a dinner party given last Sunday at Berger's Farm by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gerstein, 4200 Manchester; and Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Simon, 3204 Laclede avenue.

Miss Bess Polinsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Polinsky, 6401 Cates avenue, was married to Herman B. Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Goodman, 5100 Page boulevard, last Sunday at 5:30 o'clock at Berger's Farm, Rabbi Jacob Mazur officiating. There were 300 guests. The bride wore a gown of eggshell satin cut on princesse lines with tulle ruching at the neck and wrists and a long train. She wore a white veil and carried white roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph Fishman, was gowned in burgundy red velvet with a corsage of deep red roses; the maid of honor, Miss Mildred Goodman, wore blue velvet with metallic cloth trimming at the neck and sleeves. The bridesmaids were Mrs. David Alton and Mrs. Gertrude Polinsky.

After a wedding trip in Canada and Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Goodman will make their home at 6401 Cates avenue.

The marriage of Miss Marie J. Connors, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew H. Connors, 5609 Page boulevard, to Robert T. Hellrung, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Hellrung, 7214 Northmoor drive, took place Saturday morning in the Log Chapel on the campus of the University of Notre Dame, Ind. The Reverend J. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., vice-president of the university, officiated. Miss Marie Shea was bridesmaid, and Frank Bohn best man. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony. After a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hellrung will be at home, after Nov. 5, at 7552 Parkdale avenue, Clayton.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, C. Donald Peet, was gowned in white satin, fashioned on princesse lines with long tight sleeves and a slight train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a band of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Rosemary Peet as maid of honor, wore a gown of rose damask crepe with brown accessories. She carried bronze chrysanthemums. The bride's brother, Edward Peet, was best man, and Joseph Lentzenith and Robert and William Joyce were ushers.

Mr. Joyce and his bride have gone to Inn-by-the-Sea at Pass Christian, Miss., for their honeymoon.

The marriage of Miss Reavel Oldham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Oldham, 1231 Arch terrace, and Elmer W. Potterfield, son of Mrs. Pearl Potterfield, 7239 Moller avenue, Maplewood, took place Saturday evening, Oct. 13, at the Maplewood Masonic Temple, with the Rev. W. L. Nash reading the wedding service.

The bride's gown was of white satin with a high cowl neck line and full sleeves with tight cuffs. A long train extended from the waist line. Her veil of tulle was attached to her hair with a satin band and lilies of the valley. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Louise Meadows, the maid of honor, was in a gown of blue and carried chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Potterfield and Miss Vera Koerner, were in pink and blue, respectively, and also carried chrysanthemums. Irving Porter was best man, and Glenn Oldham and Edward Feigel were groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Potterfield are on a brief wedding trip.

Towns to Entertain St. Louisans.

Receptions, luncheons and dinners are being arranged by business and civic leaders in all the communities to be visited by a delegation of St. Louis business men on a trade trip to Western Kentucky, Tennessee and Evansville, Ind., on Oct. 30 and 31 and Nov. 1. This will be the final of four such tours in the 1934 trade promotion and expansion program of the bureau.

SCHOOL and COLLEGE LIFE

PARENTS and friends will join pupils in attending an illustrated lecture by Sidney N. Shurcliff, the photographer of the Crane Pacific Expedition, in the St. Louis Country Day School auditorium tomorrow morning. Motion picture films will show the scenery and native life on many of the islands in the South Seas. The lecture is the first of a series offered under terms of an anonymous gift to the school. A similar gift last year provided a number of chapel programs.

Members of the Art Study group of the Hobby Day program visited the studio of Victor Holm at the Washington University Art School last Wednesday. Informal talks on sculpture were made by Mr. Holm and by the leader of the group, Charles Gray, the architect.

Cheer leaders for the coming year were elected last week by members of the Upper School. They are John Gunter and Ross A. Woolsey Jr.

Miss Vera Stueber, a member of the junior class at Fontbonne College, was elected president of the Fontbonne Press Club at a meeting last week. Miss Stueber is the daughter of John S. Stueber, 5426 Ruskin avenue. She is advertising manager of the college publication, "The Font." Miss Daphne Ramirez, Ponce Puerto Rico, was chosen vice president; Miss Gertrude Bey, Perryville, Mo., secretary, and Miss Hortense Gillette, St. Louis, treasurer. The Press Club sponsors all press activities at Fontbonne.

The Dramatic Club of Maryville College will present an Elizazethan one-act play, "The Ring," under directorship of Miss Virginia Lee Comer, new drama department head Tuesday afternoon in The Workshop, the campus theater.

Those in the cast are Miss Eleanor Marron, Miss Sallie Leuer, Miss Marie Louise Martinez, Miss Mary Meade O'Callaghan, Miss Anita Moser, Miss Anna May Padberg, Miss Lucie Furstenberg, Miss Margaret Claire Michelson, Miss Judith del Vallee and Miss Mary Morrison.

Miss Moser recently was elected president of the dramatic club. She is a sophomore and active in campus affairs.

At recent elections Miss Mary Coffey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Coffey of East St. Louis, was chosen president of the Accolade, the honor society, and Miss Virginia Judge Clarkson, daughter of Mrs. George Clarkson, 2141 Thurman avenue, was named head of the Women's Athletic Association. Miss Coffey is a senior and Miss Clarkson is a junior.

The Student Conclave of St. Louis University will give its annual barn dance, Tuesday night, in the school gymnasium. Corn stalks, pumpkins and other rural emblems will decorate the room.

The St. Louis University Classical Club will begin its activities for the current year at a meeting this afternoon at 2:20 o'clock in room 109, Sodality Hall, at the university. Miss Catherine Scullin of Fontbonne College will discuss "The Life and Education of Horace," and Roger E. Bacon, of St. Louis University, "The Social and Political Backgrounds of Horace's Work." Two Maryville College students, Miss Virginia Clarkson and Miss Mary Meade O'Callaghan, will lead discussions of the papers. The program will be concluded with "Biographical Readings from Horace's Works" by Miss Mary Kline of Webster College.

Webster College will hold open house Sunday afternoon, its sixth annual "Loretto Day." On this occasion each year Sisters of Loretto from all local houses gather at Webster for the annual homecoming of the Webster College alumnae and all former college students, as well as present students and graduates from the two academies and 17 parochial schools conducted by the order in St. Louis and vicinity.

An address will be given at 3 o'clock, in the College Auditorium, by the Rev. Martin J. O'Malley, C. M. of Kenrick Seminary, and a member of Webster's faculty. The remainder of the afternoon will be devoted to an informal reception.

Mrs. Thelma Pape Hines is general chairman of arrangements, assisted by Miss Mary F. McDermott. Mrs. Carl Krutzsch and Miss Mary Newell are in charge of transportation for the Sisters. Mrs. F. W. Pape, Mrs. Frederick W. Forshey, and Mrs. Clarence E. Mooney are on the program committee.

The Hosmer Hall Dramatic Club has elected the following officers: president, Miss Helen Louise Lipp, vice-president, Miss Isabel Kieffer; secretary, Miss Martha Howe; treasurer, Miss Peggy Lou Baker.

Committee chairmen for regular meetings and for plays are: program, Miss Mary Hope Chaney; cast, Miss Natalie Allen; lighting, Miss Betty Ziock; properties, Miss Dorothy Marshall and Miss Lonabess Willcockson. The club will present three plays this year under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Kelso Renfrow.

On Founders' day at Lindenwood College, Thursday, a morning program will be given in Roemer Auditorium, followed by a procession of alumnae, Lindenwood College club members, faculty, board members and students, to the graves of Maj. George E. and Mrs. Sibley, which are to be decorated with flowers. The graves of Col. James Gay Butler and Mrs. Butler; Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Watson, Dr. George Frederick Ayres and Dr. Robert Irwin will also be decorated. An address eulogizing Col. Butler will be made at the 11 a. m. program by Arthur A. Blumeyer. Miss Pearl Walker will sing two solos.

Miss Ruth Ann McSpadden, Miss Suzanne Perrin, Miss Florence Wilson, and Miss Allie Mae Bornman, class presidents; Mrs. R. C. Morris, president of the Lindenwood College Club of St. Louis; Mrs. George M. Null, president of the Alumnae Association; and Dr. Alice A. Linneman, representing the faculty, will take part in the exercises.

The Lindenwood College Club will meet after the Founders' day luncheon given by Dr. and Mrs. John L. Roemer. At 2:30 o'clock there will be a dance recital in Roemer Auditorium, under the direction of Miss Margaret Mantle Stookey. From 4 to 5 o'clock the seniors will give a tea in the college club room, and will lead a tour to the school museum to see a special exhibit of "Sibleyana," or souvenirs, memorials and personal possessions of Major and Mrs. Sibley. At 8 o'clock a concert program will be presented in Roemer Auditorium by the Steindel Trio.

Miss Alma Reitz of St. Louis has been made vice-president of the students' German Club at Lindenwood College. Other officers of the club are Miss Wilma Hoen and Miss Dorothy Copps.

Dr. Roland G. Usher of the Department of History in Washington University, will open the lecture series of the Washington University Alumnae Club Wednesday at 8:30 p. m., in the Women's Building. He will speak on "The Crisis of Democracy."

The second annual Washington University father and son banquet, under joint auspices of Student Council and the Y. M. C. A., will be held Friday preceding the Drake-Washington football game. The dinner scheduled for 6 p. m., will be held in the Women's Building Cafeteria.

A short program following the dinner will include mass singing of the school songs, and speeches by Coach Conzelman and other prominent members of the faculty.

Students and their dads will then adjourn to the stadium for the football game, where special stunts have been arranged by the Bears and Peppers to be presented at the half as their contribution to the entertainment.

Movie of Japanese Beetle.

Motion pictures of the Japanese beetle, made by the United States Department of Agriculture, will be shown at a meeting of the Academy of Science of St. Louis Wednesday at 8 p. m. in Wilson Hall on Washington University campus. A discussion of the Japanese beetle situation in St. Louis will follow the picture.

SORORITIES and FRATERNITIES

THE sororities and their representatives who will serve this year on the standing committees of the St. Louis Panhellenic Alumnae Board have been announced by the president, Mrs. Thomas H. Mize. On the Benefit Committee are: Mrs. Ralph Wilson of Chi Omega, chairman; Mrs. C. E. Bradley, Kappa Delta; Mrs. Ben Symon, Alpha Gamma Delta; Mrs. Fred S. Anheuser Jr., Alpha Delta Pi; Mrs. Louise Dickson Stark, Pi Mu, and Mrs. Walter Bailey, Beta Sigma Omicron. The three members of the Scholarship Committee, Mrs. Roland Bauer of Sigma Kappa, chairman; Mrs. Evelyn Gauger, Alpha Omicron Pi, and Mrs. Forrest M. Hemker, Zeta Tau Alpha, are members of the Benefit Committee.

Sorving on the Spring Party Committee are: Mrs. Hollis Marsh, Phi Omega Pi; Mrs. Kenneth Baker Pi Beta Phi; Miss Elise Mardorf, Kappa Alpha Theta; Mrs. Raymond C. Bond, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Mrs. Waverly P. Hays, Alpha Phi.

Mrs. Ronald J. Foulis of Delta Gamma, Mrs. Thomas H. Mize, Gamma Phi Beta; Mrs. M. H. Hayman, Delta Delta Delta; Mrs. Elmer P. Schluer, Alpha Xi Delta, and Mrs. Paul F. Plummer of Alpha Chi Omega, secretary of the Panhellenic Board, will serve on the Auditing Committee.

At the last meeting of the board a new committee on Social Service was appointed with Mrs. Foulis, Mrs. Hemker and Mrs. Hays as members. This committee will supervise the work of the association in finding homes in St. Louis for young women from the Girls' Home in Chillicothe, Mo.

The board has selected the last week in January as the time for the annual Panhellenic benefit.

Kappa Delta, the only sorority in the National Panhellenic Congress to maintain national headquarters in St. Louis, celebrated the anniversary of its founding at a luncheon given by the Alumnae Association yesterday at the Castilla. Student members from nearby colleges and alumnae living in surrounding towns attended. Mrs. O. Sherman Jones Jr., chairman of the social committee in charge of arrangements, was assisted by Miss Mary Beck and Mrs. Clarence Dunham. The central offices of the sorority are in the Railway Exchange Building and the executives are Miss Helen Peck, head of the Department of Finance, and Miss Imogene Balcom, chairman of the Department of Records. Kappa Delta, which has many of its chapters in the South, was founded in 1897 at Virginia State Normal College.

Delta Delta Delta Alumnae Alliance will have a buffet supper and bridge party Friday evening in the Women's Building of Washington University. Miss Vivian Lehew, Mrs. B. F. Batts and Miss Margaret Herring will be hostesses.

Members of the Kappa Kappa Gamma alumnae chapter will entertain their husbands and families at a tacky party to be given Tuesday evening, Oct. 30, at the Pierce Pennant Tavern on Manchester road. Paul Simmons will be master of ceremonies for a program of games, bridge and dancing. The committee on arrangements includes: Mrs. William W. Hicks, chairman; Mrs. Arthur H. Seeger, Mrs. Edwin Hughes, Mrs. George Sisler, Mrs. Charles Rieth and Mrs. Howard Burt. Mrs. Edwin Hughes is in charge of reservations.

The alumnae chapter of Kappa Beta Pi law sorority elected the following officers at a meeting held last week: Miss Dorothy Graulich, president; Miss Betty Kausch, vice-president; Mrs. Louise Larrabee, secretary, and Miss Sylvia Carafiol, treasurer. The president appointed Miss Louise Bernero, province dean, to serve as national advisor; Mrs. Robert B. Terry, advisor to the Washington University chapter; Mrs. Edwin A. Smith, advisor to the St. Louis University chapter, and Miss Gladys Stamm and Miss Celeste East, members of the hospitality committee.

The alumnae members of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. William S. Schwab, 7103 Maryland avenue. They will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the sorority at Barnard College.

Mrs. A. E. Gilster, retiring president of the Sigma Nu Mothers' Club, will entertain the club members at a tea from 3 to 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 31, at her home, 639 West Polo drive. She will be assisted by the other officers who served last year, Mrs. John Mavrakos, Mrs. E. M. Carson and Mrs. R. B. Dumbell. The new president is Mrs. John R. Vaughan. The tea will be given in honor of the mothers of pledges.

Mrs. Earl Ellis, chairman of hospitality for the Sigma Phi Epsilon Mothers' Club, will be hostess for the club's annual tea for new members tomorrow afternoon at her home, 6186 Waterman avenue. The musical program will include selections by Mrs. John W. Hessing, soprano, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. H. Neil Jr. and by Mrs. Earl Ellis, violinist, with Mrs. Neil accompanying. Mrs. Gilbert M. Chapman is president of the club.

The Pi Kappa Alpha Mothers' Club has elected the following officers for this year: Mrs. Truman Elder, president; Mrs. George E. Brashear, vice-president; Mrs. Wesley M. Stephens, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Craig, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Leon Matthey, treasurer.

The Mothers' Club of Delta Gamma will entertain pledge mothers at a luncheon to be given Friday at Gerardi's Tea Room, 302 North Kingshighway.

PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES

MRS. J. C. EDWARDS of Webster Groves, president of the Margaret A. E. McLure Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has returned from Hannibal, Mo., where she attended the State convention. Wednesday night which was "Historical Evening," she took the part of Mrs. P. G. Robert in the dramatization of the first State convention held at Fayette, Mo., in 1898. Mrs. J. H. Hardin of Independence, Mo., State historian, had charge of the program.

The monthly meeting of the Douglas-Oliver Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. J. Lemen, 4647 Tower Grove place. The speaker was Mrs. Arthur Wilson, first vice-president, St. Louis Chapter, D. A. R., who reported the state conference at Lake Taneycomo. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a social hour followed.

Cornelia Greene Chapter, D. A. R., met Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the home of Miss M. L. Baker, 5101 Cates avenue. Mrs. E. B. Moore was assisting hostess. A tribute was paid to the memory of Mrs. W. E. Bright, a member of the chapter who died during the summer.

Reports on the State conference held at Lake Taneycomo were made by the regent, Mrs. Lawrence McDaniel, Miss Essie Matlack, Mrs. Herbert Kreitz and Mrs. Robert Wycoff. At the conference a cash prize was awarded the chapter for having erected the most D. A. R. grave markers during the past year. Two former regents of the chapter were so honored, and one real daughter. In its program for the coming year the chapter plans the marking of the grave of Mrs. E. F. Jackson, a former regent, who is buried in New York State.

A donation of $10 was made to the maintenance fund of Arrow Rock Tavern, and the chapter also voted to sponsor a student loan.

Two Women Would Build Radio Station.

TWO Texas women have asked the Federal Communications Commission for a permit to build and operate a radio station at Dallas on 1210 kilocycles with 100 watts power. They are Mildred English and Genevieve C. Wilson. Only two other women have tried radio as a business, the Commissioner's records disclosed—Katherine Jones, who was licensed a year or two ago to operate WNRA at Florence, Ala., which since has been moved to Muscle Shoals, and Mrs. W. J. Virgin, who holds the license for WMED, at Medford, Ore.

Plans for Broadcasting the Metropolitan Opera.

STARTING with the performance on Christmas Eve, the Metropolitan Opera will be on the air every Saturday afternoon throughout its 1935 season, it is stated in New York. Plans for the chain hook-up have not been completed, but one or both of the NBC chains will be used and the performances will be broadcast in full. The same technical set-up will be used as last season, except that the microphone pick-up will be improved. It is understood that another sponsor for the opera broadcasts has been found, and that it will pay the Metropolitan Opera Company a substantial sum as well as for time on the country-wide network. The cost to the sponsor is estimated as about $375,000.

School and Community Schedule on KSD.

THURSDAY, at 6:15, Col. Carl H. Muller, United States Cavalry, Chief of Staff of the 102d Division, will discuss activities of the organized reserves of the army in this vicinity, speaking on a School and Cummunity period. At 6:15 Friday, Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillan of Washington, United States Civil Service Commissioner, will be the speaker. At 6 o'clock Saturday a talk on modern child training will be given by Mrs. Alexander Langsdorf, lecturer on parental education, Washington University.

America's Little House Series on CBS Chain.

Beginning a series of broadcasts, the CBS net will open a radio studio tomorrow in the attached garage of "America's Little House" on Park avenue, New York. The ceremony will be broadcast at 3 o'clock. The "Little House" will be opened to the public Nov. 1 as a practical demonstration of present day values in home construction and furnishings. It was built by the New York Committee on Better Homes in America in collaboration with the CBS, which financed the construction of the house and operaton for a year. Broadcasts over the CBS chain will link "Little House" activities with the work of the Better Homes Committee in American communities.

When the Columbia Dramatic Guild resumes its performances on the CBS chain, at 9:30 tonight, it will do a dramatization of Leonard Merrick's "The Dress Coat of Monsieur Pomponnet."

The first of a series of inter-section and trans-Atlantic debates between teams of college students is set for 3:15 Friday on the WJZ net. It will be between teams from Bates College and Northwestern University, and the topic will be Federal aid in education. Harvard and Oxford teams will debate in the second program, in November.

The question, "What Has the Civilian Conservation Corps Accomplished?" will be discussed at 9:30 Wednesday night on KSD's Radio Forum by Robert Fechner, director of Emergency Conservation Work.

Music Appreciation Concerts on CBS Net.

A WEEKLY concert, from 5 to 5:55 Tuesday evenings, will be carried by the CBS chain, in collaboration with a committee from the Juilliard Foundation, "to promote the understanding of classical music." Howard Barlow will conduct the symphony orchestra and comment on each piece of music played. Vocal and instrumental soloists of note will be used in some of the broadcasts.

Howard Barlow.

The series will be divided into four sections to be broadcast on successive Tuesdays each month. They will deal with the epic aspects of symphonic music, the famous concertos, standard program music and operatic music. The fifth Tuesdays of January and April will be devoted to the oratorio and choral forms.

On his opening program this week, Barlow will present standard program music, including Liadoff's tone poem, "Baba Yaga," the Saint-Saens "Danse Macabre" and Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice."

Another Move to Get E. St. Louis Station.

PERMISSION to erect a new radio station in East St. Louis has just been asked of the Federal Communications Commission by the Mississippi Valley Broadcasting Corporation, organized under the laws of Missouri. The corporation wants to use 100 watts power at night and 250 daytime on 1500 kilocycles. It was stated that $15,000 in stock subscriptions had been paid in that more money would be provided as needed, and that the corporation proposed to spend $5000 to $10,000 for a transmitter site. The stockholders are listed as Lester E. Cox, owning 55 per cent of the stock issued; Ralph D. Foster, Arthur Johnson and Harry Bibb. Bibb is a St. Louisan. The others are from Springfield, where they are connected with KWTP-KJBX. Previous attempts to obtain a permit for a station in St. Louis have failed, the old Federal Radio Commission holding that the East Side was adequately served by St. Louis stations.

Rome Station Plans Programs for Americans.

SENATORE MARCONI will inaugurate a series of "American" programs on 2RO, Rome, Italy, next Sunday at 6 o'clock on the WEAF chain and KSD. He will discuss his experiments on micro waves, the ultra short waves which are expected materially to increase the scope of radio. The balance of this, and of succeeding 2RO "American" programs, will be transmitted for short wave listeners on 25.4 meters.

Lt.-Commander Snell Talks Here on Short Waves.

More than 400 dealers, "hams" and short wave enthusiasts met at the Auditorium Wednesday night to listen to a talk by Lieutenant-Commander Fred H. Snell, U. S. N. R., who is touring the country in the interest of short wave transmission and reception. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Brown Supply Co., Grunow receiver distributer, but was noncommercial in character.

Lieutenant-Commander Snell reminisced of his experiences developing short wave transmission and reception equipment for the Navy, of the development of short wave reception on the Navy's cruise to Australia in 1925, and of improvement in short wave apparatus through the years since he was a pioneer.

Lieutenant-Commander Snell was the first to pick up Col. Lindbergh's signals when the latter's plane was on the Ottawa-Moose Factory, Canada, stretch of his flight to the Orient. Among other things, while in the Navy he developed a short wave transmitter and receiver that together weighed only 40 pounds as compared with the old Navy combination that weighed in the thousands of pounds.

General Electric to Build Its Receivers at Bridgeport.

Announcement is made by the General Electric Co. that its radio receivers will be manufactured in the factory at Bridgeport, Conn., and that production will start the first of the year. Anticipating this change, General Electric engineers have been busy for months developing a new and novel line of receivers. This was done in the company's research laboratory, commonly known as "The House of Magic," until Aug. 1, when this engineering force was shifted to Bridgeport.

New Radio Parts Distributer in St. Louis.

Philco Radio Music Room Exhibit in New York.

A Philco radio music room exhibit will be opened Nov. 1 at Rockefeller Center, New York City. Radio sets will be displayed as integral parts of decorative schemes for homes. Five noted interior decorators have designed music rooms centering around the new Philco high fidelity receiver, called the 509X. The exhibition will be sponsored by the National Alliance of Art and Industry and a committee of well known men and women. Each of the music rooms in the exhibit will represent a different conception, from 18th Century French to modern. Cleon Throckmorton has unified the five music rooms into a whole. The Philco 509X receiver is the new one designed to reproduce the musical range from 50 to 7500 cycles. It also has an electric phonograph with automatic record changer for 10 and 12-inch records.

Crosby and Arlen Use McMurdo Silver Sets.

In the recent short wave reception contest at Hollywood between Bing Crosby and Richard Arlen, McMurdo Silver custom built receivers were used exclusively, according to a statement by McMurdo Silver, Inc. Crosby was adjudged the winner of the contest, which attracted considerable attention from short wave fans. During the contest Crosby and Arlen received stations in 28 countries at distances of 5000 miles or more from Hollywood, it was stated.

Stromberg-Carlson High Fidelity Receiver.

The combination radio-phonograph model of the new Stromberg-Carlson high fidelity group of receivers just added to this line was displayed Friday and yesterday at the Coronado Hotel by O. C. McCanne, St. Louis distributer and representative.

This model has a large, beautifully styled cabinet, a reproduction range from 40 to 12,000 cycles that may be modified to as low as 7500 cycles when station transmission is not good on the higher harmonics and overtones, and covers all the short wave bands as well as regular broadcasts. Its tone, in warmth, richness and range, from high to deep notes, is truly of the high fidelity description. When used for reproducing records—it handles both 10 and 12-inch discs with automatic changer—it is always working with high fidelity, but the volume may be modified at will. Its power—it may be used up to full 30 watts output—and its distance pick-up are exceptional, and its tone on short wave reception also is of the high fidelity type.

It has two speakers, fed through a dividing audio network, and a three-stage class A audio amplifier with four 2A3 tubes in the final stage.

Rock wool baffle plates in the cabinet, organ tuned to produce deeper, truer tone that even a large flat baffle gives, and a double acoustical cabinet labyrinth, prevent sound coming from the rear of the speakers to produce resonance effects by reflection from the wall of a room. Also, the higher pitched speaker reproduction is heard in proper balance with that of the deeper speaker at all angles.

Dan McCafferty.

PHILADELPHIA.

EXACTLY what it was that prompted Virginia Ewing Gates to make so radical a departure from the life to which she was accustomed may never be known. Certainly Miss Gates, whatever ninence her father's wealth and social tige may have given her, feels no ob-on to give a detailed explanation of motives to the public. Presumably they of the simplest order. She left Phil-phia because she was tired of being e. She lived for a year on a simple ming ranch because she liked that life. walked away from the ranch one day use ranching no longer appealed to she became a hitch hiker because she ted to travel and then married a sient wrestler and ex-taxi driver and hanic—simply because she was in love h him. If the whole thing is a puzzle anyone else, that's his business. Mrs. Cafferty does not feel that it is her y to add to the world's education the y of her desires, her emancipation and love.

Virginia is the daughter of Dr. Thomas vereign Gates, who was formerly a prom-ent banker, a partner of J. P. Morgan Company in New York and Drexel and mpany in Philadelphia, a director in sev-al of America's largest corporations, and o retired from active business in 1930. ce that time, although he has retained me business connections and directorships, Gates has served without compensation president of the University of Penn-lvania, where he was graduated in 1893.

Living in a large house at Chestnut Hill, near here. Dr. Gates has never cut a particularly sensational figure in the world of society or sport. He is a member of an old and respected family and his daughter and two sons were brought up in a perfectly normal manner. Virginia's elder brother, Thomas Junior, was graduated from his father's university in 1928 and married shortly afterwards. He and his wife have one child and also live in Chestnut Hill. The younger brother is still in school.

Four years ago, when Virginia was 18 years old, she made a quiet debut at a tea dance given for her by her mother at their home. During her season she was moderately active in society, but she was not much publicized, nor did she seek to be. She didn't officiate at horse shows or bazaars or unveilings; she wasn't a particularly prominent leader in the social amusements in which she partook. But she did what was expected of her and seemed to be having a good time doing it. No one ever thought her "strange" or "different." There was no reason to suppose that within a couple of years or so she would not be married, settled and starting to rear a family.

Dr. Gates paid her board in advance and her allowance was sent to her regularly. She stayed here for about a year —until this fall.

It was last September that she disappeared. No one in the Gates family was much exercised over the matter. Dr. Gates was busy preparing for the opening of the fall semester at the university. Mrs. Gates was on her way home from Europe. No one outside the family was told of the girl's being missing except the United States Department of Justice. Probably the disappearance would not have become public at all—or at least not until much later—had not a Bridgeport, Connecticut, newspaper reporter overheard a radio telephone conversation between Dr. Gates and his wife. The latter was on the S. S. Bremen. Gates was in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McCafferty.

The reporter didn't know who the "Mr. Gates" and the "Mrs. Gates" of the radio conversation were, but he heard the former say: "I haven't heard a word about her yet, but nothing has been made public. I haven't told the servants where she went. I told them she left to go East to New York. Your maid knows all about it, however." When the newspaper reporter heard Gates add that Government agents were working on the case, he decided to investigate.

Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania and former partner of J. P. Morgan and Co.

When the Bremen docked, Mrs. Gates refused to tell anything about the disappearance of her daughter. Her son, Thomas S. Gates Jr., was not much more communicative.

"We haven't heard from her for two or three days," he said. "But that is natural, since she is motoring leisurely and stopping wherever she cares to. She is motoring home from a ranch in the West, where she spent the summer." But Virginia Gates was not motoring home, she had been gone for more than "two or three days" and her father, though he thought she could take care of herself, was more than a little curious to know just where she was and what had happened to her. Finally he issued a statement:

"My daughter has been for the past year at the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. John Dew, Cora, Wyoming. She left there on August 10 without notifying anyone of her intention to do so. When she was not heard of for several days we requested the Department of Justice to locate her if possible. We ascertained through them that she had been in Rock Springs, Wyoming, on August 20, and that she was on her way East. We have every reason to assume that she was on her way home. We have heard nothing of her since that date. He added that he believed Virginia was safe, that there was "no air of mystery" about the case, that she was of age and able to take care of herself and that he felt certain she was just taking her time about coming home."

But out West it was not all so simple as that. While Sheriff W. D. Holt of Pinedale felt relatively sure that there had been no kidnaping and that this was just a case of "an heiress searching for romance," there was no everyday explanation for Virginia's sudden departure, the fact that she had left her baggage behind and could have had very little money when she walked away from the ranch.

"It would have been almost impossible to kidnap her," the sheriff considered. "I was told that the girl had been sent to the ranch a year ago to forget a love affair back in Philadelphia. She disappeared August 10, apparently walking away from the place after she told a ranch hand she planned to go for a stroll."

About 10 days later Virginia was reported to have been seen at Rock Springs at a tourist camp. Two days after that she appeared in Omaha, Nebraska. Government agents were instructed to be on the lookout for her: "Twenty-two years of age, five feet 10 and one-half inches tall, weighing 163 pounds, brown hair, blue eyes. When last seen she was wearing a black sombrero, a man's shirt, corduroy trousers and moccasin boots."

Friends in Philadelphia rejected decisively the theory that she had originally left home to forget an unhappy love affair. "That is nonsense," one of them said. "She was neither in love nor engaged when she left here. She went away of her own accord, because she likes the outdoors and riding. We feel she just got bored with ranch life and decided to go off on her own for a lark. She has probably read the stories of other girls who have disappeared, found themselves jobs and then got in touch with their families when they made good."

THERE was no further news of Virginia for more than a month after her disappearance. Dr. Gates received telephone calls from a number of girls who claimed to be his daughter and wanted money, but none of them turned out to be Virginia; there were 20 such calls in all. Eventually came the one which he expected.

It was from the home of Chief of Police Thomas Cribbins at Boise, Idaho. Virginia had been recognized by a police officer at a telegraph station in Boise. He had taken her and Daniel McCafferty, who was with her, to Cribbins' house. The Chief had persuaded her to telephone her father.

After proving her identity to him and telling him that she and McCafferty had been married, she announced, "I am the happiest girl in the world. I don't want to go back to Philadelphia. Danny and I are going to live in California." Then Gates asked to speak to the Chief of Police. He told of the previous fraudulent calls, and then said:

"This time it really is Virginia. Be good to them, Chief. I shall send them

"All Men Are Unfaithful and Nearly All Are Rum-Pots," She Once Said, but She's Changed Her Mind Since Taking Her Sixth Husband.

Mrs. Virginia Overshiner Cogswell.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cogswell.

By JACK ALEXANDER

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.

WHEN the moon shines over the honeysuckle, the sixth (or maybe he's the seventh) husband of the beauteous Virginia Overshiner returns to their vine-covered cottage in Westchester and tells her everything he did in wicked Manhattan during the day. And after three months of this idyllic existence, the Georgia Peach, as she is known locally, claims she has at last hit upon the formula for a happy marriage.

Before she met Arthur J. Cogswell, middle-aged advertising man and most recent in a long line of mates, the Southern belle once gave vent to this epigram: "All men are unfaithful and nearly all are rum-pots." But that is changed now. "All but one, I meant," she explained a few days ago.

However, Virginia's life is far from simple. At present she is mixed up in three lawsuits resulting from her last previous marriage to Robert J. Kahn, wealthy Chicago meat packer. Kahn's former wife, Mrs. Katherine P. Kahn, scenario writer, is suing Virginia in Westchester for $100,000, charging she alienated the packer's affections. She is also suing here to annul the marriage of Virginia and Kahn. And Virginia is plaintiff in an action to force Kahn to remit $25 weekly alimony, as ordered by the Florida Judge who divorced her from him.

"Mr. Cogswell is honest and, no matter what he does, he tells me," she declared. Cogswell grinned.

"Of course, that goes both ways," he said.

"Of course," agreed his wife. "I feel Mr. Cogswell is the right man because well—he is the cosmopolitan type. He's clean-living, wholesome and honest——."

"And I'll say this for him, he can hold his liquor, which is an unusual trait to find in any Northern gentleman," added the happy spouse.

"Did you have any qualms about marrying a girl who had had six other husbands?" Cogswell was asked.

Cogswell stammered and said he had been married once before himself. The question went unanswered. Cogswell won an annulment two years ago from a Philadelphia society girl. They met while he, a graduate engineer, was in charge of operations at the Hog Island shipyard during the World War.

Virginia's career began when she won the title of Miss Georgia in 1923, at the age of 15. Since then, operating apparently on the principle that marriage, like a jail, is something to get out of once you're in, she has outstripped, numerically, at least, the marital record of Peggy Joyce. Her mates haven't been as prominent, perhaps, but a few had background. The Kahns, who have ganged up on her in the current litigation, burying their own hatchet, attribute one more husband to her than she admits and charge that she is a gold-digger. Virginia's reply is to point to the fact that the Kahn alimony award is the only one she ever sought.

As evidence of her appeal to men's better natures, Virginia cites letters received from all over the country after her "rum-pot" epigram was broadcast.

"I have read of your experience with love and marriage and your longing for children and a happy life, which have been denied you, and my heart goes out to you in your hour of need," wrote a man from Vineland, N. J. "Please believe me when I write that I am looking for just a chance to make good, to be the something to you which you have been unable to find. I do hope I can do something for you and be of some good."

A Wisconsin farmer wrote: "I'm strong and a hard worker. My life's ambition is to settle in Florida, have a home and a loving wife and children, and an orange grove. Please believe me when I say I am not trying to be rude nor am I looking for publicity. I just want a chance."

"You just can't help being affected a little at such letters," Virginia said as she exhibited stacks of similar communications.

Descended of half the gold braid in the Confederate Army, Virginia was famed for her beauty throughout Atlanta before they selected her as most luscious of all the peaches. Her family is socially prominent. Her grandfather, James M. Overshiner, was the first president of the American Tin Plate Company, source of the great Leeds fortune.

The log of her matrimonial shipwrecks begins back in the Spring of 1924 when one Asa J. Patterson, Atlanta broker and society man, looked with favor on the beauty contest winner. Virginia's parents assented to the marriage, although she was only 16.

"I loved Mr. Patterson immensely but he wanted to celebrate too much," Virginia explained recently. "He started off on our honeymoon. I realized that some people like to celebrate important events, so I didn't say anything for a long while. I began to get a little weary of it when his wedding celebration went into the third month.

"I COMPLAINED mildly after six months but he didn't mind me at all. By the time we'd rounded out a year, during which he was constantly soaked, I'd had enough. The time my husband didn't spend in saloons he spent in rest cure institutions. I reluctantly divorced him on grounds of intoxication and cruelty."

According to the Kahns, here is where the added starter husband, disavowed by Virginia, entered the picture. His last name, they claim, was Galdinger. Galdinger, however, must ever remain a man of mystery. The Peach declares that she stayed single for a year and then——

While returning on a boat from New York to Savannah, after a trip to forget her first crack-up, she met Ivan G. Stark, a Chicagoan born in France, who had picked up charming Continental manners. Two weeks later, believing she had at last snared a real gentleman, the Peach married Stark and took him to Atlanta to show to her parents. Stark showed deep concern when she related the alcoholic exploits of her first husband and assured her that he would cause her no such pain. But, according to Virginia, no sooner had they settled in a home in Chicago than he virtually bathed in alcohol. Worse, he became voluble in his cups and bragged about affairs with other women, she asserts, and when she remonstrated, socked her in both eyes.

"An Overshiner and an undershiner," he cried playfully, she asserts.

So marriage No. 2 (the Peach's own count) ended in an annulment. Running time, four months.

Heartbroken and disappointed, the pretty Atlantan sought solace in a course in interior decorating in the Chicago Academy of Design. Time and art healed the wound slowly and then came her ill-fated spring-fall romance.

Charles Francis Seeger, elderly retired broker of Atlanta, caught Virginia on the second rebound when she was fed up with the antics of younger men. He became No. 3, in 1929.

"Mr. Seeger was well-to-do and scholarly but old enough to be my father," the Peach explains. "I never admired anyone any more than I did him, and he had been in love with me since I was in pigtails. Mr. Seeger had been divorced by his first wife and was very unhappy and he begged me to marry him and make him the happiest man in the world. He was one of the most respected men in the community, so I became his wife."

Here were sobriety, temperance, considered judgment, kindness, attention—all she had asked of life before and failed to get. Yet after one month, she was on her way north on the train and Seeger, his heart smashed again, was reading her tear-stained note of explanation. For six months he tried to win her back by candy, telegrams, flowers and gifts but early in 1930, she divorced him on grounds of incompatibility, reluctantly, of course.

After this sad experience, Virginia sank her identity by working in an Atlanta department store for more than a year. Time ironed out her troubles and for a time she thought of taking the veil.

THEN she came to New York and once more the matrimonial bug stung her. Albert Gilbert was a gay young photographer. He told Virginia she was the most beautiful woman he had ever photographed and he had photographed a lot. In February, 1933, Gilbert became No. 4.

But this proved the shortest of all her marriages. Gilbert's friends were so rowdy and tough, she says, and they raised so much merry Cain, that she packed up and left after one week.

No. 5 turned up at a cocktail party. Virginia had been working as a model in a dress manufacturing establishment and when she learned that Robert J. Kahn, the packer, was a distant relative of Otto H. Kahn, she pricked up her ears. Kahn's eyes opened wide when he spotted the Georgia Peach. The upshot was that Kahn arranged for a 30-day Mexican divorce to eliminate Gilbert and married Virginia.

This marriage, which enabled her to pull up even with La Joyce, turned out quite as badly as the rest.

"We went West on an automobile trip and things came off grandly until we reached Hollywood," she related.

"But after we got back to Chicago he refused to introduce me as his wife. He was very mysterious about when I demanded an explanation, saying something about business reasons. When he got to New York he parked me with his family, which I didn't like, and down in Miami he told me to get a separate room and register under the name of Seeger. This was the last straw. I told him I was going back to New York and he agreed to support me there. But when I got back he wrote me: 'I'm out of New York State and what are you going to do about it?' "

She came back by suing for divorce in Miami. The suit was not contested and Virginia got her decree and the first alimony award, $25 a week.

Just before her marriage to Cogswell, the Peach went into court and had all her former married names dropped. In a twinkling she changed from Mrs. Patterson-Stark-Seeger-Gilbert-Kahn to Virginia Overshiner. And then she changed in another twinkling to Mrs. Arthur J. Cogswell.

DEATH-DEFYING TEST PILOTS and the RISKS THEY TAKE

Why Progress in Aviation Has Been Marked by the Tombstones of Flyers Who Took Up Untried Planes.

The wrecked plane from which Pilot Sutton jumped to safety after the motor fell out of it.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

A BIG silver-winged airplane diving about two miles above Lancaster, New York, last June, suddenly began to act strangely. An instant later the engine dropped out of the ship. Over the side leaped Pilot Paul Hovgard of Philadelphia. His left arm was broken by the spinning plane before his parachute floated him to safety in a field. The wreckage of the $200,000 navy plane fell five miles away. The motor dropped hissing into a nearby creek.

The escape was just another adventure for a test pilot, a man whose daily duty it is to risk his life in flying new planes of unknown capabilities through rigorous tests. Despite all precautions and advance calculations, mishaps occur frequently when a new ship is taken aloft for the first time.

"I tried a power dive at 12,000 feet," explained Pilot Hovgard, a veteran flyer employed by the Curtiss company to test the new navy dive bomber designed to speed 300 miles an hour with 500-pound bombs.

"I had just started into the dive when suddenly something went wrong. I didn't know what it was, but I started to bail out.

"The plane was whirling around and completely out of control. I tried to climb out of the cockpit and got tangled in the strut wires.

"Something slammed against my arm. It went numb. Finally I got free and hit ground O K."

Pilot Harry A. Sutton, who spent several weeks recently demonstrating American-made military planes to Colombians in South America, last year had the same kind of escape. The engine upon which he was testing a new adjustable pitch propeller "flew out" of the plane soon after he took off from Buffalo airport. Sutton bailed out and landed unhurt 100 feet from the wreckage.

Lieutenant C. C. Champion of the navy had the fortune to live through an even more harrowing experience as a test pilot. He took a fighting plane up seven miles for an altitude test. On the way down the ship caught fire. Instead of jumping, the officer daringly undertook to preserve his records and himself by a series of side slips, which kept the flames from the cockpit. He was successful, saving himself and the papers.

All are not so fortunate. Many of those who fly new ships die with their record cards still strapped to their knees and progress in aviation may be said to be marked by the tombstones of test pilots.

JOSEPH McCORMICK of Cooperstown, New York, a brother of Pilot William S. McCormick with the Byrd Polar expedition, was burned to death last July 12, when a new gyroplane which he was testing crashed at Philadelphia. The same day, Carl Nammacher of Brooklyn, a United Aircraft pilot, was killed in Shanghai, China, while testing an American-made bombing plane for the Nationalist Government.

Still mourned by the navy is Lieutenant George Cuddihy, a Schneider Cup flyer. He took a fast foreign-made pursuit ship up 10,000 feet over Washington, District of Columbia, for a dive test. The plane did not level off and plunged deep into the ground, killing the pilot, while a group of high Government officials looked on, helpless to aid.

Another form of disaster cost the lives of Pilot Harvey Ogden of Minneapolis and Pilot Paul Boyd of Williamsville, New York.

The wing of an army observation plane, which Pilot Ogden was flying, dropped away at 5000 feet. He attempted to use his parachute, but the spinning plane sheared the harness. The parachute opened, but the test pilot fell to his death 300 feet from the plane, and the parachute which might have saved his life floated away.

A neatly typed unfinished report on the results of his tests of the plane and a mass of messages of condolence from all parts of the world stand as memorials to Pilot Ogden in the files of the Curtiss company.

Pilot Boyd and Stanley Wokis, the latter a Curtiss engineer, took aloft a new navy "hell diver" ship. It had a radical tail design and other changes which engineers believed of value in ocean flying. A mile above Williamsville, Boyd sent the plane into a power dive.

It dropped safely 3000 feet and was beginning to straighten out when the wings literally folded into the fuselage. One wing and the tail were torn entirely away. Neither flyer had a chance to use his parachute and both were killed. Parts of the wreckage were found 2000 feet apart. The flyers, of course, died instantly.

Undismayed by the toll of death and injury, one generation of test pilots succeeds another, with the ranks being recruited principally from careful but daring army and navy pilots.

William Wheatley, chief test pilot of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, now making military planes for China, Rumania and Colombia, as well as the United States, is a former army flyer. Lloyd Child of St. Louis, Curtiss test pilot, received navy training. Pilot William J. Crosswell and Pilot Sutton, the one whose engine dropped out, came to the company from the army.

While in the service, Pilot Sutton won the Distinguished Flying Cross for his study of spins. As a Kelly Field flyer, Pilot Wheatley once landed a plane, the ailerons of which had been frozen by sleet, with only slight damage.

Even the designers do not know how a new experimental plane when completed will react in a spin or other stress. There are those that go into a flat spin and cannot be brought out of it. There are those that require maximum effort on the part of the pilot if they are to be kept from crashing. Some will come out of a spin with ease. Every precaution, however, is taken to make the risky business no more dangerous than necessary.

"WE TRY not to take any unnecessary risks," says Pilot Wheatley, who has flown safely for nine years through many adventures.

"Every piece of material that goes into an airplane is given the most severe test. I like to follow a new model plane all of the way through the factory and watch every stage of construction. Planes of unusual design are tested normally only in the finest weather."

Airplane factories developing new models have wind tunnels. These are tunnels through which a great propeller sends a blast of wind at great force upon plane models suspended by wires. Scales connected with the wires show the exact amount of strain on each part at wind velocities of up to 250 miles per hour. From this data the strains of a full-scale ship can be calculated with considerable accuracy.

New planes are tested for speed and climb at various altitudes, time and length of run for take-off and landing, as well as landing speed. The test pilot also makes notes on the pad strapped to his knee of the balance, stability, control, maneuverability, vision, and so on.

While planes are being built better than ever before, Pilot Wheatley sees little hope of test piloting becoming less dangerous, and he carries all the life insurance that he can obtain.

It is an axiom of aviation that anyone can fly an airplane, but only a pilot can land one.

LOS ANGELES, California.

UNHERALDED east of the Rockies, Los Angeles and 12 adjacent cities have banded together in one of the greatest engineering projects of our times, a $220,000,000 aqueduct, 385 miles long, which will carry one billion gallons of water a day.

It is said to dwarf any similar undertaking ever attempted by man. Its length is greater than the distance from St. Louis to Chicago, or Madison, Wisconsin, to Cincinnati or Little Rock. Its day's weight of water would tip the scales at 200,000,000 tons, would provide a half-gallon for every living person on the earth, eight gallons for every man, woman and child in this country. And, though little has been told of it outside of West Coast newspapers and engineering journals, while Boulder Dam has been widely publicized, the comparative magnitudes may be indicated by the costs, $220,000,000 for the aqueduct and $100,000,000 for the dam.

The two projects, the great dam and the gigantic water pipe, though separate, are mutually dependent in some essential respects. The aqueduct depends on the dam for regulation of its source of supply—the Colorado River—and for cheap electric energy needed to pump the water over the mountain ranges. Thirty-six per cent of the power generated at the giant dam will be used for this purpose.

On the other hand, the dam depends upon the operation of the aqueduct for economic success. It will be the Government's largest customer, for both water and power. And the revenues are expected in a large part to amortize the cost of the Boulder Dam project.

The pipe line is being built by the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, an authority set up by 13 California cities—Los Angeles, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Santa Monica, Anaheim, Beverly Hills, Glendale, Pasadena, Burbank, Compton, Torrance, San Marino and Fullerton.

These municipalities, all adjacent to one another, voted bond issues to pay for the construction. Each community was assessed in ratio to the amount of water it is expected to consume.

Once the money had been appropriated and the plans were well under way, the Water District governors combed the country to find the man to place in charge. They finally decided upon F. E. Weymouth, who, for years, was chief engineer of the United States Reclamation Bureau. He became chief engineer and general manager. He let out some of the work to contractors, but arranged to do much of it with his own men.

THE funds were voted in 1931. Weymouth estimated he could complete the project in about six or seven years by bringing into use the latest innovations of engineering. He expects to finish on schedule, and the work is going forward at the rate of about three and a half miles a month. About 4400 workmen are employed.

The billion gallons of water a day will be taken from the Colorado River at a giant intake at Parker, about 150 miles below Boulder Dam. A huge dam is being built here by the Water District, at a cost of $13,000,000.

The rest of the $220,000,000 will be spent in digging 91 miles of tunnel through the mountain ranges, and building 55 miles of covered conduit, 24 miles of pressure line and 75 miles of lined canal.

It will be only 241 miles from the intake to the main terminal reservoir. But there will be 144 miles of distributing mains to carry the water from the reservoir to the different communities.

Five gigantic pumping stations are being installed to force the water a great part of the way, but for many miles it will flow by gravity.

The work that had to be done before a shovelful of dirt on the main project could be turned would in itself be considered a big undertaking. But Chief Engineer Weymouth took that in stride. First of all, he established 30 desert construction camps as headquarters and for housing the 4400 workmen. Then he rushed to a speedy conclusion 150 miles of surfaced highways across the sand. In record time he had laid out 180 miles of pipes to carry water to the arid camps. Then he stretched 1000 miles of telephone lines and 450 miles of power lines, to say nothing of hauling out all the equipment necessary for the work. Only then could the work begin.

It was estimated that, by old and orthodox methods, it would take 20 years at least to rout out the 91 miles of tunnels through the mountains. But the time limit was only six years, so new methods had to be devised. And they were.

Instead of attacking the tunnels with two gangs of men, one working at each portal, it was decided to drive horizontal adits, or access tunnels into mountain sides to the line of the main bore. This made it possible for several crews to work at the same time. But it likewise made necessary letter-perfect engineering.

If the tunnels were to meet perfectly, not a foot's difference in calculation would be permissible. And, working far underground, it was difficult for the surveyors to check their instruments accurately.

It didn't take them long to overcome this problem. They designed a powerful lamp which allows only a fine vertical sliver of light to escape. Transitmen are able to sight upon this slender beam from great distances down the tunnel.

Longest of all the 29 bores is the East Coachella tunnel, 18 miles from end to end. This cuts directly through a mountain peak and the Water District workmen have been assigned the task of digging it.

Four access tunnels, or adits, were bored down from the mountain side, making it possible for eight gangs of workmen to dig simultaneously. If but two gangs, moving from the ends, were employed, it would take 15 years for completion. But as it is, new records for fast tunneling are being set up every day.

The access adits themselves constitute sizable pieces of tunnel construction. They vary in length from 600 to 3000 feet. Two of them were made perpendicular, and equipped with elevators, like mine shafts, while the other two slant in from the side.

The fundamental routine of actual tunnel driving is much the same all along the far-flung construction front. It consists of three steps—drilling, blasting and hauling away—repeated over and over again.

FROM 20 to 60 holes, six to 12 feet deep, are drilled into the rock, then loaded with explosive. The explosive is set off, and, after the blast, the shattered rock is loaded into waiting cars and hauled out to the dump.

Just how the engineers can be sure the blasts will tear out enough rock but not too much for the size of the tunnel, probably will always remain a mystery to the layman. It is done with a mathematical precision which would astound one unfamiliar with the process.

It also is interesting to note that most of the motive power for the dump trains running inside the shafts is provided by huge storage battery locomotives, capable of pulling trains of from five to 10 cars, each one of which has a capacity of four to six cubic yards.

Gigantic in scope though it is, the tunnel driving is by no means the only important phase of the construction. Siphon building, pumping, conduit and power line construction are a few of the other worries which Chief Engineer Weymouth has been forced to overcome.

This gigantic water system will be in operation within four or five years if all goes well. And when the citizens of Los Angeles and the surrounding towns fill their tumblers with cool sparkling Colorado River water, they may offer a toast to the men who made it possible.

How One Telephone Call Too Many Betrayed 'The Fox'

This is the fifth of a series dealing with the exploits of the Division of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice, written especially for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine from official records and information obtained from J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the division.

By REX COLLIER.

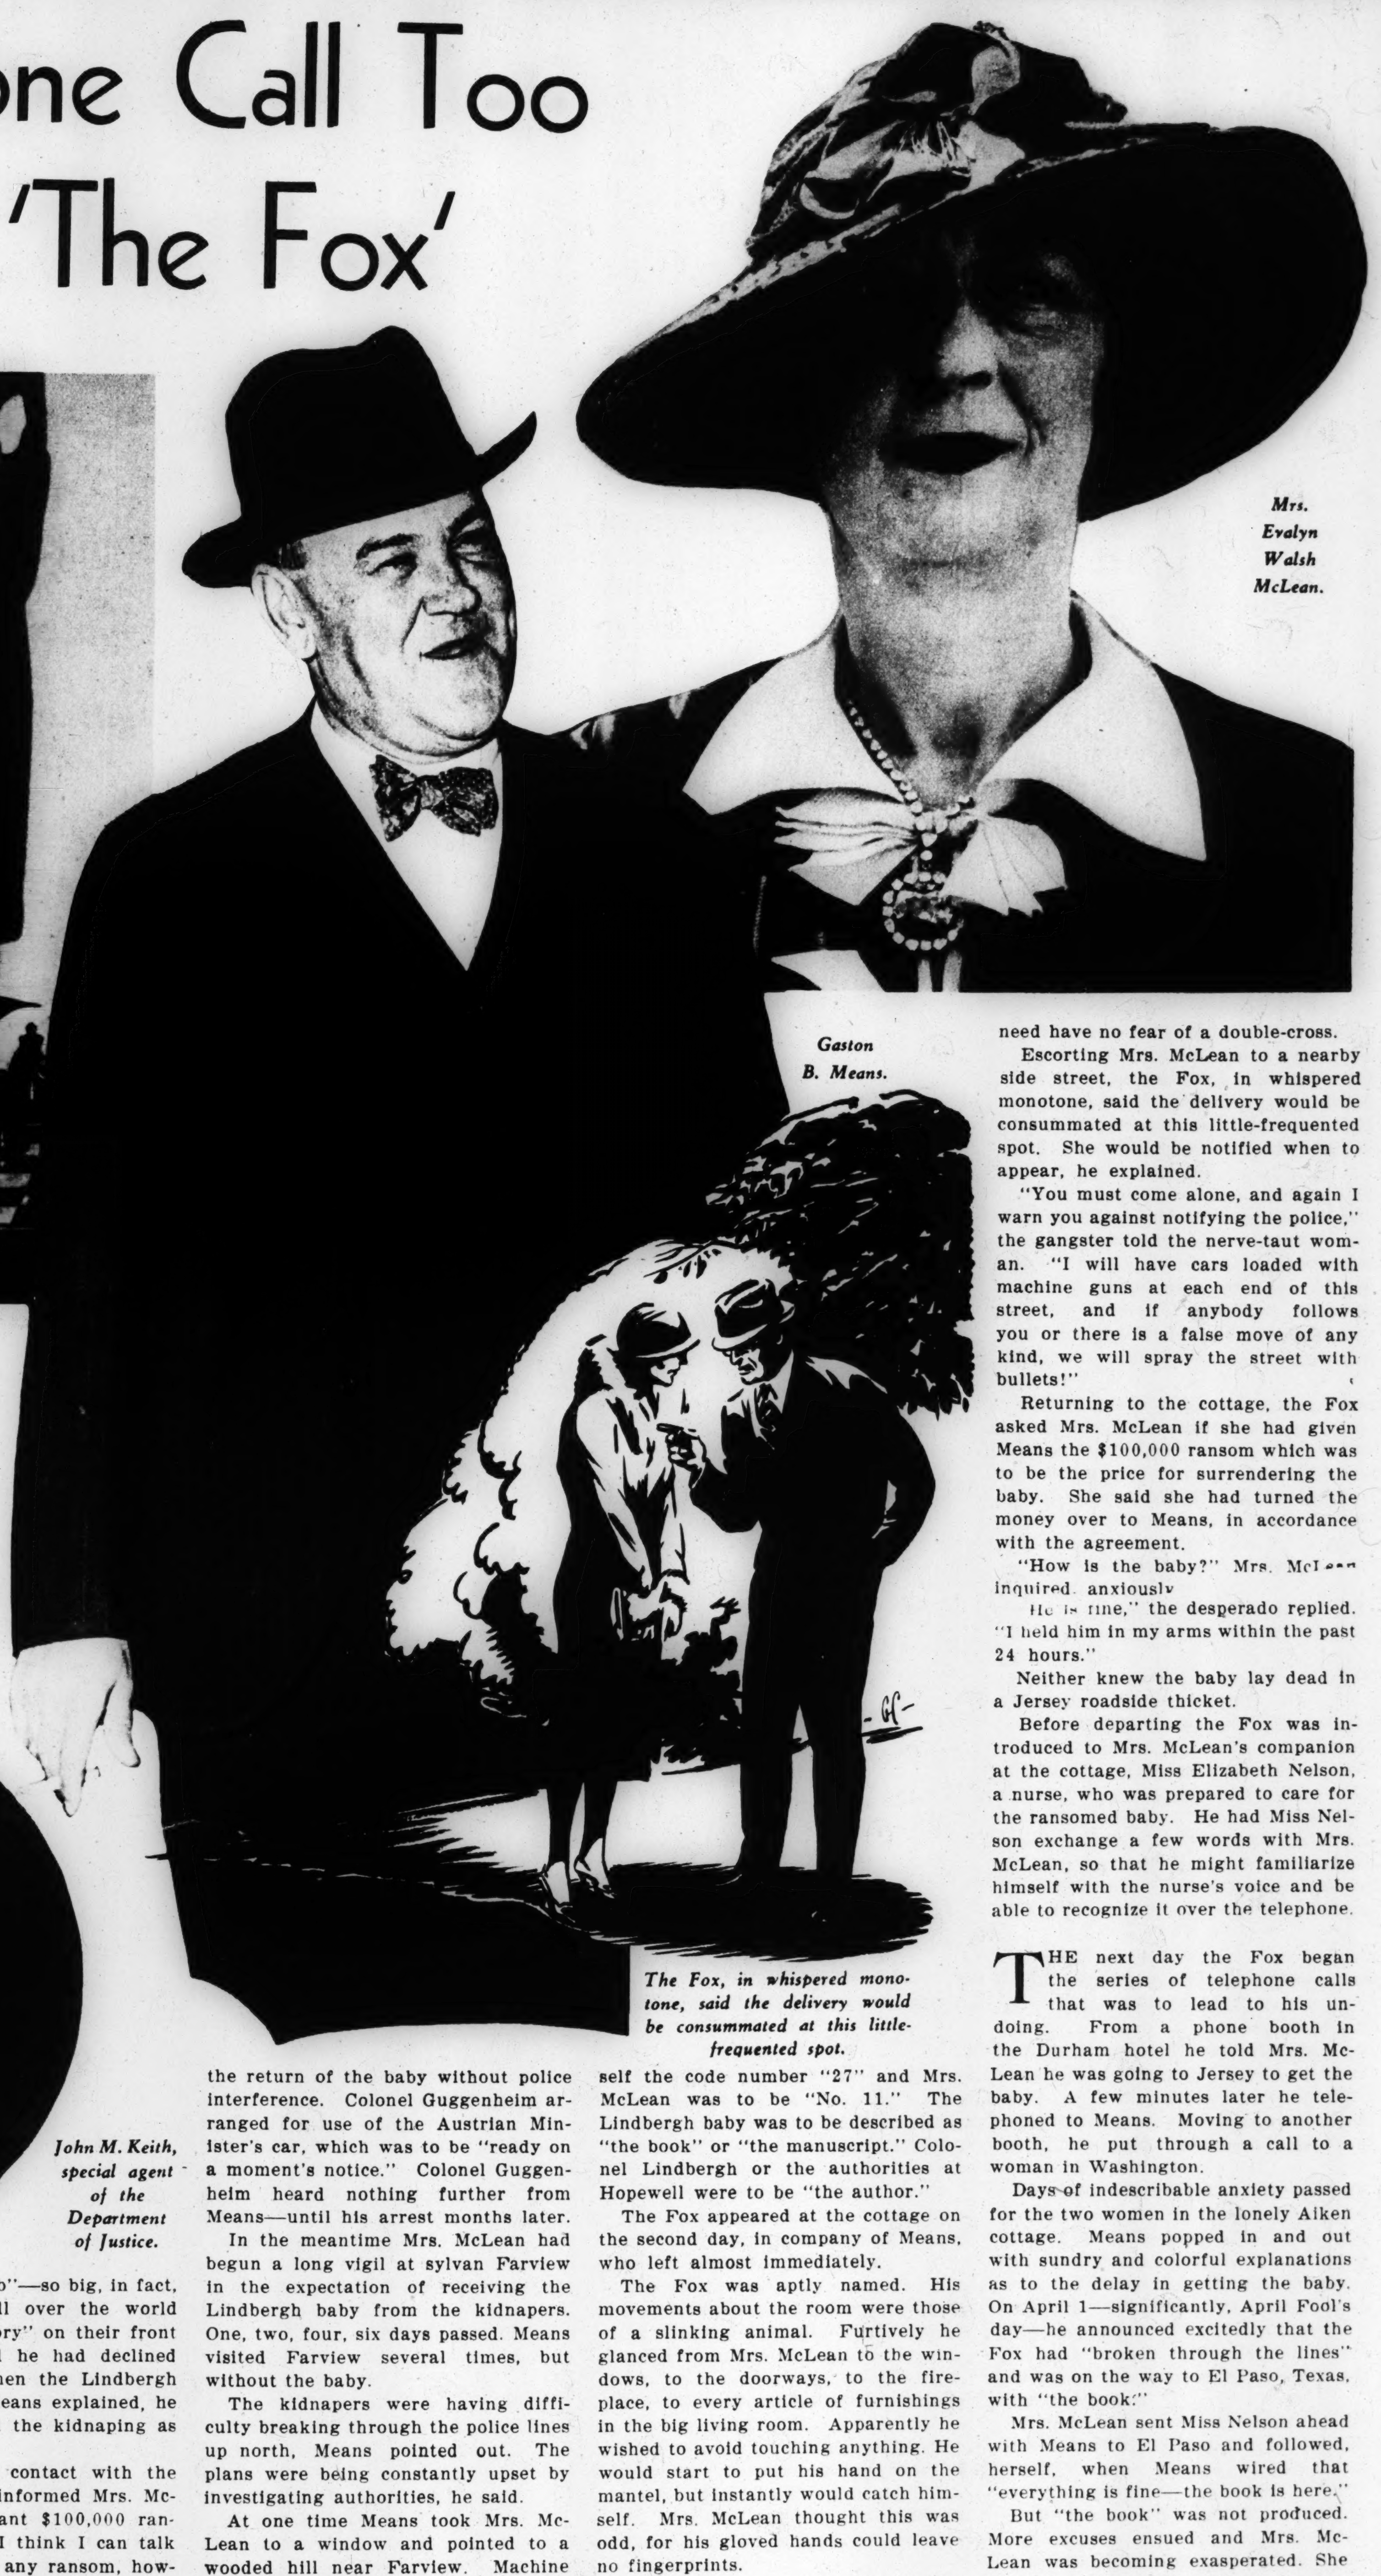
Norman T. Whitaker, alias "The Fox."

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.



Gaston B. Means.

ONE telephone call too many betrayed "The Fox," self-styled chief kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby and accomplice of the notorious Gaston B. Means in an audacious $104,000 ransom hoax perpetrated on Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.

It was just a brief, carefully guarded phone conversation from an obscure booth in the lobby of a Durham (North Carolina) hotel to the residence of a woman in Washington, D. C.—but it was the clew which led special agents of the Justice Department's Division of Investigation to solve an incredibly cunning and cruel swindle.

Government men already had put Means, ringleader of the fake ransom conspiracy, behind bars in the District of Columbia jail and had cleared up much of the mystery surrounding the fantastic negotiations into which the emotion-wrought Mrs. McLean had been enticed by the glib Means under pretext of arranging return of the stolen Lindbergh child.

Without the Fox in custody, however, the Government's case against Means would be lamentably weak and inconclusive in the courts, J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the division, conceded. Means, master criminal that he was, knew how nearly hopeless the case of the prosecution would be if the Fox could not be produced, or at least identified. He had implicit faith in the ability of his co-conspirator to avoid detection. Every possible precaution, he felt, had been taken to conceal his real identity.

Means had felt secure all along, even when he suspected that Mrs. McLean had become wise to his scheme. He thought it improbable that the wealthy social leader would risk ridicule of her friends and the public by turning matters over to the police and the newspapers. Even if she decided to sacrifice herself in this way, he reasoned, the authorities could prove nothing on him—without the Fox. He was sure he could convince a jury—just as he had convinced Mrs. McLean and Colonel Guggenheim and Captain Land and the others—that he actually had been in contact with the kidnapers of Lindbergh's son.

Director Hoover had known the rascally Means of old. Means had been a special agent of the Justice Department during the hectic regime of Harry Daugherty as Attorney General, but had lost out, along with the late William J. Burns and others, when the department was reorganized after the oil scandals. Hoover had played an important role in the reorganization.

There was another man in the division who was familiar with Means and his activities. He was John M. Keith, experienced criminologist and agent in charge of the field office at Washington. Keith was the opposite of Means in every respect. Means was large, blustery and garrulous. Keith was small, cultured and quiet.

Hoover decided to match the wits of poker-faced, sharp-eyed Agent Keith against the ingenuity of suave Means and his phantom cohort, the Fox, alias "No. 19," alias "Neil Williams."

The capture of Means had been accomplished without much difficulty. He had been in seclusion at his large home in fashionable Chevy Chase, Maryland, on the outskirts of Washington. A few days of surveillance by a picked squad under Keith had established that fact. That Means had sought no better hideout was due, perhaps, to his confidence that even though he was arrested, he would be vindicated. By putting up a "front," rather than fleeing, he would strengthen his position.

Snaring the Fox, Keith admitted, was a different proposition. He began by questioning Mrs. McLean at great length and in laborious detail as to the part played by the "chief kidnaper" in the weird negotiations engineered by Means.

The Fox, Mrs. McLean revealed, did not enter the negotiations until they had been under way for more than two weeks.

The $104,000 Ransom Hoax Perpetrated on Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean by Gaston Means and His Accomplice.

During those first two weeks Means had engaged in melodramatic negotiations that, beginning in whispered conferences with Colonel M. Robert Guggenheim, friend of Lindbergh, and with Mrs. McLean, had reached out to an Austrian Minister, to Father Francis J. Hurney, prominent Catholic priest; to Captain (now Rear Admiral) Emory Land, a cousin of Lindbergh, and, finally, to Colonel Lindbergh himself.

John M. Keith, special agent of the Department of Justice.

Mrs. McLean's appearance in the drama had been voluntary—without solicitation on the part of Means. To Means, who was striving to get in touch with Lindbergh through Colonel Guggenheim and Captain Land, Mrs. McLean's entrance was a providential, remarkable coincidence.

Means had just returned home from his first conference with Colonel Guggenheim, to whom he had made astounding claims of ability to contact the kidnapers, when the phone rang. It was his Harding administration acquaintance, Mrs. McLean, estranged wife of the former publisher of the Washington Post, inquiring if he (Means) thought he could find the Lindbergh baby.

AT FIRST Means could scarcely believe his ears. This was a break too good to be true. Why had he not thought of Mrs. McLean in the first place! A woman, he mused, would be an easier mark than Colonel Lindbergh.

"You have called the one person who can rescue that baby," Means assured Mrs. McLean, with typical modesty. "In fact, I'm already in touch with the kidnapers."

Means explained all about it in a personal conference with Mrs. McLean the next day—Sunday, March 6—at her suburban home, Farview. A blizzard howled about the big house as Means told of having met, just prior to the Lindbergh kidnaping, an ex-convict who had served time with Means at Atlanta. This man, a ruthless gunman—according to Means—had invited Means to join with him in pulling a "big job"—so big, in fact, that newspapers all over the world would "play the story" on their front pages. Means said he had declined the invitation. When the Lindbergh child was stolen, Means explained, he instantly recognized the kidnaping as the "big job."

"I've established contact with the kidnapers," Means informed Mrs. McLean, "and they want $100,000 ransom, in old bills. I think I can talk them out of taking any ransom, however. It will be necessary to obtain the services of a Catholic priest as an intermediary."

While this conference was taking place at Farview, Colonel Guggenheim, carrying out Means' instructions, was waiting tensely at his home for possible arrival that day of the stolen baby, and Captain Land was at Hopewell, obtaining Lindbergh's consent for Means to conduct a private investigation and receiving, at the same time, a token by which the child could be identified.

The next evening Means went to Mrs. McLean's city home and received from her $100,000 in old bills, with which to ransom the baby. Father Hurney witnessed the transaction and counted the money. The agreement was that no money should be paid the kidnapers until the child had been produced and identified.

From the moment he received this money, Means lost all interest in his dealings with Colonel Guggenheim and Captain Land. After waiting impatiently for three days for word from Means, Colonel Guggenheim drove to Means' home. Means explained that something had "gone wrong" and it would be necessary now to use a Government or diplomatic automobile for the return of the baby without police interference. Colonel Guggenheim arranged for use of the Austrian Minister's car, which was to be "ready on a moment's notice." Colonel Guggenheim heard nothing further from Means—until his arrest months later.

In the meantime Mrs. McLean had begun a long vigil at sylvan Farview in the expectation of receiving the Lindbergh baby from the kidnapers. One, two, four, six days passed. Means visited Farview several times, but without the baby.

The kidnapers were having difficulty breaking through the police lines up north, Means pointed out. The plans were being constantly upset by investigating authorities, he said.

At one time Means took Mrs. McLean to a window and pointed to a wooded hill near Farview. Machine gunners, he confided, were stationed there to cover every move made by Mrs. McLean and to protect the kidnapers from being trapped.

ON THE eighth day of the nerve-racking wait Means went to Farview and told Mrs. McLean that complications made it impossible to deliver the child in Washington. He said the gang wanted to make the delivery in Miami. He said he still was holding on to the $100,000.

Mrs. McLean said she could not possibly go to Miami, but asked if Aiken, South Carolina, would do. She told Means she had a summer cottage there that would be ideal for a secret rendezvous. Means thought this would answer the purpose. He added that the kidnapers were demanding $4000 for "expense money," and Mrs. McLean handed Means that amount without protest.

Mrs. McLean arrived at Aiken on March 21—and the stage was set for appearance of the Fox. Means previously had prepared Mrs. McLean for the show that was to come. The chief kidnaper, he told her, bore the alias of Neil Williams, and was to be referred to in the negotiations as "No. 19" or "The Fox." Means gave himself the code number "27" and Mrs. McLean was to be "No. 11." The Lindbergh baby was to be described as "the book" or "the manuscript." Colonel Lindbergh or the authorities at Hopewell were to be "the author."

The Fox appeared at the cottage on the second day, in company of Means, who left almost immediately.

The Fox was aptly named. His movements about the room were those of a slinking animal. Furtively he glanced from Mrs. McLean to the windows, to the doorways, to the fireplace, to every article of furnishings in the big living room. Apparently he wished to avoid touching anything. He would start to put his hand on the mantel, but instantly would catch himself. Mrs. McLean thought this was odd, for his gloved hands could leave no fingerprints.

Satisfied with his inspection of the room, the Fox turned and confronted Mrs. McLean squarely for the first time. He was of stocky build and of average height. His clothing was in good taste and of good quality. His large head was joined to his body by a short, thick neck. His face was flushed, as though in anger or excitement. His shifty gaze came from behind shell-rimmed spectacles. His dark hair retreated from his high forehead and was cropped closely over the ears and at the back—Prussian style.

Mrs. McLean realized she was dealing with no ordinary underworld figure. Obviously this man was well-bred. She recalled that Means had termed him the "brains of the gang"—an ex-convict with a formidable record of crime.

The Fox spoke in low, crisp tones. His language was that of a well-educated person.

"Everything looks O. K. here," he said. "I will deliver the baby here within 48 hours. But there must be no double-crossing. I warn you that my men will fill you full of lead at the first hint of a police trap!"

Escorting Mrs. McLean to a nearby side street, the Fox, in whispered monotone, said the delivery would be consummated at this little-frequented spot. She would be notified when to appear, he explained.

"You must come alone, and again I warn you against notifying the police," the gangster told the nerve-taut woman. "I will have cars loaded with machine guns at each end of this street, and if anybody follows you or there is a false move of any kind, we will spray the street with bullets!"

Returning to the cottage, the Fox asked Mrs. McLean if she had given Means the $100,000 ransom which was to be the price for surrendering the baby. She said she had turned the money over to Means, in accordance with the agreement.

"How is the baby?" Mrs. McLean inquired anxiously.

"He is fine," the desperado replied. "I held him in my arms within the past 24 hours."

Neither knew the baby lay dead in a Jersey roadside thicket.

Before departing the Fox was introduced to Mrs. McLean's companion at the cottage, Miss Elizabeth Nelson, a nurse, who was prepared to care for the ransomed baby. He had Miss Nelson exchange a few words with Mrs. McLean, so that he might familiarize himself with the nurse's voice and be able to recognize it over the telephone.

THE next day the Fox began the series of telephone calls that was to lead to his undoing. From a phone booth in the Durham hotel he told Mrs. McLean he was going to Jersey to get the baby. A few minutes later he telephoned to Means. Moving to another booth, he put through a call to a woman in Washington.

Days of indescribable anxiety passed for the two women in the lonely Aiken cottage. Means popped in and out with sundry and colorful explanations as to the delay in getting the baby. On April 1—significantly, April Fool's day—he announced excitedly that the Fox had "broken through the lines" and was on the way to El Paso, Texas, with "the book."

Mrs. McLean sent Miss Nelson ahead with Means to El Paso and followed, herself, when Means wired that "everything is fine—the book is here."

But "the book" was not produced. More excuses ensued and Mrs. McLean was becoming exasperated. She announced that unless the baby was delivered to her within 24 hours she would "throw up" the whole undertaking, ask Means for return of the $100,000 and entrain for Washington.

That produced temporary results. The Fox in person appeared and made some unintelligible excuses for failing to surrender the baby. He promised to make the delivery "as soon as possible."

Mrs. McLean told Miss Nelson to remain in El Paso with Means to await the child. The society woman returned to Washington. A day or so later Means appeared at the McLean residence and declared the Fox now refused to give up the baby until $49,500 of the $50,000 of marked money paid by Colonel Lindbergh had been exchanged for $35,000 of "clean money."

At her wits' end and daring not ask even close friends to advise her, Mrs. McLean protested she had exhausted her cash. Means, however, was obdurate. Finally the over-wrought woman prepared to pawn some of her jewels—a diamond necklace and two diamond bracelets. She held the famous Hope diamond in reserve. An intimate friend accidentally learned of

Went Through a Tunnel to Woo Anne Boleyn

Cottage in Essex, Which Was the Scene of Henry the Eighth's Clandestine Courtship, Bought by Henry Ford.

A Holbein portrait of Henry VIII.

LONDON.

POOR Anne Boleyn, a mixture of passions and ambitions, whose refusal to accept, without conditions, the role of Henry the Eighth's mistress changed the course of the world's history, and was responsible for the birth of two children—one of them Queen Elizabeth—and the Church of England, may have fancied that, as a royal consort, any property in her name would forever remain in the hands of her heirs and their assigns.

Indeed, Anne fancied many things, only to find later that she was mistaken. She never for a moment thought that her pretty white neck would come in contact with that unsocial tool, the executioner's ax, but it did.

Even had the Fates endowed her with the gift of forecasting the future, the chances are the beauteous creature would not have visioned the only home she ever owned passing into the possesion of an American multi-millionaire, and certainly not one bearin the Christian designation, "Henry."

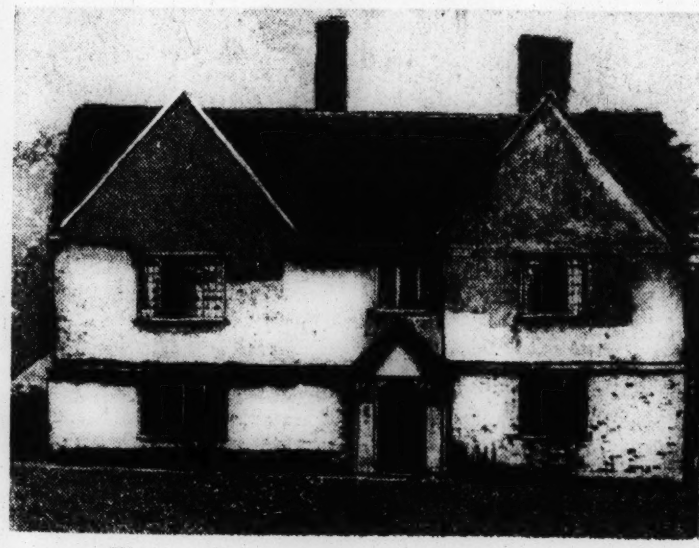
But just the other day the one and only piece of real estate ever recorded in the name of Anne Boleyn—a cottage near Chelmsford, Essex—was bought by Henry Ford, motor-car manufacturer, Detroit.

If there were any likelihood of establishing communication with Anne, wherever she may be, and acquainting her with the fact that a Tycoon of the automotive industry is now having her old cottage rebuilt as it was 400 years ago, when she was being wooed by Henry the Eighth, she might express surprise at this particular American's interest in the amours of a Tudor and a Boleyn.

She might even chide the American Henry for bringing her name again before the public, with a revival of all the sordid memories of her brief and hectic career. With Henry Ford's legal representatives pursuing a rigid title search into the property, with their inquiries going back to the early years of the Sixteenth Century, the ghost of Anne Boleyn finds itself staging a rendezvous with posterity. Of course, the publicity is distressing to the present-day descendants of Anne, many of whom are peers of the realm and all close to the British throne.

The cottage that housed the romance of an English King—a romance, the repercussions of which are still being felt throughout the world—is being "duplexed" into two apartments to be occupied by employes on Mr. Ford's farm. One of the apartments is already occupied by an employe of the Detroit industrialist.

The Ford property, Bull's Lodge—Anne's surname was often spelled Bullen—stands back in a field behind a tangle of country lanes. It was here, then one day's march, now an hour's ride, from London, that Henry came to visit pretty Anne Boleyn. And it was here that Harold Livermore, a sheepherder, now in the employ of the Detroiter, brought his flocks to graze six years ago. Down below, in the cellar, he found an underground passage leading to the castle across the fields.



The Anne Boleyn cottage at Chelmsford, Essex.

Through this underground passage, the English King would, with the aid of a flaming torch, wend his way stealthily for many of his "dates" with Anne. He, poor dupe, thought he was outwitting the gossips and scandal-mongers. Today the castle from which Henry the Eighth was wont to sneak in quest of romance is a girls' school.

HENRY FORD'S acquisition of the trysting spot where, four centuries ago, a Tudor monarch whispered words of love into the ears of a beautiful and designing young creature, is the second transfer, within recent date, of property having a direct link with England's most catastrophic romance.

Little did Anne think in those days, when listening to the honeyed words of her royal lover, and whose queen she was to become, that she was to lose her head. Alone in the Tower, awaiting the dread tomorrow when she would lay her neck upon the block, she may have thought of what a pleasant existence she could have led as a spinster in Bull's Lodge.

Just a few days before the deeding of the Boleyn cottage to the American motor-car manufacturer, another castle of Bluff King Hal, Wickham Court, was sold and converted into a modern hotel. It was to this ancient stronghold that Anne was despatched when the gossips linked her name too openly with the King's, at a time when Henry was still the legal husband of Catherine of Aragon, from whom he was to be divorced in deference to the charms of the ambitious young Miss Boleyn.

Henry, up to the time of meeting Anne, was not anxious to become the champion of the State against the Church. His quarrel with the ecclesiastical powers grew out of his frenzied love for a youthful charmer of nineteen. This slip of a girl told the English King that if there was to be a surrender on her part, there would have to be an understanding. And the understanding was that Henry was to give up his then mistress, Mary Boleyn, sister of Anne, to give up his wife, the Spanish Catherine. He was plainly told that he would have to root both mistress and wife out of his heart for all time. But more than that—if Henry wanted to play the role of companion and protector to Anne—he would have to make Miss Boleyn his Queen through marriage.

The members of the Boleyn family were aghast at her dictation to the King. They wanted no bargaining between Anne and Henry, neither did her relatives. All were chary that the monarch might experience a change of heart, possibly spot some new charmer, and let the Boleyn clan fend for itself. But, withal, Anne remained defiantly cool to the passionate assurances of Henry that his love would be eternal. She was equally frigid to the protests of her bullying and complaisant father that her aloofness toward the King was endangering the fortunes of the Howards, the Norfolks, the Surreys, the Poles, the Shrewsburys, the Carews, the Exeters, and the Northumberlands, and all others connected by blood and marriage with the Boleyns.

But Anne had her sister Mary's example before her. Mary had been the mistress of Henry the Eighth and the mother of a child born out of wedlock. Notwithstanding that Mary's youngster had been noted and cared for by his kingly father, Anne was determined that there should be nothing like that in her career.

As soon as Henry felt that Anne loved him and wanted him, he agreed to her demands. Aye, there would be a marriage. Indeed, she would be the Queen of England. And as soon as the ambitious Miss Boleyn had Henry in her net, and was certain that he could not escape, she graciously entered into that temporary relationship with him, which was not only to cause scandal in high places, but to bring down on both of them the wrath of the Church.

HENRY would be rid of his 41-year-old wife, Catherine, whom he had been inveigled into marrying by her father, King Ferdinand of Spain. Yes, he would replace the Spanish woman with a bold and saucy chit of nineteen, for he was only thirty-five. Anyhow, Queen Catherine had failed to give him a son. He was not keenly interested in the daughter she had borne.

There must be a divorce and to Pope Clement the Seventh the King appealed. Henry gave reasons other than the real ones for laying aside his Spanish wife. He would not have the ecclesiastical powers think that his demand for dissolution of his marriage was because of his anxiety to wed his beautiful mistress. But Henry's attachment to Anne Boleyn was one of the flagrant scandals of the day, and the stories of the royal romance, reaching Rome, precipitated a great stir in ecclesiastical circles.

If Henry were to secure an annulment of his marriage to Catherine, he would have to be more circumspect in his behaviour. As a result the beautiful Anne was hustled off to the comparative obscurity of Wickham Court, in Kent, then owned by her uncle, Sir John Heydon.

But frenzied lovers are rarely discreet, and never are they patient. And Henry was such a type, one whose wooing must go on, be the consequences what they may. Soon he was making secret journeys from London to Wickham Court, as a result of which the imps and gnomes of scandal began to stage a merry whirl through Merrie England.

Something had to be done to stem the infernal gossiping about Henry's affair with Anne. Just where the two might meet and woo was a problem, now that all Kent was chattering about the goings-on at Wickham Court. But, worse, Rome was privy to all that was happening in England.

It was then that Anne suggested her cottage in Chelmsford as an ideal trysting place, so secret, off the main roads, and hidden by bracken and brush. Quite true, just the place, but the King was a portly fellow, well known, and could not go riding secretly, by horseback, to Essex, without soon being spotted.

The only way out of the dilemma was for the English King to pretend that he was a regular visitor to the castle that was in the immediate vicinity of Anne Boleyn's cottage. And to obviate the necessity of his jumping hedges and stalking in the open across the fields, Henry and Anne put their heads together, with the result that an underground passage soon connected castle and cottage.

But news of Henry's conduct was bruited abroad, as a result of which he failed to secure a divorce, the aftermath of which was a rupture between Rome and England, with the English monarch tossing Catherine aside and taking the scheming Anne Boleyn as his wife.

In the early days of his romance, when the object of his passionate yearnings held herself as a prisoner of love in her cottage at Chelmsford—now the farmstead of Henry Ford—the humble establishment saw Henry more often than his residence in London. And Bull's Lodge, like Wickham Court, retains still the scars of that royal courtship of four hundred years ago, for Kings are not a whit different from other men when they are in love.

Many of the beams of the old cottage are decorated with the initials of Henry the Eighth and Anne. Deep into the oaken timber are carved these mementoes of that long-ago love. At the point where the underground passage from the castle leads into the cellar of Anne's cottage the initials of the two are rudely scratched on a stone flag at the topside of the staircase.

In the wood and stone of the Bull's Lodge the two must have sought to perpetuate their romance, which was soon to end in tragedy.

In the room, where a King of England once wooed ardently, a farmhand of Henry Ford sleeps. And where Henry the Eighth and Anne supped gaily on the choicest of viands and jested with each other across the table, there is naught to remind one that 400 years ago it was a dining room of the Lodge.

The English monarch and his Lady Fair were epicures of the first order, and notable were the feasts staged in Anne's small dining-room. But the lureful charmer of Bull's Lodge was not competent as a cook, and so it was up to Henry to bring the viands, victuals, and vintages.

AND there were times when Anne was not at all pleased with the provender brought by her royal wooer. She had a most aristocratic palate, and was forever hankering after such delicacies as good beef, carp, and shrimp. Though Henry supplied the capricious young woman with many dishes direct from his own table, she was apt to grumble.

She was a bold and daring little creature, and, as subsequent events were to prove, just a wee bit too bold and daring for her own good.

Her family and relatives deplored her folly in belittling the King's munificence. She was deaf to all warning hints, and laughed at their warnings. She was the mistress of Bull's Lodge, and if Henry did not like the treatment accorded him there, well, he could betake himself elsewhere.

There was a little incident which, however, was to ruffle her calm, during the days when Henry was a frequent visitor to the Chelmsford cottage. A book, assuming to be of a prophetic character, and of a similar class with oracular hieroglyphic almanacs of succeeding centuries, was mysteriously placed in her bed-chamber one day, on seeing which she called her devoted servant, Anne Saville.

"Come hither, Nan," said Miss Boleyn. "See, here is a book of prophecies; this is the King, this is the Queen, and this is myself, with my head cut off."

Anne Saville answered, "If I thought it true, I would not have myself have him were he an emperor."

"Tut! Nan," replied Anne Boleyn. "I think the book a bauble, and I am resolved to have him, that my

ST. PETERSBURG, Florida.

"IT WOULD indeed be a thrill to any girl to have a star named after her," thinks Miss Sylvia Peterson, who is one of the few young women on the records who is an out-and-out, declared rival of Venus, goddess of pulchritude. Not only does she win beauty contests, but she has set her mind on getting a personal star, celestial body to bear her name and carry it on to immortality. Such is the ambition of Miss Sylvia Peterson of St. Petersburg, Florida.

But she be liable to a charge of rashness for her aspirations, she lives up to the old Latin motto: To the stars by hard work (ad astra per aspera). Miss Peterson's Venus is not so bright as ... it is up to her to prove methodically that it is there at all. She is well equipped to do this, for Sylvia Peterson is one of the six women in America professionally engaged in making telescopes. In addition she is an ardent amateur astronomer, with some expectations of being a professional. The star she has her eye on now is one of three uncharted bodies she has discovered in a glass of her own grinding. For weeks she has been watching them and tabulating their courses, trying to determine their relations to other groups and to establish the fact of their having been hitherto unobserved. Thus far they are identified only by three Greek letters, but if her nightly observations confirm Miss Peterson's belief that the pin points of light which she watches are actually what she supposes them to be, it is very likely that astronomers will allow her to name one of them for herself. Then she will join Venus and the other immortal ladies whose names are perpetuated by stars, constellations and planets in the sky.

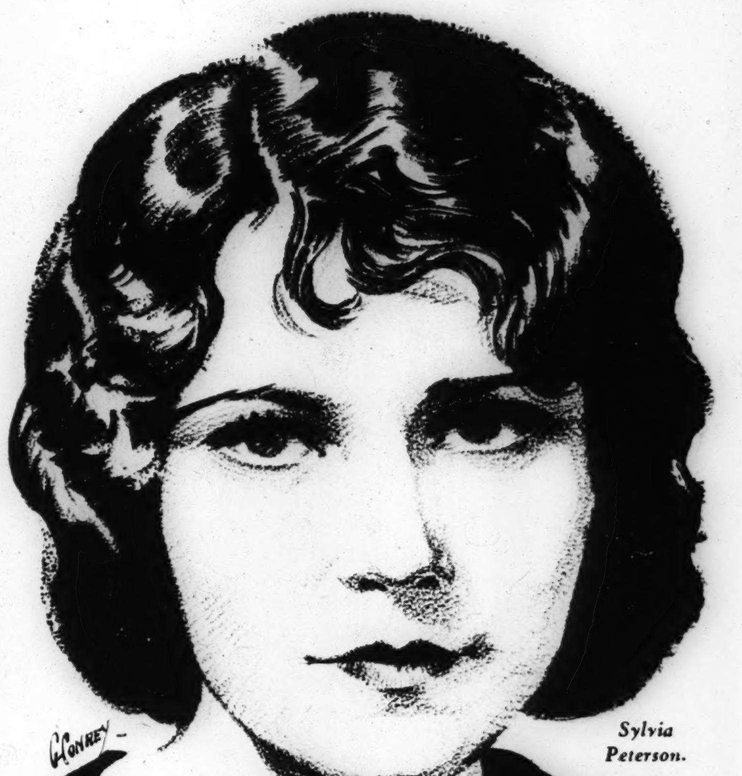
Sylvia Peterson is a graduate of Syracuse University. That is where she got her first enthusiasm for the science of astronomy. But she got more distinction as a co-ed by being chosen as one of the most beautiful girls at the university when James Montgomery Flagg, the well-known magazine illustrator, visited there in search of subject matter for his paintings.

After her graduation Miss Peterson hoped she might take a doctor's degree in astronomy. Unfortunately that is an expensive project. It ordinarily involves five or six years' residence at a large university (Miss Peterson wanted to go to Harvard), tuition fees, money to purchase expensive books. Unable to get a fellowship, Miss Peterson had to resign herself to carrying on her studies on her own. If she could not take up her favorite science as a professional, she would have to content herself with making astronomy her hobby.

But she soon found that even that requires equipment—notably a good telescope. She didn't have one and she didn't know where to get the thousands of dollars a really good instrument costs. So that is how she happened to get into the business of making them.

Her first telescope took months to grind. When it was finished, she demonstrated it at the 1930 convention of the National Amateur Telescope Makers Society, at Springfield, Vermont. Those who inspected it declared that the workmanship was exceptionally fine. They encouraged her to go on.

So Miss Peterson sold her first effort to a school near St. Petersburg and proceeded to make another. Since then she has sold several to schools in the vicinity, improving her sales field by giving classes and lectures. Quite apart from her work in grinding lenses, Miss Peterson has become the acknowledged local authority on matters pertaining to star gazing.



Sylvia Peterson.

The craft she practices involves something more than that, however. Telescope lenses must be ground with a breath-taking degree of accuracy. If they are to be of real value to astronomers, the two reflectors on which the image of a celestial object is magnified and presented to the eye must be symmetrical to one-one-millionth of an inch. To get the surface that smooth and exact, Miss Peterson uses carborundum. Using six grades of carborundum in successive grindings, it took 300 hours of work to bring the speculum of her latest instrument to the required parabaloid of revolutions.

But astronomy does not occupy Miss Peterson's entire time. She also teaches Sunday school and wins beauty contests. The last one she entered won her the right to wear a crown of stars and to kiss the Mayor of St. Petersburg. She insisted on the stars—refused to be crowned with any other kind of crown and said she wouldn't kiss the Mayor unless she had them. Of course, she got them.

The Swede Who Has Become Sculptor to the World

DETROIT.

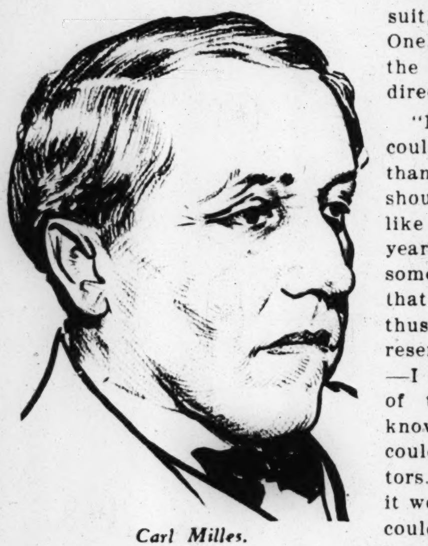
WHEN Carl Milles, Swedish sculptor, was at Cranbrook, a suburb of Detroit, finishing up two great statues—one a fountain for Stockholm, the other a war memorial for St. Paul, Minnesota—visitors came to him from all over the world. Critics wrote to him from every art center of Europe for advance information about the work he was doing. Artists and architects trooped from all over the Middle West to see the plaster casts.

For the Swedish sculptor's reputation has leapt by geometrical progression and his admirers are unrestrained in their enthusiasm for his work. The excitement he brought with him to St. Louis three years ago is duplicated wherever he goes.

With all this Milles is the soul of modesty. Even in telling how pleased he is with the curiosity his latest work has aroused (he counts on his fingers the European cities which have asked for news of the Orpheus fountain which is now being cast in Stockholm) no one could conceivably think him anything but self-effacing in discussing his work. In the most objective way he tells how the statue of Folke Fylbiter (one casting of which is in the City Art Museum at St. Louis) was exhibited in Paris: The museum directors at the Louvre were so enthusiastic about the piece that they had it moved into the street, where every casual passerby would see it.

That kind of success has not changed Milles' ideals or artistic methods an iota. He maintains that an artist who refuses to experiment and agrees to specialize in a set style which will "take" smothers all vitality and sincerity in his art. After the Folke Fylbiter episode a prominent dealer in Paris proposed that Milles deal exclusively with him, stipulating, however, that Milles must formalize his style so that people would recognize his manner in every piece. The offer was rejected without a moment's consideration.

A charming, quiet humor comes out as he describes artists who specialize. One, who depicted nothing but fish, told Milles once: "When people see a fish, then they know that is I." This humor, kindly and anecdotal, crops up at every occasion—even in his sculpture. He points to a small bronze statue of Sven Hedin, the noted Swedish explorer who was recently captured by Chinese bandits. Hedin is a good friend of Milles' and the sculptor is fond of telling about him and the members of his family.



Carl Milles.

The statue was made on the occasion of the explorer's first visit to America. It shows Hedin mounted on a camel, as he was when he explored the Gobi desert. He sits there, awkwardly straddling his baggage, taking his bearings with a sextant. When Hedin saw it he chuckled and explained that one has to get down from a camel to take a sextant bearing; there is too much rocking around up there. Milles objected. Mariners can take bearings from rocking ships; why shouldn't explorers take them from the backs of camels? Hedin was struck by the logic of this. "We scientists have always something to learn from you artists!" he exclaimed. "I'll try it." He did, and it worked.

Milles' friends say that he is something of a connoisseur of death-bed sentences. He was present when Hedin's mother died of paralysis. "Ah, Carl," she greeted him, "I am so glad you have come. Here everybody is weeping. I know that you will not do that. There is nothing sad about dying . . . I find it very interesting. Now, you see, I feel nothing in my body. But my mind is still quite clear. While I am waiting won't you please tell me about the new electric refrigerators."

As he stands there talking of trivia one wonders where Milles keeps the tremendous reserve of dynamic energy which is responsible for the great work he has accomplished. He is a man of medium size, not at all imposing looking. The contours of his face are soft and rounded, like the face of a child. He speaks very slowly, scarcely moving his lips. There is nothing smart about his appearance; his costume an immaculately pressed gray business suit, white shirt, thin black tie. One senses rather than perceives the high emotional energy which directs his work.

"If I were rich," he says, "I could not possibly do more work than I am doing now. But I should not have to hurry so. I like to take my time—years and years if necessary. In America some people do not understand that attitude. (Milles is a keen enthusiast for America despite this reservation.) People write to me—I wish I could show you some of their letters—they want to know how much money they could make if they became sculptors. They want to know how long it would take. One man is sure he could make a lot; he wants to know if he could learn in three years. Now, of course one cannot think of such things at all. I do not know how long it took me to become a sculptor. It started long before I was born. I was always drawing and modeling even as a little child—always. You say I did not have to hurry with these statues? But ten years—that is not a long time."

The two pieces he has just completed seem, however, to have been completely uninhibited by any time restrictions. The St. Paul war memorial—it represents Indians participating in a peace ceremony—was originally to have been cast in "white" glass. This would have had to be cast in 60 sections, each of which would have taken three years to cool. Milles was eager to make this experiment, but the expense was considered too great and creamy Mexican onyx was chosen as a substitute. Artistically Milles was satisfied. But it was a disappointment losing the chance to work in a new medium.

As to the Orpheus fountain, which is to be done in bronze and placed before the new Concert House at Stockholm, Milles never did a more finished piece of work. It consists of a basin, vaguely four-sided but of a most intricate angular design, surmounted by a number of figures, a bit larger than life-sized. The central figure (the monument is musical in its motif) represents the legendary Greek musican, Orpheus. He is mounted on a grotesque pedestal symbolical of Cerberus, the three-headed guardian of Hades, and is winning an entrance to the underworld by the irresistible quality of his music. Below him the spirits of the dead have a weightless quality which is almost never achieved in sculpture. They seem to float above their pedestals; one has dropped a flower he was holding, a dead leaf falls past another.

THERE is a biographical note in the statue. One of the figures (the only one specifically identified) represents Beethoven. Milles is fond of music and Beethoven is one of his favorite composers. But there is a poignant reference in that figure to the fact that last year, while working on the monument, Milles believed himself to be going blind. He was saved from the composer's tragic fate (being unable to witness his own creations) by a surgical operation. The experience is succinctly expressed in this tragic figure which, Milles explains, is intended to depict Beethoven's deathbed exclamation: "Why, Oh God, did you make me deaf!"

money in your care immediately, and regardless of their wishes to be self-supporting I shall see that they get a monthly allowance." So much for the "irate father."

The man Virginia Gates married is [illegible]6 years old, stocky, powerful and overjoyed at the marriage. He said that until they signed the marriage license he did not know who Virginia was, but it wouldn't have made any difference anyway," he added. McCafferty was born near Chicago and left there about three years ago. Shortly afterwards his father died; his mother is living in Cleveland. He has been unemployed during most of that time. Professionally he is a mechanic; he has also done a lot of taxi driving, odd jobs, farming in the vegetable fields of the Imperial Valley in California. Recently, he has picked up a little money boxing and wrestling. Now he plans to go into the garage business when he and Virginia get out to California and settle down.

Sitting on the porch of Chief Cribbins' house in Boise before they started on a honeymoon with the $250 which her father sent them right after the telephone conversation, Virginia (in a borrowed dress) told the story of her travels and her romance.

"It was nice enough on the ranch," she said, "but I got tired of it. I wanted to travel, so I just left the ranch one day and went to Rock Springs, Wyoming. I had a little money, and it was not hard to find a way to travel. From there I went to Idaho Falls and Twin Falls and then Boise." It was while hiking through Idaho that she met McCafferty.

APPARENTLY Virginia and her husband did not meet for the first time on the highway. They had met about a year before at a rodeo dance in Pinedale, Wyoming. But they seem not to have seen very much of one another until the three weeks when they hitch-hiked to Boise, decided to get married and went to Moscow, Idaho, for the ceremony.

Mrs. McCafferty admitted that hitch-hiking had been difficult.

"But I didn't suffer any undue hardships," Virginia added. "I wasn't compelled to sleep in the open and we didn't go hungry. I had a sombrero when I left the ranch, but I threw it away. The ranch was a nice place; I just got tired of it. And it didn't make any difference to me if the going was a bit rough—once I had met Danny. We love each other and I am the happiest girl in the world and we are going to live in the Imperial Valley."

The McCaffertys didn't stay long in Boise. Virginia gave her husband the money which her father had sent them and they started off to Salt Lake City.

Just what the next step in the couple's romantic experiment will be isn't known. They still plan to settle in Imperial Valley and lead a simple life. Thomas S. Gates is still anxious to see that they have enough to eat. And if there is any disappointment about Virginia's unconventional wedding, nothing has been said about it openly. She is apparently perfectly free to live her life in her own way; and if the recent past is any criterion, she certainly will.

To the repeated demands of the lawyers for return to Mrs. McLean of the $104,000, Means eventually sent word that he had given it, in the dead of night, to a man who had stopped Means' car with a red light and muttered the code number of Mrs. McLean, "11."

This did not go across with the lawyers, and they turned matters over to the Department of Justice. The arrest of Means followed.

Means had said the Fox had served a term in Atlanta with him. A careful check was made of all prisoners who were in that penitentiary during Means' stay, but nothing pertinent developed.

Agent Keith turned his attention to those telephone calls received by Mrs. McLean back in Aiken. One of the calls had come from Durham, North Carolina. Telephone company records there were commandeered and tedious examination showed that a call to Mrs. McLean's cottage in Aiken had been made from a certain booth in a fashionable hotel. On the same day and from the same booth another call had gone to Means' hotel in Aiken.

That was interesting, but not very helpful. Study of the records continued. A "Mr. Fox," using a booth adjoining that used by The Fox, had telephoned a Mrs. Whitaker in Washington.

"Whitaker"—the name arrested Keith. Mr. Fox calling Mrs. Whitaker. Keith grabbed his hat, as the name of Norman T. Whitaker flashed through his mind. That name was well known to Justice agents. They had put Whitaker in Leavenworth for transporting stolen automobiles. They had another case pending against him in Florida. He was a disbarred patent attorney in Washington, with a bad record.

Keith hurried to the files of the Department of Justice, got a photograph of Whitaker and took the picture to Mrs. McLean.

"That is the Fox," she exclaimed. "I would know him among a million."

Hurried inquiry disclosed that Whitaker had been absent from his usual haunts in Washington for months. Again telephone records provided an essential clew. It was learned there had been numerous phone conversations between the home of Whitaker's sister and a certain house in Brooklyn, New York.

The Brooklyn house was placed under day-and-night surveillance, and before long Whitaker walked straight into the arms of John Keith and his men. Mrs. McLean, who was in New York in anticipation of the capture, identified Whitaker as the Fox, with unconcealed loathing.

Means and Whitaker were convicted of conspiracy to defraud Mrs. McLean. Means also was convicted, alone, of stealing $104,000 and was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary. The money has never been found.

In May, 1933, just a little more than a year after the Lindbergh kidnaping, the Fox went into hiding again—this time in a den at the District of Columbia Jail.

The vociferous Means, somewhat chastened in demeanor but hiding a growing respect for Federal investigators, went back to a Federal penitentiary.

Went Through a Tunnel to Woo Anne Boleyn

And Anne had him as a husband, but she could not hold the love of the enigmatic Henry. Regardless of her beauty, and her love, Anne had failed to bear him a son, and so Henry began casting his eye about in other quarters for another wife. The daughter, presented him by the Spanish Catherine, was not looked upon as a possible occupant of the throne.

But in ridding himself of Anne, he made up his mind that he was not going to have all the bother and worry that he had in divorcing Catherine. While Anne, during her spinsterhood, was by no stretch of the imagination a paragon of virtue, her conduct as the Queen of England was quite in keeping with her exalted station.

She was charged with unfaithfulness to His Royal Majesty, tried and convicted and beheaded in the Tower of London. The charges against the consort of Henry the Eighth were trumped up by the henchmen of the monarch, so as to afford him a direct and easy way to claiming Jane Seymour as his next bride.

But what shall be said of Henry the Eighth, who on that eventful morning—the 19th of May, 1536—attired for the chase, with his huntsmen and hounds around him, stood under the spreading oak in Richmond Park, breathlessly awaiting the signal gun from the Tower which was to announce the execution of his once "entirely beloved Anne Boleyn."

At last when the sullen sound of the death-gun was heard, he joyously cried, "Ha, ha! the deed is done, uncouple the hounds and away!"

How different were Henry's feelings on this day to what they had been a few years previously, when, through an underground passage, he was sneaking to be at the side of Anne in her little cottage near Chelmsford.

Though he had Anne put to death, the English King, through either forgetfulness or utter disregard, never sought to remove the telltale initials, carved deeply into the oaken joists and beams of Bull's Cottage. Thus, the story of Henry the Eighth's love for Anne Boleyn is again in the news, and to the Ford farm in Essex the curious are flocking to glimpse the scenes of a most tragic romance.

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

The moment the hound saw Red he chased him and forgot all about O. Hum. After a long, hard chase Red eluded the hound and, feeling O. Hum had played him a mean trick, returned to teach him a lesson. As Red neared the jail he met Harry Hoarder and Tom Turtle who, being afraid of the fox, ran into the jail and held the door shut. Red tried to break down the door but after a bit gave that up. END OF BRIDGE GAME THAT LASTED A DECADE
Somewhat more than 10 years ago four card addicts in Superior, Wis., began a game of auction bridge to last until one player won 1,000,000 points; the stakes, a dinner. Recently, Mrs. F. O. Linquist won with 1,006,718 points. One contestant died during the match.

THE MAHATMA'S CHIEF OPPONENT
Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, who is considered in Bombay to be the leader of political opposition to the Indian saint, Mahatma Gandhi.

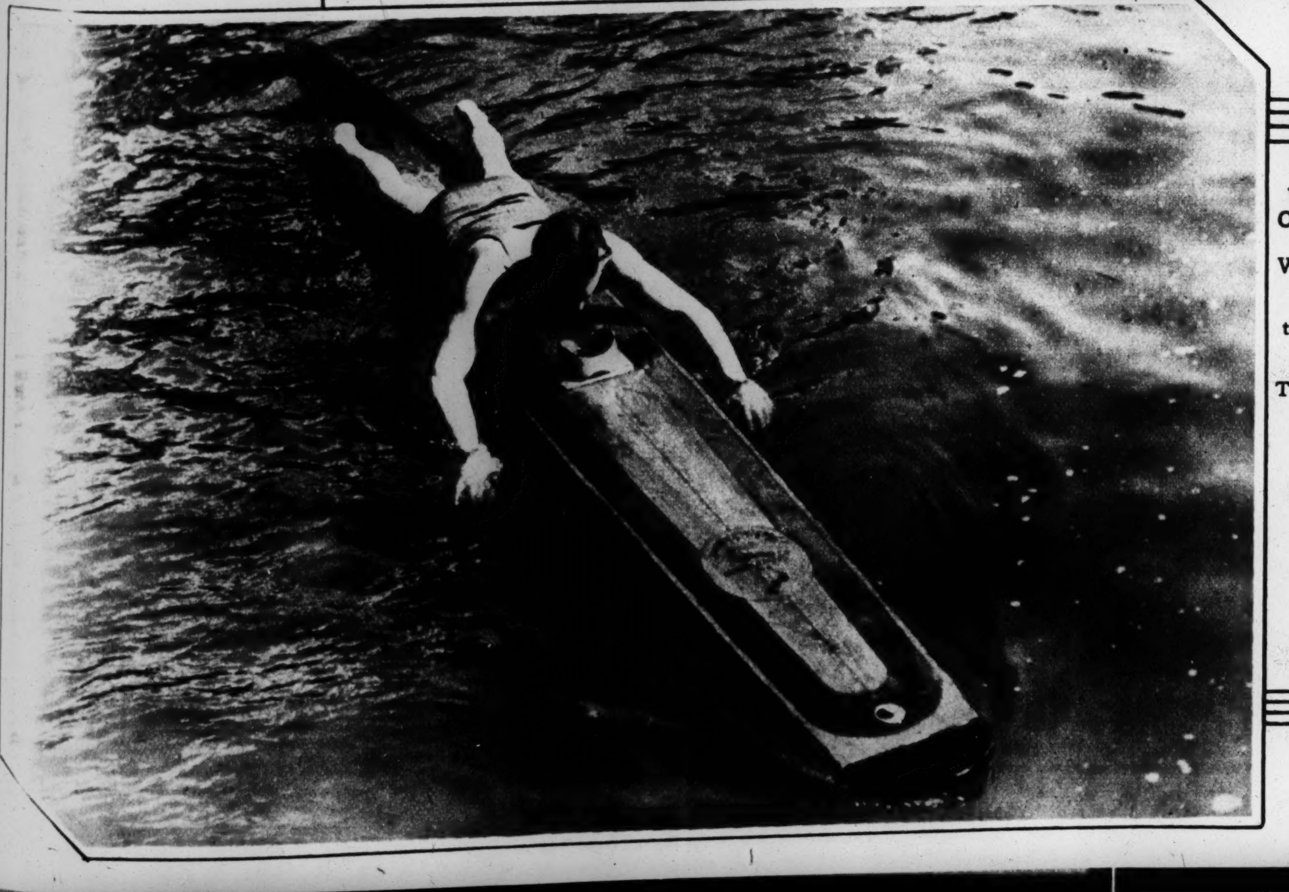
AN AMERICAN BATTLEFIELD OF TODAY
The valley of the Gila River in New Mexico and Arizona has been harried and destroyed by one of the country's leading public enemies, soil erosion. PWA funds have been appropriated to salvage this once fertile plain.



WATER BOX ON A PADDLE BOARD
With this device it is possible to inspect the ocean floor to a depth of 40 feet. The paddle board is a comparatively new craft and Santa Monica, Cal., life guards are toying with the idea of using this one in rescue work.

NOT A SKYSCRAPER THAT FELL OUT OF MARS

This is the battleship Arizona, plowing through waves which would scarcely trouble a windjammer, but make a dreadnaught ride like a porpoise. She will take part in the Navy day ceremonies next Saturday.

VICARIOUS ATHLETICS—The substitutes' bench provides a fascinating study in facial expression during a game between Ohio State and the University of Indiana. Incidentally, the faces do not indicate worry, for the teammates of these Ohioans won by a score of 33 to 0.

WHY. THERE ISN'T A SHARK ANYWHERE AROUND THESE WATERS!
IT'S NO USE! THEY ALL REFUSE TO PUT ON A DIVING SUIT!
SAY, I'VE GOT AN IDEA! LOWER THE SHOREBOAT ---- I'M GOING TO TRY OUT MY PLAN!
BORI, I UNDERSTAND YOU CAN SWIM UNDER WATER FOR OVER TWO MINUTES, IS THAT CORRECT?
YES!
REMEMBER WHAT I TOLD YOU TO DO NOW! I'LL HELP WRAP THESE BANANA LEAVES AROUND YOU!
THINK YOUR PLAN WILL WORK?
JUST YOU WAIT ---- THEY'LL ALL BE WANTING TO PUT ON A DIVING SUIT!
HEY, YOU FELLAS! MERMAID OFF THE STARBOARD BOW!
I TOLD YOU WE'D SETTLE IT BY DRAWING LOTS --- AND "BILGEY" WINS! - PUT ON THE DIVING SUIT, "BILGEY" AND GOOD LUCK!
DID YOU SEE THE TREASURE DOWN THERE, "BILGEY"?

OH OH! SOMEONE AT THE DOOR.
MY MEDICAL BOOK?
YES, OLD MAN, I'D LIKE TO BORROW THAT BIG RED ONE YOU'VE GOT.
YOU GAVE HIM YOUR MEDICAL BOOK? DID HE SAY WHO WAS SICK?
I STARTED TO TALK ABOUT THAT, BUT HE WAS IN A BIG HURRY.
AS USUAL, THEY'VE GOT THE SHADE PULLED AWAY DOWN SO WE CAN'T SEE ANYTHING. SHE HASN'T BEEN ON SPEAKING TERMS WITH ME FOR WEEKS, SO I CAN'T VERY WELL GO OVER THERE.
SHE SPEAKS TO THE WOMAN UPSTAIRS, NOW AND THEN. I'M GOING TO RUN UP AND SEE IF I CAN FIND OUT ANYTHING.
OKAY, JO.
ANOTHER BOOK, BENNY? AHEM.... WELL WHAT..?
IT'S THE THIN BLUE ONE ON NERVES. HOW TO RELINE THE BRAKES ON YOUR NERVES. SOME TITLE LIKE THAT. YOU SHOWED IT TO ME ONE TIME. REMEMBER?
THAT WOMAN UPSTAIRS IS OUT. IMAGINE!
HE WAS HERE AGAIN WHILE YOU WERE GONE. THIS TIME HE GOT MY, DON'T BE NERVOUS ABOUT YOUR NERVES BOOK.
ANOTHER BOOK? AND ON NERVES! WHAT DID HE SAY..... DIDN'T YOU ASK HIM ANY QUESTIONS?
I DIDN'T HAVE TIME. AS SOON AS I GOT THE BOOK, HE GRABBED IT AND RAN INTO HIS HOUSE.
SUCH A DIPPY BUSINESS! ALL THIS BEATING AROUND THE BUSH! GEORGE, WHY DON'T YOU GO OVER IN A STRAIGHT-FORWARD MANNER AND ASK THAT MAN WHO'S ILL?
OKAY.
STEPPED OVER BECAUSE ON ACCOUNT OF YOU GETTING THE MEDICAL BOOKS, I WONDERED IF THERE WAS ANYTHING ELSE YOU MIGHT NEED AND.....
WELL YES, GEORGE OLD MAN, HAVE YOU GOT A COUPLE OF GOOD STRONG NAILS?
NAILS! HE WANTS NAILS? ARE YOU SURE HE SAID THAT? DID YOU ASK HIM..?
I'LL DO THAT WHEN I HAND HIM THE NAILS
NAILS! AND TWO MEDICAL BOOKS! SUCH A MESS!
WELL WHAT...?
WHEN I HANDED HIM THE NAILS HE THANKED ME AND WHEN I STARTED TO TALK HE SAID, KINDLY EXCUSE ME, AND SHUT THE DOOR.
THE VERY IDEA! SUCH A WISHY-WASHY AFFAIR. AFRAID TO ASK THAT MAN ONE OR TWO QUESTIONS. HA! YOU'RE NOT SO BACKWARD AT ASKING ME QUESTIONS.
SH-H! I HEARD HIM HAMMERING A MINUTE OR SO AGO.
YES, BENJAMIN, THOSE TWO BOOKS DO VERY WELL IN PLACE OF THAT BED-LEG YOU BUSTED, BUT THE NAILS ARE TOO LARGE.
I WAS GOING TO ASK BUNGLE FOR SMALLER NAILS, BABE, BUT DIDN'T WANT TO LET HIM GET STARTED ASKING QUESTIONS AND TALKING ME DIZZY SO LATE AT NIGHT.

I LIKE A TURKEY DINNER WITH ALL THE TRIMMIN'S MORE THAN ANY MEAL I CAN THINK OF.
JUST IMAGINE, A TURKEY DONE NICE AN' BROWN WITH PLENTY OF DRESSIN' AN' CRANBERRY SAUCE—
—MASHED POTATOES AN' CELERY, I TELL YA THERE'S NOTHIN' LIKE IT.
VERY NICE, INDEED, BUT GIVE ME A BIG STEAK.
FRIED POTATOES AN' SLICED TOMATOES AN' TOP IT OFF WITH A BIG PIECE OF BERRY PIE.
THAT WOULD SUIT ME ANY DAY.
WELL, I COULD GO FOR ANY ONE OF THEM, BUT MY FAVORITE IS ROAST BEEF AN' GRAVY.
BAKED POTATOES AN' A FEW PEAS, AN' FOR DESSERT, PLENTY OF ICE CREAM.
HOW WOULD THAT HIT THE SPOT?
NOT BAD, BUT I LIKE PORK CHOPS. THEY'RE VERY TASTY.
AN' FOR THE WIND-UP, STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE FULL OF WHIPPED CREAM

Rosie's BEAU
BY GEO. McMANUS
WELL- I'LL SEE IF ROSIE IS MAD AT ME OR REALLY LOVES ME- I'M GOING TO SEND HER THIS NOTE, SAYING I'M GOING TO COMMIT SUICIDE- I'LL HAVE A MESSENGER TAKE IT RIGHT UP TO HER HOUSE-
I REALLY SHOULD NOT BE ANGRY AT ARCHIE- I'LL GO RIGHT DOWN TO HIS OFFICE AND MAKE UP-
HOW TO KEEP FROM GETTING OLD
BUT, SIR! IT'S FOUR O'CLOCK IN THE MORNIN'- WE MUST LOCK UP-FINE- I DONT MIND BEIN' LOCKED IN-
NOW- I'LL GO DOWN TO THE RIVER- WHEN SHE READS THAT NOTE, SHELL COME RUNNING TO SAVE ME-WHERE IS ARCHIE THIS MORNING?
I DONT KNOW- HE IS SO UNIMPORTANT WE DONT EVEN KNOW WHEN HE IS HERE-
GEE! I SENT THAT NOTE, SAYIN' I'D JUMP IN AT TEN- IT'S ELEVEN AN' SHE HASN'T APPEARED YET!

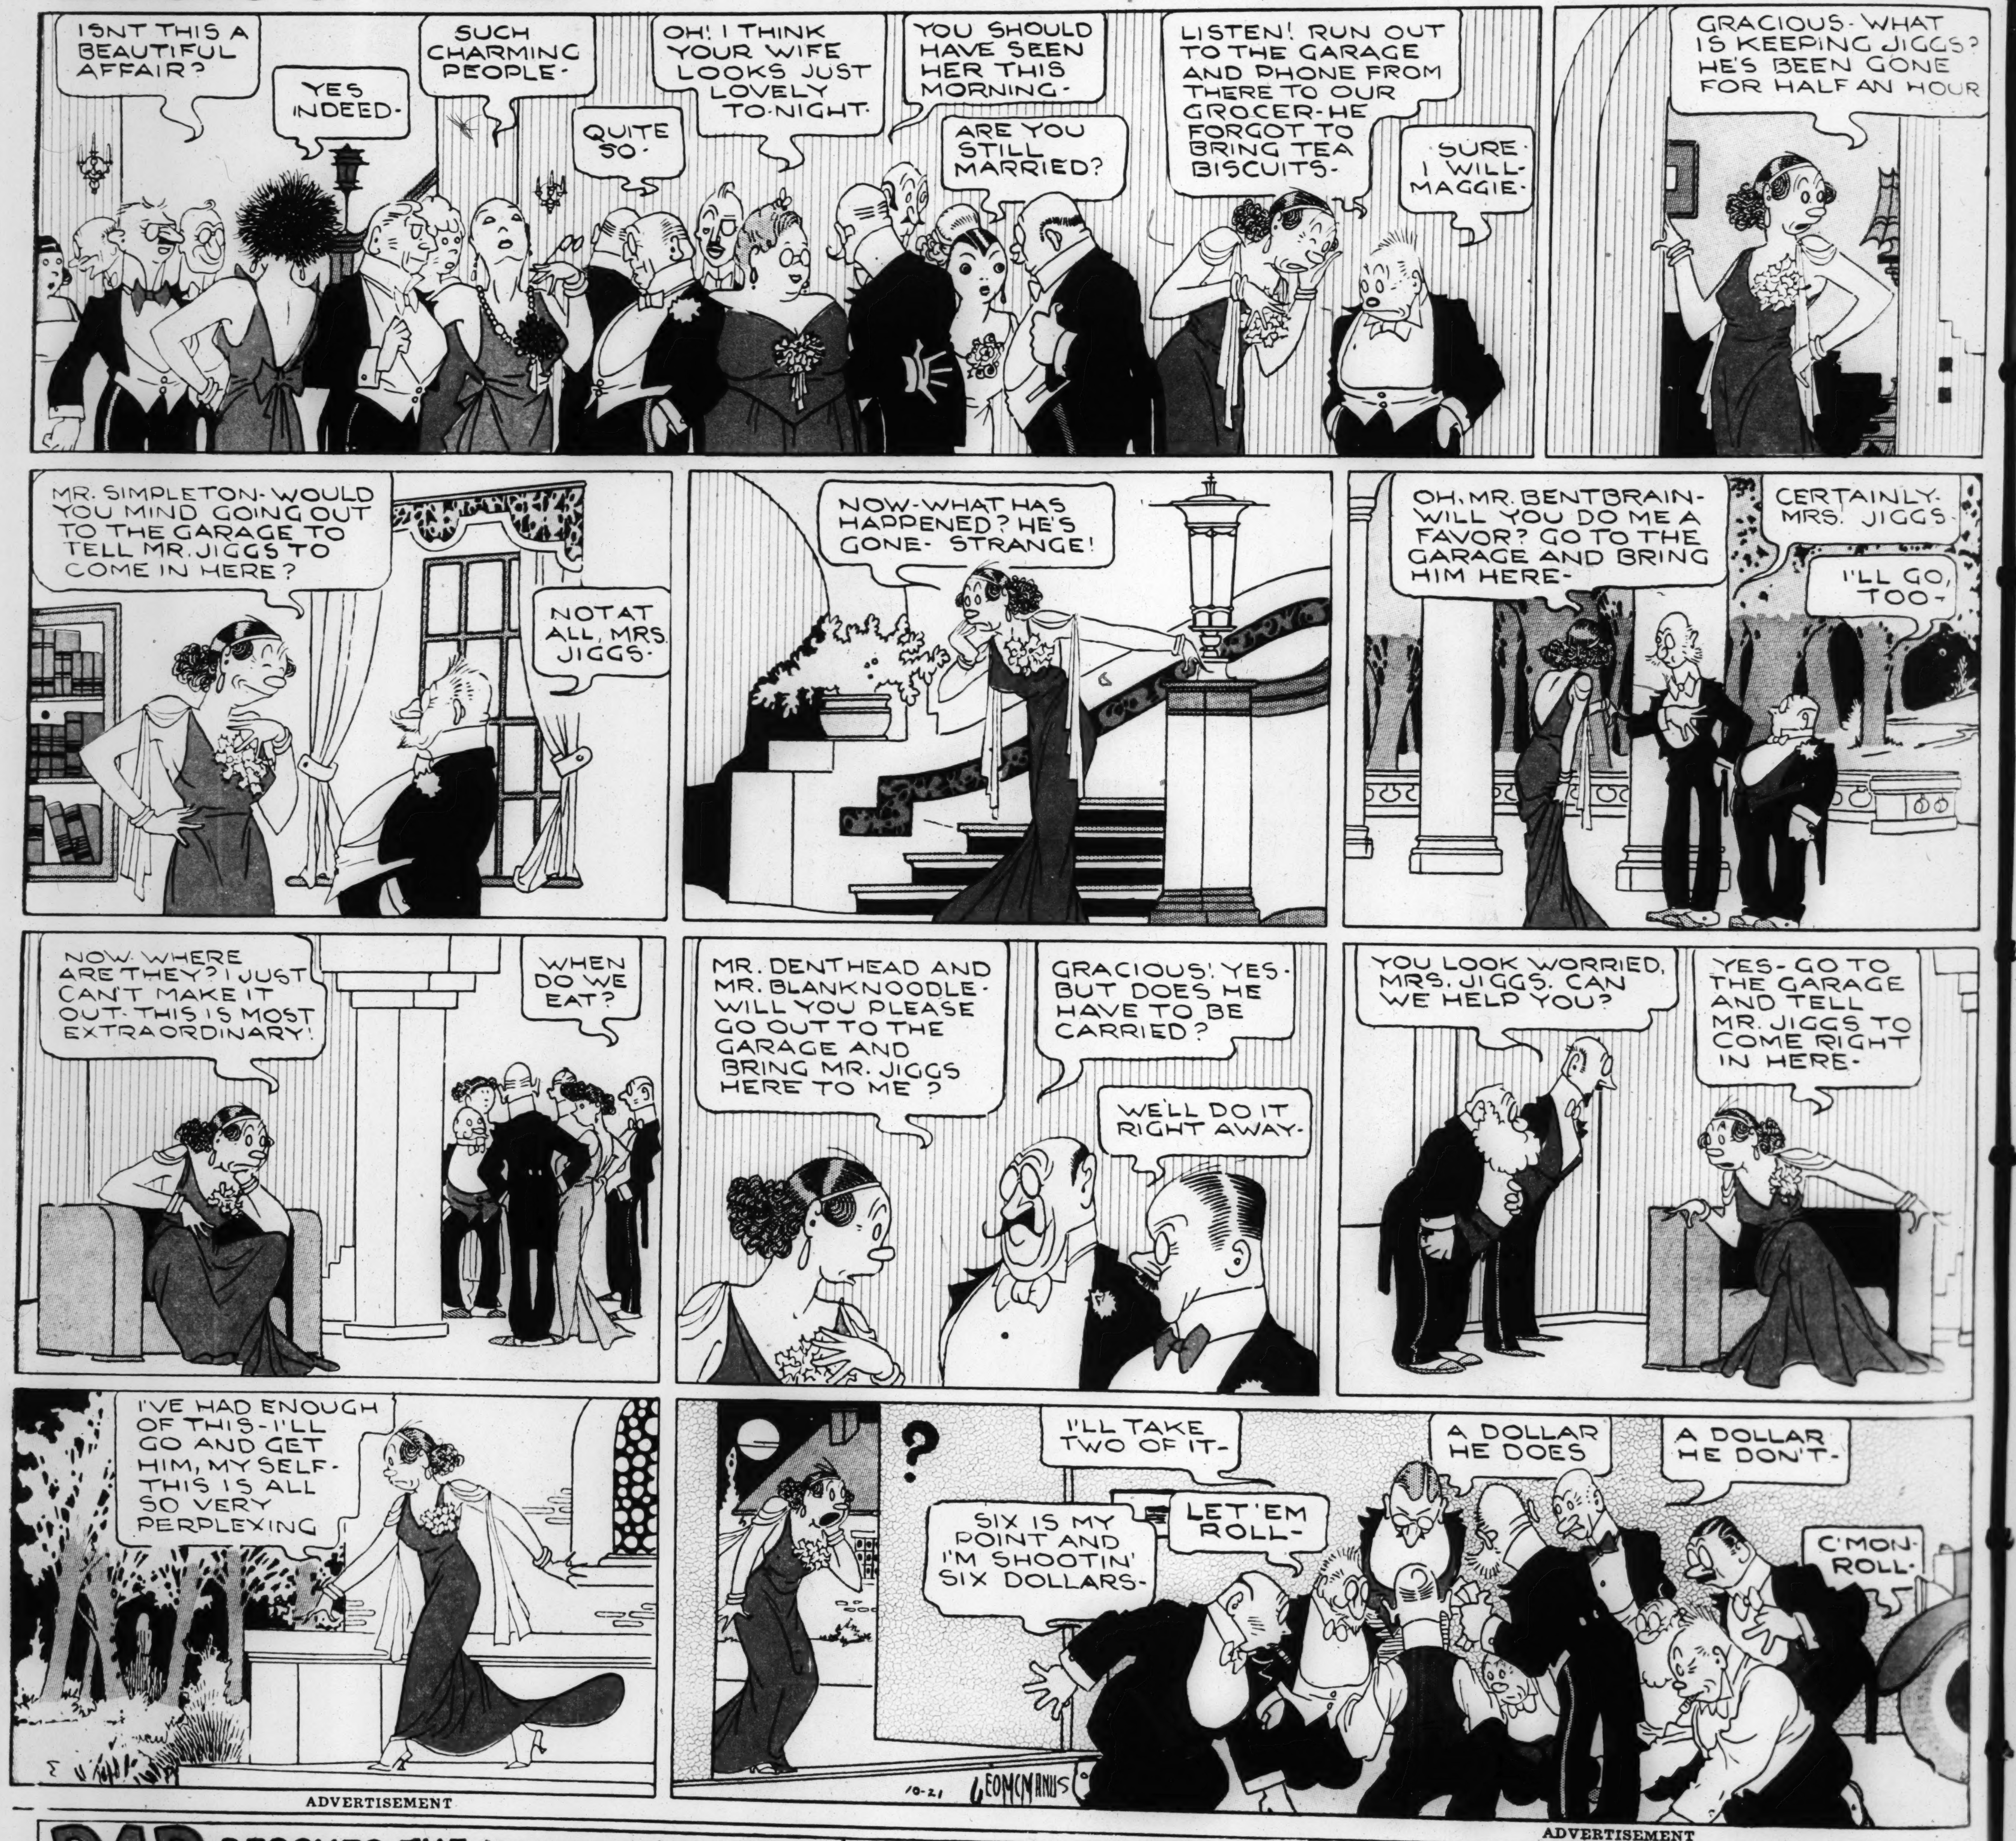
By McMANUS



ISNT THIS A BEAUTIFUL AFFAIR?
SUCH CHARMING PEOPLE-
QUITE SO-
OH! I THINK YOUR WIFE LOOKS JUST LOVELY TO-NIGHT-
YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN HER THIS MORNING-ARE YOU STILL MARRIED?
LISTEN! RUN OUT TO THE GARAGE AND PHONE FROM THERE TO OUR GROCER- HE FORGOT TO BRING TEA BISCUITS-
SURE I WILL- MAGGIE-
MR. SIMPLETON- WOULD YOU MIND GOING OUT TO THE GARAGE TO TELL MR. JIGGS TO COME IN HERE?
NOT AT ALL, MRS. JIGGS-
NOW- WHAT HAS HAPPENED? HE'S GONE- STRANGE!
OH, MR. BENTBRAIN- WILL YOU DO ME A FAVOR? GO TO THE GARAGE AND BRING HIM HERE-
CERTAINLY- MRS. JIGGS-
I'LL GO, TOO-
WHEN DO WE EAT?
MR. DENTHEAD AND MR. BLANKNOODLE- WILL YOU PLEASE GO OUT TO THE GARAGE AND BRING MR. JIGGS HERE TO ME?
GRACIOUS! YES- BUT DOES HE HAVE TO BE CARRIED?
WE'LL DO IT RIGHT AWAY-
YOU LOOK WORRIED, MRS. JIGGS. CAN WE HELP YOU?
YES- GO TO THE GARAGE AND TELL MR. JIGGS TO COME RIGHT IN HERE-
I'VE HAD ENOUGH OF THIS- I'LL GO AND GET HIM, MY SELF- THIS IS ALL SO VERY PERPLEXING
I'LL TAKE TWO OF IT-
A DOLLAR HE DOES A DOLLAR HE DON'T-
SIX IS MY POINT AND I'M SHOOTIN' SIX DOLLARS-
LET 'EM ROLL-
C'MON- ROLL-

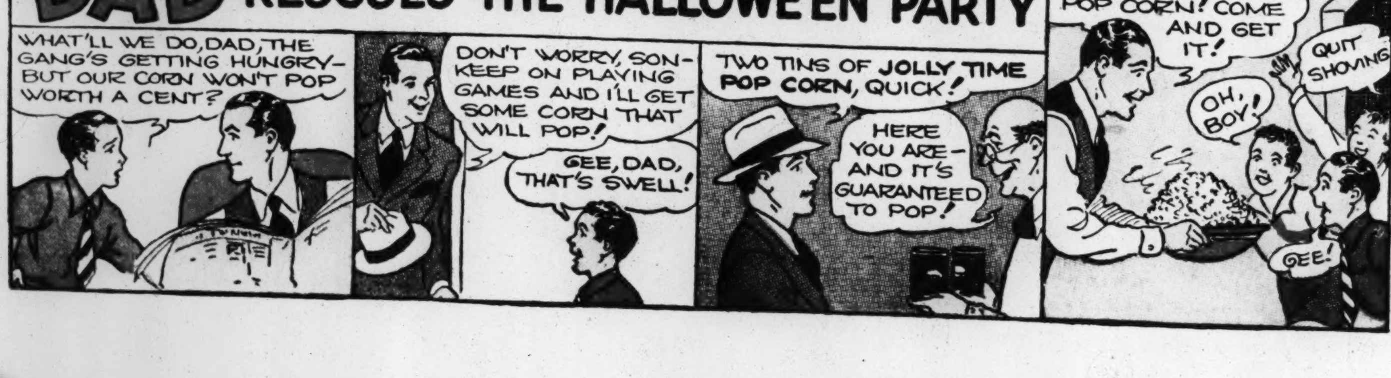
DAD RESCUES THE HALLOWE'EN PARTY



WHAT'LL WE DO, DAD, THE GANG'S GETTING HUNGRY- BUT OUR CORN WON'T POP WORTH A CENT?
DON'T WORRY, SON- KEEP ON PLAYING GAMES AND I'LL GET SOME CORN THAT WILL POP!
GEE, DAD, THAT'S SWELL!
TWO TINS OF JOLLY TIME POP CORN, QUICK!
HERE YOU ARE- AND IT'S GUARANTEED TO POP!
HOT BUTTERED POP CORN! COME AND GET IT!
QUIT SHOVING
GEE!

"Gee, Dad, that Jolly Time Pop Corn sure put the party over. What makes it pop so much better?"

"Well, son, Jolly Time Pop Corn is Volumized. That means it's treated by a special patented process which substantially increases the popping volume, and makes the popped corn far more tender than would otherwise be possible. In order to pop perfectly, pop corn must contain just the right percentage of moisture. The trouble with ordinary pop corn is that it dries out, loses its moisture, and then just can't pop right."

"Why doesn't Jolly Time dry out?"

"Because, after being Volumized, Jolly Time Pop Corn has the exact percentage of moisture needed for perfect popping. Then Jolly Time is sealed in air-tight tins so that the moisture just can't escape. That's why every tin of Jolly Time is guaranteed to pop and half the fun of pop corn is in popping it."

"Say, I'm going to get Jolly Time Pop Corn every time."

Jolly Time is a special variety of the finest hulless pop corn. That's why it's free from annoying hulls and tough fibers. Every tin absolutely guaranteed to pop perfectly. Get Jolly Time from your grocer, and enjoy the finest pop corn you ever tasted.

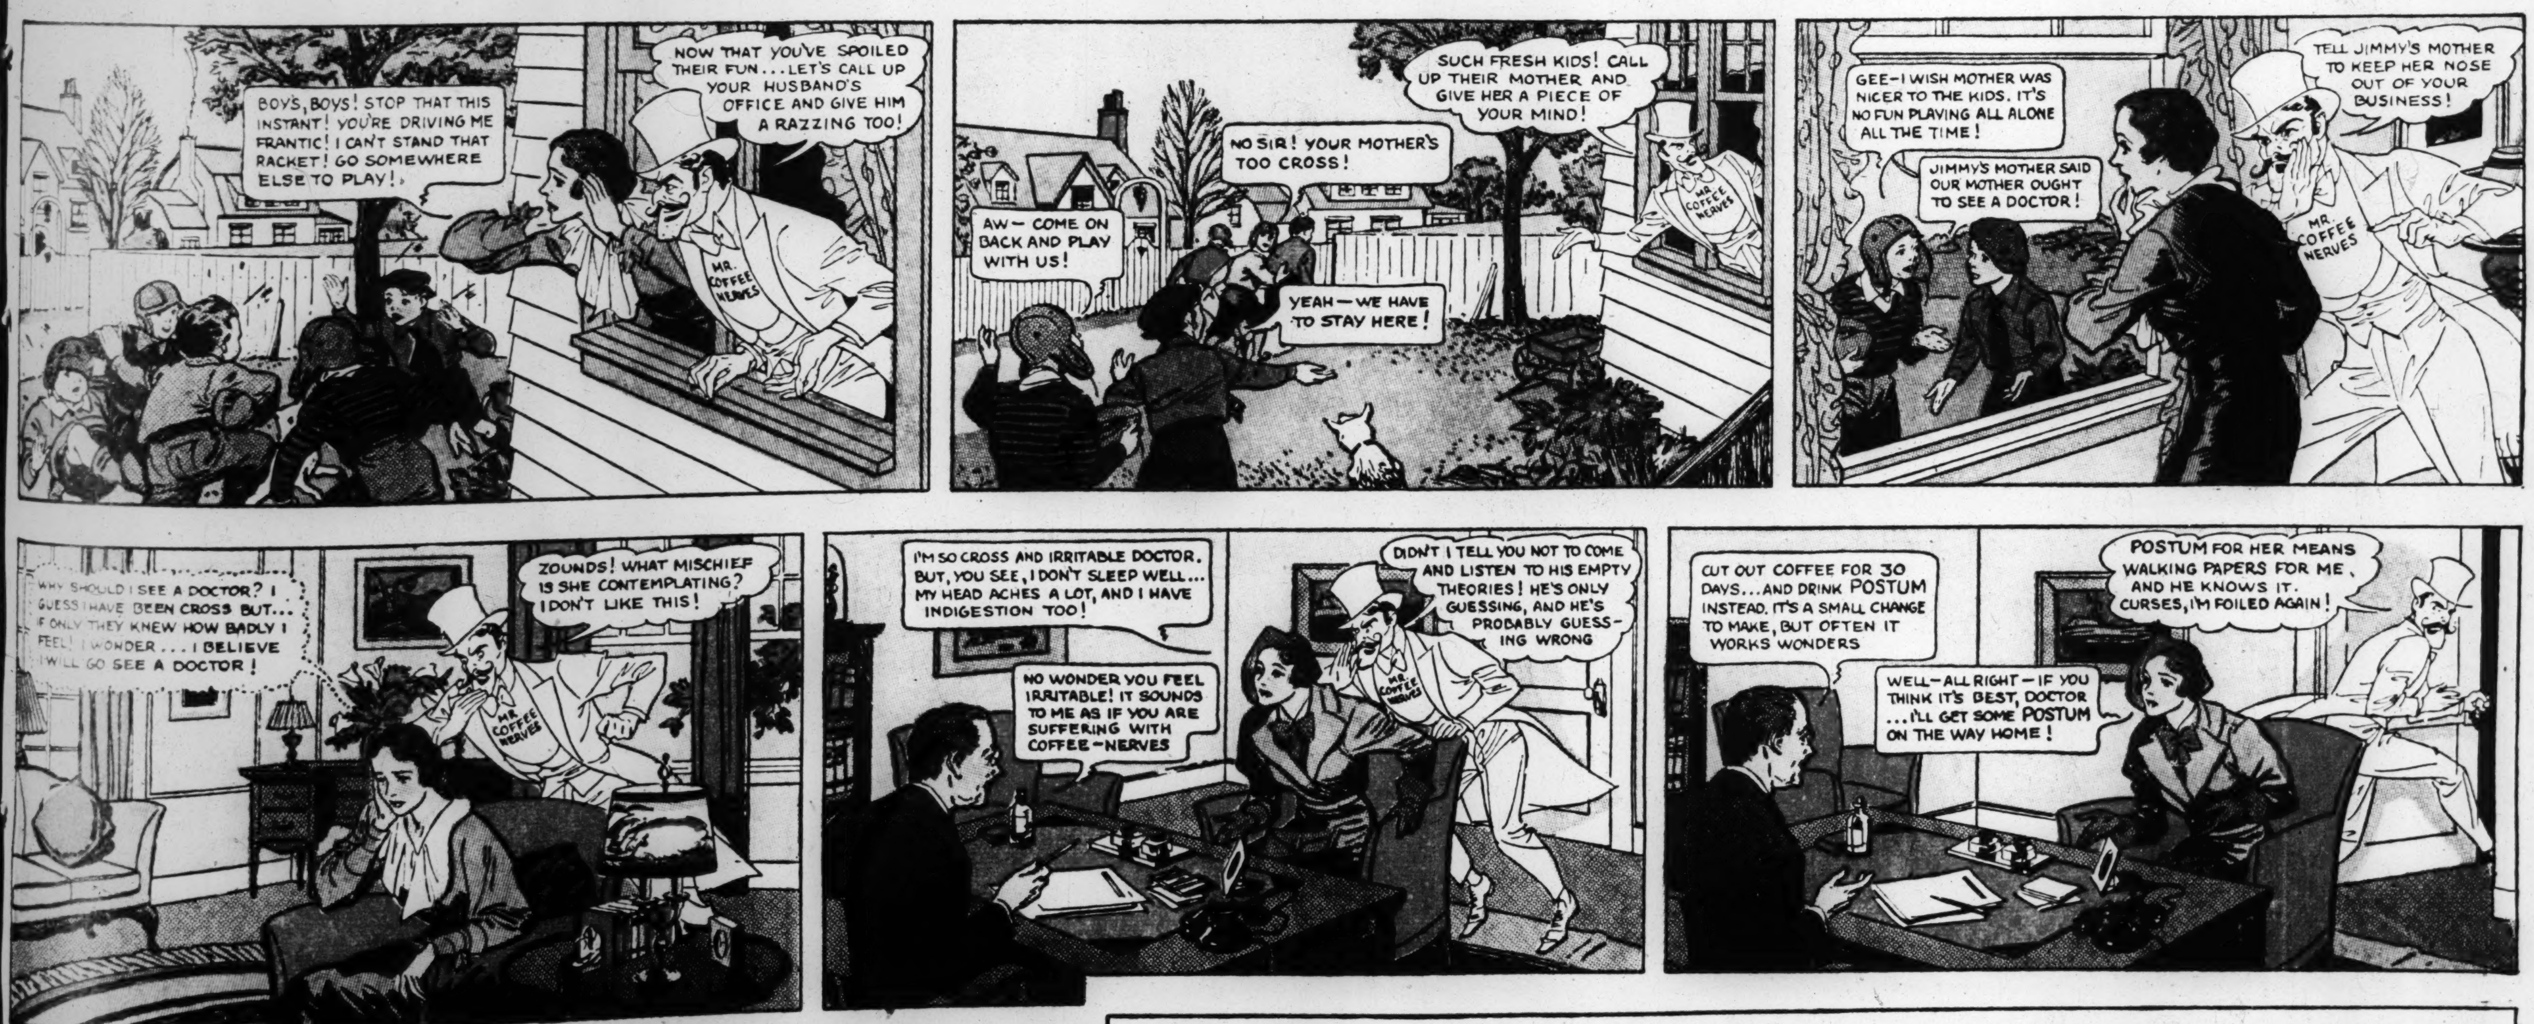
Mr. COFFEE-NERVES . . . he's thrown for-a loss

AN ADVERTISEMENT of GENERAL FOODS



BOYS, BOYS! STOP THAT THIS INSTANT! YOU'RE DRIVING ME FRANTIC! I CAN'T STAND THAT RACKET! GO SOMEWHERE ELSE TO PLAY!
NOW THAT YOU'VE SPOILED THEIR FUN . . . LET'S CALL UP YOUR HUSBAND'S OFFICE AND GIVE HIM A RAZZING TOO!
MR. COFFEE NERVES
NO SIR! YOUR MOTHER'S TOO CROSS!
AW — COME ON BACK AND PLAY WITH US!
YEAH — WE HAVE TO STAY HERE!
GEE — I WISH MOTHER WAS NICER TO THE KIDS. IT'S NO FUN PLAYING ALL ALONE ALL THE TIME!
JIMMY'S MOTHER SAID OUR MOTHER OUGHT TO SEE A DOCTOR!
TELL JIMMY'S MOTHER TO KEEP HER NOSE OUT OF YOUR BUSINESS!
WHY SHOULD I SEE A DOCTOR? I GUESS I HAVE BEEN CROSS BUT . . . IF ONLY THEY KNEW HOW BADLY I FEEL! I WONDER . . . I BELIEVE I WILL GO SEE A DOCTOR!
ZOUNDS! WHAT MISCHIEF IS SHE CONTEMPLATING? I DON'T LIKE THIS!
I'M SO CROSS AND IRRITABLE DOCTOR. BUT, YOU SEE, I DON'T SLEEP WELL . . . MY HEAD ACHES A LOT, AND I HAVE INDIGESTION TOO!
DIDN'T I TELL YOU NOT TO COME AND LISTEN TO HIS EMPTY THEORIES! HE'S ONLY GUESSING, AND HE'S PROBABLY GUESSING WRONG
NO WONDER YOU FEEL IRRITABLE! IT SOUNDS TO ME AS IF YOU ARE SUFFERING WITH COFFEE-NERVES
CUT OUT COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS . . . AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD. IT'S A SMALL CHANGE TO MAKE, BUT OFTEN IT WORKS WONDERS
POSTUM FOR HER MEANS WALKING PAPERS FOR ME, AND HE KNOWS IT. CURSES, I'M FOILED AGAIN!

30 DAYS LATER . . . .
GEE — YOUR MOTHER LETS US PLAY IN THE YARD NOW AND HAS COOKIES FOR US, AND SHE'S SWELL! WHAT HAPPENED, HENRY?
THE DOC. TOLD HER TO PIPE DOWN ON COFFEE AND SWITCH TO POSTUM. DAD SAID IT WAS A LOT OF HORSE FEATHERS, BUT MOM'S FEELING SO GOOD NOW THAT DAD'S STARTED DRINKIN' POSTUM HIMSELF.

"MOTHER, what made the doctor think that coffee was making you cross?"

"Well, you see, coffee contains caffein . . . a drug that robs many people of sleep, gives them headaches or indigestion, or makes them nervous and cross. That's why boys and girls, and many grown-ups, too, should never drink coffee."

"But why did changing to Postum make so much difference?"

"There is no caffein in Postum . . . so it gave my system a chance to throw off the ill effects of the drug. Then my headaches and indigestion went away . . . and I could sleep soundly again."

Many people suffer no ill effects from coffee. But many others cannot safely drink it—perhaps you are one. The caffein in coffee may be working to rob you of sleep, upset your digestion, or undermine your nerves.

Famous coaches say "Drink Postum"

Athletes and football players must have steady nerves. That's why famous coaches have made Postum the "Training Table" drink in hundreds of schools and colleges. Postum-made-with-hot-milk is a marvelous drink for growing children.

If you suffer from sleeplessness, headaches, nervousness or indigestion; or have any other reason to suspect that coffee disagrees with you . . . try Postum for 30 days. It's a delicious drink . . . and it costs less than half a cent a cup. You'll find it easy to make . . . and it may be a real help. A product of General Foods. ©1934, G. F. CORP.

FREE! To start you off in your fight against coffee-nerves, let us send you your first week's supply of Postum—FREE! Simply mail the coupon.
